Judge Dismisses Charges Against 36 Held In Raid

BULLETIN

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — Judge James B. Kane Jr. of City Court today dismissed charges against 36 men, including six identified at government hearings as connected with the Cosa Nostra crime syndicate. The defense argued that the information, drawn for the arrests, failed to state an intent to provoke a breach of peace.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — City, state and federal authorities walked into a restaurant on the city's West Side Monday night and arrested 36 men, including a dozen identified in government hearings as members of the Cosa Nostra crime syndicate.

Investigators called the gathering a "little Apalachin."

All were accused of consorting with known criminals and were freed on the order of city court judges, pending arraignment today.

One of the men, police said, also was accused of second-degree assault in an attack on a policeman.

About 250 men were dining on roast beef and chicken in a first-floor banquet hall when 15 Buffalo detectives, 6 FBI agents and 2 members of the state Bureau of Criminal Investigation entered through an unlocked door.

Fifty others at the gathering, including those best known to police, were in a downstairs dining hall and slipped into a nearby liquor storeroom, locking the door behind them, police said.

Investigators said some of the more prominent figures included:

Fredrico G. Raneaccio, 59, of Buffalo, reputed "underboss" to Stefano Magaddino, of nearby Lewiston. Magaddino, who has been identified at Senate crime hearings as a Cosa Nostra chieftain in western New York and the Ohio Valley, was not there.

James V. LaDuca, 55, of Lewiston, Magaddino's son-in-law and, police said, his representative at the gathering.

Joseph DiCarlo, 66, of Buffalo, who police said recently returned here from the Youngstown, Ohio, area.

Pasquale Matarelli, 56, of Buffalo, described as associated with Magaddino and DiCarlo.

Daniel G. Sansanese, 32, of Buffalo, reputed gambling lord.

Joseph Fino, 52, and Nicholas Fino, 43, brothers from suburban West Seneca. Joseph was identified in 1963 as a section leader in the Buffalo Cosa Nostra. Nicholas has had at least 16 court appearances on gambling charges, police said, and drew a one-year sentence for possession of bookmaking records last year.

Roy Carlisi, 58, of Buffalo, who has been associated wit' various business ventures in the Buffalo, area, police said.

Police said several of those arrested, including LaDuca and Carlisi, were among 65 men picked up by state police in a raid Nov. 14, 1957, on the Apalachin, N.Y., home of the late Joseph Barbara during an alleged "crime convention."

Investigators said the two meetings had other similarities. In both cases, no weapons were found. Large sums of cash were found, however, as much as $6,000 today.

Wellsville Firm Swept By Early-Morning Fire

2 Firemen Injured By Intense Heat

Damage Estimates Run To $60,000 As Feed Firm Burns

By JERRY NACHMAN

A damage estimate of between $50,000 and $60,000 has been made following the roaring blaze which leveled the Wellsville Feed and Supply Co. at 320 Lisbon St. early this morning, destroyed two nearby buildings and injured two firemen.

Fire Chief Robert Lewis said the alarm was turned in at 2:25 by a former volunteer fireman, George Cornwell.

ARRIVING firefighters found flames shooting through the roof.

Lewis theorizes that the flames had been smoldering for some time because of the rapidity with which they spread.

The firm sold feed, seed, garden supplies, tools, hardware, fertilizer and ammunition.

Lewis said the very nature of the structure and its contents contributed to the intense heat.

Radiating heat ignited two buildings across the street — abandoned dwellings used for storage by the Acme Craftware Co. They were filled with boxes, excelsior and other packing materials.

THE HEAT was intense enough to send two firemen to City Hospital this morining after they received burns despite their protective garb.

Kenneth McAdoo of 709 Main St. was treated for burns of both shoulders and the upper arm and face, while Jay Moss of 916 Center St. suffered burns of the forehead.

Both men were released later.

The two-and-one-half story frame structure continued to burn out of control for about an hour as flames leaped an estimated 100 feet into the air.

Firefighters from Wellsville, Liverpool Townships East and West and Glenmoor were called to help quell the blaze. Off-duty city firemen and Columbiana County sheriff's deputies stood by to control traffic.

THE FEED company is owned by Dale Rudibaugh of Shadyside Ave., East Liverpool. He has operated the firm for 16 years and indicated that "everyting was lost."

The establishment was stock-

FLAMES ERUPTED IN EVERY DIRECTION at the height of this morning's fire at the Wellsville Feed and Supply Co. as firemen stationed themselves at various points around the burning building to keep them from spreading. An even more serious loss was narrowly averted as flames crept to within one foot of an adjacent paint shop.

20 Miles West Of Hanoi

Air Raids Put MIG Base Out Of Action, U.S. Says

SAIGON (AP)—Five U. S. air attacks in two weeks have put the Hoa Lac MIG air base 20 miles west of Hanoi out of action, the U.S. Command announced today.

A spokesman said there was no evidence of MIG activity on the field when nine flights of U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs from Thailand plastered the field Monday for the fifth time since April 24.

U.S. planes flew 121 missions over North Vietnam Monday, and one Thunderchief was shot down, the spokesman said. The pilot was listed as missing in action. There was no indication whether the plane was lost during the raid on the Hoa Lac field.

The Thunderchief was the 535th U.S. combat plane reported lost to hostile action over North Vietnam.

While the air war in the North increased in fury, U.S. B52 bombers blasted Communist positions within and below the demilitarized zone Monday night in a continuing campaign to ease the pressure on U.S. Marines and allied forces in the northernmost sector of South Vietnam.

"I would say the field at Hoa Lac is no longer operable," a U.S. spokesman said.

Air Force reports of Monday's raid said both ends of the hard-surface runway were pockmarked by 1,000-pound bombs, the center of the runway was blasted and the antiaircraft sites and sandbagged MIG revetments heavily raked by shattering cluster bombs.

There are four big MIG bases in the Hanoi-Haiphong area.

In addition to the Hoa Lac base, the base at Kep has been hit twice but the other two have not been attacked.

While the Air Force was blasting the MIG field, Navy pilots from the nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise hit a naval supply area choked with barges 20 miles northeast of Haiphong. The pilots said they touched off a large oil fire.

Despite a continuing overcast, other pilots ranged south to the 17th Parallel dividing Vietnam to hit supply routes, trucks, barges and other targets.

'Piecemeal' Restorations Of Cutbacks Ruled Out

No piecemeal restorations of cutbacks will be made following Tuesday's defeat of a 5 - mill operating levy, William Ferrall, Wellsville Board of Education president, said at Monday night's meeting.

The statement came following reumors that football and some other activities might be restored despite the cutbacks made at the March meeting.

Answering comments that football was self-sustaining, Ferrall produced the 1966-67 athletic report showing that gridiron activities in Wellsville operated $694.16 in the red last year.

Don Lowe, athletic chairman, said poor weather and several bad gates, along with equipment and repair expenditures resulted in the deficit.

Basketball, on the other hand, showed a profit of more than $1,000. Track produced no revenue.

As of yesterday, the bank balance in the athletic fund was $629.

The expenditures listed did not include coaching salaries, which total $5,300 annually.

It was determined that it would take $9,650 to reinstate all extra-curricular activities in the schools, including sports, drama, choir, publications and clubs.

Ferrall stressed that none of the activities will be restored until all of them are.

The board and Supt. Lowell Myers went on record as objecting to what they called "antiquated and archaic" laws which state that last week's primary election be counted as a special election so far as the levy is concerned and also requirement that a 55 per cent vote be necessary for passage.

Myers said he has spoken with State Rep. Clarence Wetzel, who indicated legislation possibly may be introduced amending the law.

If this were to happen, Myers continued, a special election could be placed on the ballot this August. Otherwise, the vote would have to wait until the general election.

The levy which failed in Wellsville had a 52.9 per cent affirmative vote.

If a special election should bring approval of the levy, money could be borrowed for school operation on anticipated revenues.

Slides Stop Bus Service Near Chester

Hancock County school officials have ordered suspension of school bus service along Washington School Rd., starting Wednesday, as a result of slides along the roadway.

Pete May, transportation coordinator for the schools in northern Hancock County, said slides along the roadway have made the trip hazardous and he is making the necessary arrangements to discontinue service until the State Road Commission makes needed repairs.

May indicated the condition of the road is bad enough that the heavy buses might cause it to slide more and completely cut off the access.

About 25 pupils who attend the Chester elementary schools and Oak Glen High School will be affected, May noted. However, these students will be transported if they walk to either end of the road, less than a mile each direction, he added.

Bliss Files Suit Against Steel Unions

A $250,000 suit against two steel unions has been filed in U.S. District Court at Pittsburgh by the Mackintosh - Hemphill Division of the E. W. Biss Co., where members of the locals have refused to cross picket lines of striking clerks.

The firm claims USA-CIO Locals 1269 and 1886 have violated a no - strike clause of contracts with Mackintosh - Hemphill by honoring picket lines at plants at Midand and Pittsburgh's South Side.

Meanwhile, an effort to settle the contract dispute between the firm and the clerks is planned this afternoon at Pittsburgh by Federal Mediator Art Wellman.

The clerks have been on strike since April 27 in a wage-salary dispute, claiming the firm is refusing to grant scales on the basic steel, pattern. Mackintosh says the firm is not a part of the basic steel pattern because it is a rolled products concern.

Some 600 hourly workers of the firm have remained off the jobs, idling the two plants, in observance of the clerks' picket lines.

A company spokesman said a 1965 contract with the hourly workers bans slowdowns, strikes and work stoppages.

Doctors Report Ike Continues To Improve

WASHINGTON (AP) — The condition of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower continues to improve, doctors at Walter Reed Army Hospital report.

The doctors have provisionally diagnosed Eisenhower's illness as acute gastroenteritis, an inflammation of the stomach linng and small intestine. The former president, 76, was hospitalized about midnight Saturday after suffering nausea, vomiting and abdominal cramps at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm.

Women Hurt As Man Dies While Driving

A city woman and a Wellsville woman were injured in Beaver Monday afternoon when the parked car in which they were passengers was struck by another auto whose driver had just suffered a fatal heart attack.

Mrs. Hazel Hanlon, 66, of 760 Sophia St. was in "satisfactory" condition today at Rochester General Hospital with a possible neck injury.

Mrs. Violet Alford, 49, of Wellsville R. D. 1 was treated at the hospital and released.

Roscoe F. Plowmaker, 79, of 1210 4th St. Ext., Beaver, was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital, the victim of a heart seizure.

Beaver police said Plowmaker was headed west on 3rd St. at 5:15 p. m. when he suffered the attack, and his auto struck the parked car owned by George A. Alford of Wellsville R. D. 1.

Hoffa Begins 4th Attempt For New Trial

Judge Who Handed Down Sentence In 1964 To Hear Plea

BULLETIN

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)— a hearing on James R. Hoffa's fourth bid for a new jury tampering trial ended abruptly this morning after defense lawyers said they could not proceed because of newly discovered evidence.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — James R. Hoffa and his battery of lawyers go into U. S. District Court today seeking for a fourth time a new trial on his jury-tampering conviction.

Hoffa, 54, serving an eight-year sentence, was returned from prison for the hearing before U. S. District Judge Frank W Wilson, who handed down his sentence in 1964.

This hearing, expected to be lengthy, is on the Teamsters Union president's fourth new-trial motion, but it is his first return to court here since his conviction three years ago.

The earlier three motions were turned down without a hearing, although one of them — accusing the jury which convicted him of misconduct — still

Beaver Official Slated To Testify On Canal

BEAVER — Beaver County Commissioner James Ross is scheduled to testify before the U. S. House Appropriations subcommittee Wednesday concerning the proposed Lake Erie - Ohio River canal.

Ross is also to testify before a similar committee of the Senate Thursday.

The commissioner will outline Beaver County opposition to the proposed canal, including the stands taken against the project by the commissioners, County Planning Commission and officials of county communities and civic groups.

Ross was requested to testify by the committees.

Kennedy Round Tariff

U.S. Threatens To Leave Talks

GENEVA (AP — The U.S. delegation threatened today to walk out of the Kennedy Round tariff negotiations if no progress is made "within the next 24 hours," an authoritative source reported.

The source said U.S. Chief Delegate William Roth, President Johnson's special representative, made the threat in "a bellicose speech" during negotiations on grains.

The source said Roth threatened to "pack his bags and return to Washington Wednesday morning" if there is no sign of the current deadlock being broken.

Representatives of the United States and the six European Common Market nations ended a crucial night session early today without progress. A neutral mediator said if no agreement was reached later today at an expanded meeting including key members of the 52 participating nations, there was little chance of accord by week's end.

Agreement by the end of the week is considered vital because President Johnson's authority to cut American tariffs as much as 50 per cent expires June 30, and experts estimate that it will take at least six weeks to hammer the necessary accords into shape after the negotiators agree.

The stalemate could result in an emergency conference by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and foreign ministers of many of the 53 participating nations.

The key figures in the negotiations are William Roth, Johnson's special representative, and Jean Rey of Belgium, who represents the Common Market members — France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Sitting in as a neutral mediator is Eric Wyndham White, head of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Commissioners Set To Act After Bettis Delivers Opinion

LISBON — County commissioners will ask for another competitive civil service examination for the posts of superintendent and matron at the Columbiana County Home.

James W. Boyd of East Liverpool, president, said he will confer with Prosecuting Atty. J. Warren Bettis on qualifications for the posts before requesting the Department of State Personnel to set up the examinations.

Robert Boyce, county home superintendent, received the only passing grade among the three men who took the examination for superintendent here April 28.

He scored 90.59 on the test and received another 10 points as a service veteran. The other two scored 69.33, failing to make the 70 points necessary to be placed on the eligible list.

Mrs. Gladys Boyce, the home matron, and the wives of the other two men all passed the examination for matron.

Wellsville School Board Snubs Lauva Resignation

A written resignation by Dr. Janis Lauva to the Wellsville Board of Education was "ignored" Monday night by fellow members, who refused either to accept or reject it.

The physician's letter said he was "deeply disappointed" in the defeat last week of a 5-mill levy on the primary ballot.

Dr. Lauva said he was aware there were "personal dislikes" by some voters toward the board, administration and faculty, but said "what's personal about the next generation in Wellsville and tomorrow's America?"

He added that constructive criticism was understandable but said it was no reason to deny children their education.

Dr. Lauva declared that because it appeared he was unable to contribute anything to the success of the levy, he, therefore, was offering the resignation. He voiced a hope that his successor might be given the community's support.

Dr. Lauva, an appointed member of the board, was not present at the meeting.

At the opening of the session, a petition was read protesting the anticipated resignation.

Board President William Ferrall said Dr. Lauva has been a good, interested board member who devoted considerable time to the school system.

The firm claims USA-CIO Locals 1269 and 1886 have violated a no - strike clause of contracts with Mackintosh - Hemphill by honoring picket lines at plants at Midand and Pittsburgh's South Side.

Meanwhile, an effort to settle the contract dispute between the firm and the clerks is planned this afternoon at Pittsburgh by Federal Mediator Art Wellman.

The clerks have been on strike since April 27 in a wage-salary dispute, claiming the firm is refusing to grant scales on the basic steel, pattern. Mackintosh says the firm is not a part of the basic steel pattern because it is a rolled products concern.

Some 600 hourly workers of t' s firm have remained off the jobs, idling the two plants, in observance of the clerks' picket lines.

A company spokesman said a 1965 contract with the hourly workers bans slowdowns, strikes and work stoppages.

Doctors Report Ike Continues To Improve

WASHINGTON (AP) — The condition of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower continues to improve, doctors at Walter Reed Army Hospital report.

The doctors have provisionally diagnosed Eisenhower's illness as acute gastroenteritis, an inflammation of the stomach linng and small intestine. The former president, 76, was hospitalized about midnight Saturday after suffering nausea, vomiting and abdominal cramps at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm.

Women Hurt As Man Dies While Driving

A city woman and a Wellsville woman were injured in Beaver Monday afternoon when the parked car in which they were passengers was struck by another auto whose driver had just suffered a fatal heart attack.

Mrs. Hazel Hanlon, 66, of 760 Sophia St. was in "satisfactory" condition today at Rochester General Hospital with a possible neck injury.

Mrs. Violet Alford, 49, of Wellsville R. D. 1 was treated at the hospital and released.

Roscoe F. Plowmaker, 79, of 1210 4th St. Ext., Beaver, was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital, the victim of a heart seizure.

Beaver police said Plowmaker was headed west on 3rd St. at 5:15 p. m. when he suffered the attack, and his auto struck the parked car owned by George A. Alford of Wellsville R. D. 1.

Beaver Official Slated To Testify On Canal

BEAVER — Beaver County Commissioner James Ross is scheduled to testify before the U. S. House Appropriations subcommittee Wednesday concerning the proposed Lake Erie - Ohio River canal.

Ross is also to testify before a similar committee of the Senate Thursday.

The commissioner will outline Beaver County opposition to the proposed canal, including the stands taken against the project by the commissioners, County Planning Commission and officials of county communities and civic groups.

Ross was requested to testify by the committees.

Wellsville School Board Snubs Lauva Resignation

A written resignation by Dr. Janis Lauva to the Wellsville Board of Education was "ignored" Monday night by fellow members, who refused either to accept or reject it.

The physician's letter said he was "deeply disappointed" in the defeat last week of a 5-mill levy on the primary ballot.

Dr. Lauva said he was aware there were "personal dislikes" by some voters toward the board, administration and faculty, but said "what's personal about the next generation in Wellsville and tomorrow's America?"

He added that constructive criticism was understandable, but said it was no reason to deny children their education.

Dr. Lauva declared that because it appeared he was unable to contribute anything to the success of the levy, he, therefore, was offering the resignation. He voiced a hope that his successor might be given the community's support.

Dr. Lauva, an appointed member of the board, was not present at the meeting.

At the opening of the session, a petition was read protesting the anticipated resignation.

Board President William Ferrall said Dr. Lauva has been a good, interested board member who devoted considerable time to the school system.

Things Look Brighter For District Weather

Things are looking up on the local and district weather front, with the forecast calling for fair tonight and mostly sunny and not so cool Wednesday.

For the first time in several days, there's no mention of rain.

Motorist Fined At East Palestine

EAST PALESTINE — A 20-year-old E. Main St. motorist was fined and jailed Monday on a reckless operation charge and given an additional penalty as a result of a similar citation last year.

Samuel V. Pieri Jr. of 484½ E. Main St. was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to a day in jail by Mayor Robert Harding on the reckless operation charge made by police on the basis of a complaint from an E. Taggart St. resident.

Police said Pieri had been arrested three times last year on traffic charges, the last May 26 when he was given a $75 suspension of a $100 fine and a two-day suspension of a three-day jail term.

Mayor Harding last night imposed the suspended fine and jail term of the May penalty.

Home

Charles J. Gause of Hanoverton R. D. 1 say they are not satisfied with Boyce's administration of the home and they want to replace him.

After the scores were made public last week, they asked the prosecutor if they had to accept the department of personnel's only one name for superintendent.

In a reply yesterday, Bettis wrote that it is his opinion the county commissioners may reject a list with only one eligible candidate and may ask for another examination.

Bettis referred to the following civil service provision: "The commission is required to certify three names to the appointing authority (the county commissioners in this case for each such position to be filled and the appointing authority may demand that a list containing at least three names be certified to him before he makes the appointment."

Bettis also cited attorney general's opinions that (1 the appointing authority can and should refuse to accept an eligible list when it does not contain the names of three persons standing highest on the list and (2 that the appointing authority cannot be required to make a permanent appointment from a list containing less than three eligible names even though one of the persons on the list is serving as a provisional appointee in the position under consideration.

Boyd said the commissioners must make an appointment from the top three names on a certified eligible list, but there is no requirement the appointee have the highest grade.

Commissioners received a letter yesterday from Norman J. Crabtree, chief of the Ohio Division of Aviation, notifying them it is necessary that monies appropriated for a county airport project be obligated and encumbered by June 30.

He said "obligated" means the awarding of the contract prior to June 30 after a necessary period of publication as required by regulations.

Crabtree said the requirement is set up in House Bill 949, 106th session of the General Assembly, dealing with county airport development.

He said the Division of Aviation is proposing a bill in the present legislature to reappropriate the residue in the original bill for an extended period of time. "The resultant action will be the decision of the present members of the 107th General Assembly now in session," he advised.

The state government has appropriated $100,000 for the proposed Columbiana County airport at Swaney Field, north of East Liverpool, but a contract has not been let. The County Airport Authority is awaiting approval fom the Federal Aviation Agency.

Commissioners approved travel and expenses of $95.50 for Clerk of Courts Carl L. Stacey to attend the Ohio Clerk of Courts Association's summer meeting June 14-16 at Lancaster.

The roadway on the southern end intersects the Fairview Rd., near Chester, and on the northern end intersects Route 2 near Tomlinson Run State Park.

May said he notified the State Road Commission Monday of the situation and the discontinuance of bus service, but has not received word when repair work will begin.

A spokesman in the SRC office at Pughtown said Walter Batalo, local superintendent, and the crew foremen were both out of the office this morning and had no information about the start of repairs.

May said the children were transported over the road this morning and were to be brought home over it this afternoon but service will then be halted.

Worth Putting In Line

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The black bass population at Lake Cumberland is the heaviest of any major impoundment in Kentucky. A test by the state disclosed the reservoir has almost 1,200 fish per acre.

Tariff

of tariffs on chemicals, especially the high rates charged by the United States, and regulation of trade in grain, the largest single item in the human diet.

Accord would mean an estimated reduction in tariffs averaging 30 per cent on billions of dollars in annual trade.

A successful Kennedy Round would serve as a great stimulus to trade and bring down prices on many imported goods.

If the talks fail, five years of work by thousands of experts will have been wasted and international cooperation will suffer greatly.

Rey, a member of the Common Market's nine-man executive group, will report tonight to the other members of the group and to Cabinet members of the six member states whose approval is needed to complete any accord.

With agreement needed on both the chemical and grain issues, the Johnson administration appears ready to ask Congress to eliminate the "American selling price" system — basing tariffs on U.S. prices — which European nations consider unjust.

U.S. negotiators have insisted, however, that the Europeans cut their own tariff rates on chemicals which many American firms export. The Europeans have offered reductions, but want to see what Congress does before making any substantial cuts.

Four Take Part In District Rally

Four members of Cpl. Joe Connelly Barracks 8 of East Liverpool attended a district conference in Millersburg, Ohio, Sunday.

The men, Walter Campbell, Larry Finlay, Lewis Lyons and Mike Payne, took part in the election of officers for the coming year in the 11th District.

They include: Albert Feller, Beech City, commander; Joe Grantonic, Mingo Junction, senior vice commander; Finlay, junior vice commander; Thomas Cooper, Canton, chaplain, and Doyle Ditmars, Homesville, quartermaster adjutant.

Finlay said East Liverpool will be the host city for the next district conference on Aug. 6.

Services will be held Thursday afternoon at 1:30 at he Oliver Funeral Home by the Rev. Guy Smith. Burial will be in Glenview Cemetery.

Friends may call Wednesday night at the funeral home.

Motorist Fined At East Palestine

EAST PALESTINE — A 20-year-old E. Main St. motorist was fined and jailed Monday on a reckless operation charge and given an additional penalty as a result of a similar citation last year.

Samuel V. Pieri Jr. of 484½ E. Main St. was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to a day in jail by Mayor Robert Harding on the reckless operation charge made by police on the basis of a complaint from an E. Taggart St. resident.

Police said Pieri had been arrested three times last year on traffic charges, the last May 26 when he was given a $75 suspension of a $100 fine and a two-day suspension of a three-day jail term.

Mayor Harding last night imposed the suspended fine and jail term of the May penalty.

Charles J. Gause of Hanoverton R. D. 1 say they are not satisfied with Boyce's administration of the home and they want to replace him.

After the scores were made public last week, they asked the prosecutor if they had to accept the department of personnel's only one name for superintendent.

In a reply yesterday, Bettis wrote that it is his opinion the county commissioners may reject a list with only one eligible candidate and may ask for another examination.

Bettis referred to the following civil service provision: "The commission is required to certify three names to the appointing authority (the county commissioners in this case for each such position to be filled and the appointing authority may demand that a list containing at least three names be certified to him before he makes the appointment."

Bettis also cited attorney general's opinions that (1 the appointing authority can and should refuse to accept an eligible list when it does not contain the names of three persons standing highest on the list and (2 that the appointing authority cannot be required to make a permanent appointment from a list containing less than three eligible names even though one of the persons on the list is serving as a provisional appointee in the position under consideration.

Boyd said the commissioners must make an appointment from the top three names on a certified eligible list, but there is no requirement the appointee have the highest grade.

Commissioners received a letter yesterday from Norman J. Crabtree, chief of the Ohio Division of Aviation, notifying them it is necessary that monies appropriated for a county airport project be obligated and encumbered by June 30.

He said "obligated" means the awarding of the contract prior to June 30 after a necessary period of publication as required by regulations.

Crabtree said the requirement is set up in House Bill 949, 106th session of the General Assembly, dealing with county airport development.

He said the Division of Aviation is proposing a bill in the present legislature to reappropriate the residue in the original bill for an extended period of time. "The resultant action will be the decision of the present members of the 107th General Assembly now in session," he advised.

The state government has appropriated $100,000 for the proposed Columbiana County airport at Swaney Field, north of East Liverpool, but a contract has not been let. The County Airport Authority is awaiting approval fom the Federal Aviation Agency.

Commissioners approved travel and expenses of $95.50 for Clerk of Courts Carl L. Stacey to attend the Ohio Clerk of Courts Association's summer meeting June 14-16 at Lancaster.

May said he notified the State Road Commission Monday of the situation and the discontinuance of bus service, but has not received word when repair work will begin.

A spokesman in the SRC office at Pughtown said Walter Batalo, local superintendent, and the crew foremen were both out of the office this morning and had no information about the start of repairs.

May said the children were transported over the road this morning and were to be brought home over it this afternoon but service will then be halted.

of tariffs on chemicals, especially the high rates charged by the United States, and regulation of trade in grain, the largest single item in the human diet.

Accord would mean an estimated reduction in tariffs averaging 30 per cent on billions of dollars in annual trade.

A successful Kennedy Round would serve as a great stimulus to trade and bring down prices on many imported goods.

If the talks fail, five years of work by thousands of experts will have been wasted and international cooperation will suffer greatly.

Rey, a member of the Common Market's nine-man executive group, will report tonight to the other members of the group and to Cabinet members of the six member states whose approval is needed to complete any accord.

With agreement needed on both the chemical and grain issues, the Johnson administration appears ready to ask Congress to eliminate the "American selling price" system — basing tariffs on U.S. prices — which European nations consider unjust.

U.S. negotiators have insisted, however, that the Europeans cut their own tariff rates on chemicals which many American firms export. The Europeans have offered reductions, but want to see what Congress does before making any substantial cuts.

Four Take Part In District Rally

Four members of Cpl. Joe Connelly Barracks 8 of East Liverpool attended a district conference in Millersburg, Ohio, Sunday.

The men, Walter Campbell, Larry Finlay, Lewis Lyons and Mike Payne, took part in the election of officers for the coming year in the 11th District.

They include: Albert Feller, Beech City, commander; Joe Grantonic, Mingo Junction, senior vice commander; Finlay, junior vice commander; Thomas Cooper, Canton, chaplain, and Doyle Ditmars, Homesville, quartermaster adjutant.

Finlay said East Liverpool will be the host city for the next district conference on Aug. 6.

Relaxing Of Laws Suggested

The President's Crime Commission has issued the second of nine reports and it is bound to come down hard on a variety of toes.

It is destined for the controversial label because it deals with the nation's morals.

Commission members reported changing attitudes in America toward the so-called sin laws involving illicit sex, gambling, drinking and abortion; and urged relaxing of criminal laws in these areas.

The panel said policemen are tied up with enforcement procedures of the sin laws to the extent their effectiveness in "protecting the public against serious threats" is impaired.

Anyone worried that the commission's report will lead to an immediate repeal of existing laws in any areas mentioned can lay his fears at rest.

It was the purpose of the commission to get a controversial subject out of its taboo corner and out in the open for public and professional discussion.

Some laws have been on the books for a long time and deserve mature scrutiny in light of twentieth-century thinking and standards.

The commission pointed out there were five million arrests last year for drunkenness. It recommended removing drunkenness from criminal law process and suggested it be treated for "what it really is, a social problem of alcoholism and poverty."

Whether or not this is an answer is a matter of opinion. But it is a fact that present methods have failed to eliminate the problem of drunkenness.

The panel said about one percent of the annual one million abortions are legal. Obviously there is need for updating a law that leads to many illegal, sometimes fatal abortions in case of rape, incest or when the mental or physical health of a mother or child is threatened.

Suggestions of the Crime Commission are not to be taken as an attempt to rid a decadent society of needed laws; but rather as an opportunity for revision of antiquated laws with an eye toward retention of the moral integrity of our nation.

Members of the newly-organized East Palestine Jaycees, awarded state and national charters Saturday night, are faced with a real challenge in meeting the objectives of the Jaycees.

The East Liverppool and Wellsville groups, instrumental in aiding the formation of the new northern county organization, have in themselves provided some high goals at which the novices can aim.

Should the young men of the East Palestine unit prove themselves worthy of the general standard of Jaycees in Columbiana, the community can consider itself fortunate.

Highway Beautification Act Wilts

It has become apparent to one House Democrat that the government bit off a chunk too big to chew in the Highway Beautification Act.

The enlightened Democrat is Rep. John C. Kluczynski of Illinois, who guided the administration's pet bill through the House two years ago.

The purpose was to give broad nationwide control of billboards and junkyards along highways.

The aim of the highway beautification program fell short because there is just too much territory to cover effectively; also the outcry from the billboard lobby.

Rep. Kluczynski's gloomy outlook is expected to be the kiss of death on the proposal to extend the bill when it expires June 30.

There is some indication a campaign will be started to save Lady Bird Johnson's favorite project by curtailing the powers of the law, rather than abandoning it.

This would be accomplished by setting aside a specified small percentage of the nation's highways, maybe 10 per cent, to be declared scenic areas.

In these specified areas, billboards and junkyards would be controlled to prevent marring natural beauty.

This is a comedown from the present law's control area of all interstate and primary highways, except in commercial and industrial zones. This amounts to about 265,000 miles of the nation's 3.6 million miles of roads.

Even the 10 per cent idea may have difficulty getting enough support to get off the ground; and the chances of extending the present law are nil.

Rep. Kluczynski sized up the situation just about right when he said: "I believe we enacted a can of worms, and I'm going to try to untangle it."

Proxy Pickets

In Washington it now is possible to rent pickets.

It is not surprising that three George Washington University students came up with the idea for a rent-a-protest agency. They cannot be blamed for trying to make a buck under the free enterprise system.

It is those who use the rented pickets that should come under fire.

The idea of a demonstration in the first place is to show the whole world that an individual, or a group of individuals acting in concert, want to go on record protesting a specific action or event.

An individual protest is being registered; and it carries weight because the protester is the picket, not a stand-in.

When rented pickets are used, it is not the same.

It smacks too much of the practice during the Civil War of rich men hiring poor ones to take their place on the battle line.

Just call it a lack of courage.

World Journal Tribune Dies

No post-mortem will be needed on the death of the World Journal Tribune, latest casualty in the New York newspaper field.

The cause and circumstances of death are clearly evident.

This experiment in hybrid journalism was dictated by expediency, not desirability. The result was unexpectedly good, but the paper did not command the advertising support it needed to give it a chance.

Its circulation was respectable by any standards other than those that dictate success in the New York area, where all sense of proportion is overwhelmed by the over-two-million circulation of the Daily News but it never gained the circulation it needed for survival.

This fact combined with the total disproportion of production costs forced on newspapers by unions whose spokesmen are not concerned with survival of employers, only with wage rates and working conditions, has whittled down employers to an irreducible minimum — The News and Times in the morning field, the Post, a poor third in both circulation and revenue, in the afternoon field.

Meanwhile, suburban papers are doing very well, as they are in the peripheral areas of all major cities.

The World Journal Tribune was only eight months old when it died — an infant death. Its passing will be mourned. But in hard fact, the mourners are not surprised. Only two things could have kept the paper alive — its advertisers and its unions.

They apparently couldn't have cared less.

Isoroku Yamamoto (1884-1943) was one of Japan's great admirals, with a long and distinguished career in war and peace. He opposed the policies that led to World War II with the U.S., but sponsored the planning that led to the Pearl Harbor attack as Japan's only chance of victory. He was killed in 1943 when his plane was shot down in the South Pacific.

The well-known shasta daisy was produced by the famous horticulturist, Luther Burbank (1849-1926). He blended daisies from England, Japan, and America into this one beautiful flower.

Who's Leading?

Move With Teeth In It

By Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON

The appointment of Lassie, the canine TV star, as special consultant to the administration's Keep America Beautiful program has hit Washington like a bombshell. With the appointment of Betty Furness as special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, and now Lassie, President Johnson seems to have decided to recruit more television personalities to dramatize his Great Society programs.

Art Buchwald

The reason why the Lassie appointment came as a surprise was that most political observers here in Washington believed Lassie wanted to run for governor of California. Now that he's decided to work for the administration, he may have hurt his political chances back home.

If the Keep America Beautiful campaign is a success, Mrs. Lady Bird Johnson will get all the credit. But if it fails, Lassie will be the one who is in the doghouse.

SOURCES CLOSE to the White House revealed that there was a foul-up concerning the appointment of Lassie. It seems that the President, who has promised to appoint more women to high government positions, had ordered his advisers to find a female dog to head his beautification program.

Only after Lassie was sworn in was it discovered that the TV star was a male. The discovery was made when Lassie was introduced to the President's male collie, Blanco, in the rose garden, and nothing happened.

There were raised eyebrows among litterbugs, too, over the appointment of Lassie as a beautification expert. Critics have pointed out that whereas Betty Furness never did her own shopping before becoming a consumer consultant (her cook did it all), Lassie always has had someone picking up his litter after him (usually a CBS vice-president).

But Lassie's supporters maintain that he's willing to learn everything there is about litter and that he's taking a crash course at the District of Columbia garbage dump to be filled in on his job.

This is not the first time that President Johnson has appointed a dog to his administration. There have been others, in the State Department, Defense, HEW and the post office. But so far this is the first dog associated with the beautification program.

THE WHITE HOUSE denied the appointment of Lassie was made to pay off a political debt. A White House spokesman said: "Lassie was picked on his merits and he has the full support of the American Kennel Association. The President knows he will make a contribution to the United States, and to show that the appointment was not merely for show, he is upgrading Lassie's position and will let him sit in on cabinet meetings."

There may be some Senate opposition to Lassie's appointment, mainly from friends of the billboard lobby, who feel that dogs have done more damage to billboards than anyone else. But Senate supporters plan to defend Lassie on the grounds that his bark is worse than his bite.

Lassie was not available for comment, but close friends said that he jumped at the chance to serve his country.

A close acquaintance told me: "Lassie has vowed to run a clean administration and he isn't going to be pushed around. When he gets his teeth into something, he doesn't let go."

Asked if he supported President Johnson's policies in Vietnam, the acquaintance said, "Lassie would never bite the hand that feeds him."

Roll Out The Battlewagons

By Truman Twill

We could have predicted that our great good government would be talking about demothballing battleships at this stage of the crusade in Southeast Asia.

If the crusade drags on much longer, the baffled militarists in charge of conducting it will be demothballing the cavalry, Civil War cannons in public parks and bows and arrows in museums.

And if it goes on even longer than that, field commanders will be calling for spears, war clubs and catapults. This is the way it happens in war.

Each new war is going to be over in a blitz, the militarists and their scientific advisers and weapons designers say. World War II was going to be settled in a matter of a few days by poison gas. When it dragged on, instead, it finally had to be settled by the BOMB.

That led to the supposition the BOMB would settle the next war, too. But when the next war broke out in Korea, it never was settled; it is still grinding on, with bored garrison troops peering out of trenches, as if it were 1918 all over again with rock-head generals unable to think of a way to quit mucking around in the muddy fields of Flanders.

So the United States may have to demothball battleships, so these big-gun offshore platforms can lob shells into the interior of enemy territory, one of the oldest concepts of 20th century warfare.

It is implausible to believe the Navy Department already is studying the plans of the Monitor and the Merrimac, with the idea of going into Haiphong Harbor with "ironclads"?

Or that foot soldiers may be practicing phalanx attacks?

Or that weapons suppliers may be working on impenetrable shields and suits of armor?

Napalm is only a modern version of the flaming pitch once thrown down on attackers from ramparts of castles.

The new "beehive" artillery shell that scatters steel darts in all directions is only a modern version of the hurled spears of distant ancestors.

Techniques of mass murder improve constantly, but the more they improve the more they become what they used to be when the world was newer.

Our great good government is thinking in behalf of all of us if it does not overlook the Trojan horse the Greeks used to knock over Troy from the inside out. How about a wooden elephant?

All of us can be sure the Asian enemy, with a more vibrant appreciation of history than is common among Americans, will pass up no chances to profit from experiences of the past. The enemy already has used poisoned spear tips and booby traps.

Fortunately, there are no enemy battleships to re-enact the disaster at Jutland. But surely the enemy has read about Billy Mitchell's demonstration that one airplane can demolish one battleship — the military break - through of the 20th century.

The enemy must have heard about Billy Mitchell. Even our own admirals now know his name and fame.

Odd Facts

The largest animal that has ever lived on the earth or in its waters is the whale. Not even the giant dinosaurs of prehistoric times were as large as the sulfur-bottom whale. One such whale which was killed off the South Georgia Islands, on the edge of the Antarctic, measured 111 feet in length and weighed about 90 to 100 tons. The reason that whales can grow to such an enormous size is that the water supports their bodies. A land mammal can get only as heavy as its legs can carry.

Back in 1902, automobile speeders in the U.S. were called "scorchers," and a scorcher in New York City was any driver who exceeded eight miles an hour.

Louisiana leads the United States in the production of sugar cane, sweet potatoes and early spring strawberries.

War Report

By James Marlow

How Did We Get Into It?

WASHINGTON

How did we ever get into the war in Vietnam? There are a lot of arguments about it. But the Senate Republican Policy Committee's staff report could have done a far better job explaining the origins than it did.

This report was supposed to provide Republicans with material for discussion in the hope they could reach agreement on what position to take. It did anything but. Almost immediately, instead of discussing, Republicans began arguing.

The report's main point is that the Democrats, under Presidents Johnson and John F. Kennedy, and not the Republicans under President Dwight D. Eisenhower, are the ones who sent U.S. fighting men into Vietnam.

That's true, but it's far from the whole story. The American involvement was a slow process, beginning with aid and ending with men. Presidents Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman, too, were part of the process.

In 1950, the French, without promising the Vietnamese freedom after holding them in colonial bondage almost 100 years, had been fighting for four years against Ho Chi Minh, a lifelong Communist, backed by Vietnamese Communists and no doubt non-Communist Vietnamese intent on driving out the French.

By then the Chinese Communists had taken over all of mainland China. In 1950 the Korean War began. Truman began a policy of giving the French aid. This aid eventually cost billions of dollars.

Truman's constant theme was that the Communists were trying to take over the world. When he became president in 1953, Eisenhower continued the Truman aid policy. He shared Truman's fears about the Communist intentions.

He was particularly afraid that unless stopped, communism would gobble up all Southeast Asia. He explained it in a couple of ways. One was the domino theory: that if Vietnam fell to communism, the other Southeast Asian nations would follow. He put it another way: that Vietnam was the cork in the bottle.

He said he was bitterly opposed to sending U.S. troops into Vietnam. He said he would try to make sure it didn't happen. And under him it didn't happen. But he also said something else.

"No matter how the struggle may have started," he said, "it has long since become one of the testing places between a free form of government and a dictatorship: Its outcome is going to have the greatest significance for us, and possibly for a long time in the future."

In 1954, Ho Chi Minh's forces forced the French into surrender. At Geneva the two sides agreed Vietnam should be divided into North and South, with Ho Chi Minh running the North, until 1956.

In that year the people of the two Vietnams would vote on a single government for all of them. But before then a new government had been set up in South Vietnam.

NITHER this new government nor the United States was a party to the agreement. The United States supported this new government with aid and technicians. When 1956 came South Vietnam refused to let the elections take place. If it had, Ho Chi Minh almost certainly would have won.

The United States, under Eisenhower, continued to support the South. It seemed inevitable—and it turned out that way — that now the North Vietnamese Reds would try to take South Vietnam by force since they had been refused a chance to do it by ballot.

The war began on a small scale in the late 1950's and gradually got bigger. It seems reasonable, although some might wish to argue it, that since the United States backed South Vietnam, anxious as it was to stop the spread of communism, and continued to back South Vietnam after it repudiated the elections which made war inevitable, then the United States had an obligation to continue supporting it.

By the time Kennedy was in office awhile the war grew more intense. He sent some troops over. They weren't enough. South Vietnam seemed in danger of being engulfed by the Viet Cong and the North. Johnson then sent in hundreds of thousands of troops.

Both Kennedy and Johnson shared the Truman - Eisenhower fear that communism was on the march and had to be stopped.

Suggestions of the Crime Commission are not to be taken as an attempt to rid a decadent society of needed laws; but rather as an opportunity for revision of antiquated laws with an eye toward retention of the moral integrity of our nation.

Community Asset

Members of the newly-organized East Palestine Jaycees, awarded state and national charters Saturday night, are faced with a real challenge in meeting the objectives of the Jaycees.

The East Liverppool and Wellsville groups, instrumental in aiding the formation of the new northern county organization, have in themselves provided some high goals at which the novices can aim.

Should the young men of the East Palestine unit prove themselves worthy of the general standard of Jaycees in Columbiana, the community can consider itself fortunate.

Highway Beautification Act Wilts

It has become apparent to one House Democrat that the government bit off a chunk too big to chew in the Highway Beautification Act.

The enlightened Democrat is Rep. John C. Kluczynski of Illinois, who guided the administration's pet bill through the House two years ago.

The purpose was to give broad nationwide control of billboards and junkyards along highways.

The aim of the highway beautification program fell short because there is just too much territory to cover effectively; also the outcry from the billboard lobby.

Rep. Kluczynski's gloomy outlook is expected to be the kiss of death on the proposal to extend the bill when it expires June 30.

There is some indication a campaign will be started to save Lady Bird Johnson's favorite project by curtailing the powers of the law, rather than abandoning it.

This would be accomplished by setting aside a specified small percentage of the nation's highways, maybe 10 per cent, to be declared scenic areas.

In these specified areas, billboards and junkyards would be controlled to prevent marring natural beauty.

This is a comedown from the present law's control area of all interstate and primary highways, except in commercial and industrial zones. This amounts to about 265,000 miles of the nation's 3.6 million miles of roads.

Even the 10 per cent idea may have difficulty getting enough support to get off the ground; and the chances of extending the present law are nil.

Rep. Kluczynski sized up the situation just about right when he said: "I believe we enacted a can of worms, and I'm going to try to untangle it."

Proxy Pickets

In Washington it now is possible to rent pickets.

It is not surprising that three George Washington University students came up with the idea for a rent-a-protest agency. They cannot be blamed for trying to make a buck under the free enterprise system.

It is those who use the rented pickets that should come under fire.

The idea of a demonstration in the first place is to show the whole world that an individual, or a group of individuals acting in concert, want to go on record protesting a specific action or event.

An individual protest is being registered; and it carries weight because the protester is the picket, not a stand-in.

When rented pickets are used, it is not the same.

It smacks too much of the practice during the Civil War of rich men hiring poor ones to take their place on the battle line.

Just call it a lack of courage.

World Journal Tribune Dies

No post-mortem will be needed on the death of the World Journal Tribune, latest casualty in the New York newspaper field.

The cause and circumstances of death are clearly evident.

This experiment in hybrid journalism was dictated by expediency, not desirability. The result was unexpectedly good, but the paper did not command the advertising support it needed to give it a chance.

Its circulation was respectable by any standards other than those that dictate success in the New York area, where all sense of proportion is overwhelmed by the over-two-million circulation of the Daily News but it never gained the circulation it needed for survival.

This fact combined with the total disproportion of production costs forced on newspapers by unions whose spokesmen are not concerned with survival of employers, only with wage rates and working conditions, has whittled down employers to an irreducible minimum — The News and Times in the morning field, the Post, a poor third in both circulation and revenue, in the afternoon field.

Meanwhile, suburban papers are doing very well, as they are in the peripheral areas of all major cities.

The World Journal Tribune was only eight months old when it died — an infant death. Its passing will be mourned. But in hard fact, the mourners are not surprised. Only two things could have kept the paper alive — its advertisers and its unions.

They apparently couldn't have cared less.

This 'n That

Isoroku Yamamoto (1884-1943) was one of Japan's great admirals, with a long and distinguished career in war and peace. He opposed the policies that led to World War II with the U.S., but sponsored the planning that led to the Pearl Harbor attack as Japan's only chance of victory. He was killed in 1943 when his plane was shot down in the South Pacific.

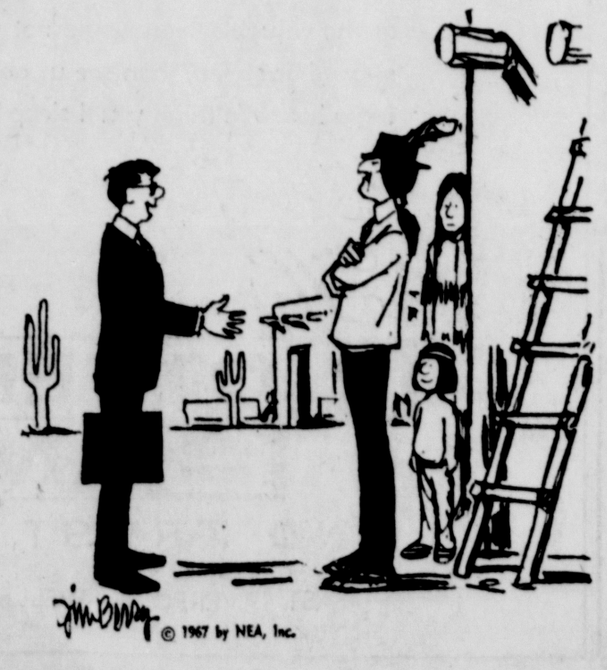

The well-known shasta daisy was produced by the famous horticulturist, Luther Burbank (1849-1926). He blended daisies from England, Japan, and America into this one beautiful flower.

Kruger National Park, in South Africa, is the largest animal sanctuary in the world. Lions, giraffes, zebras, rhinoceroses, and many other wild animals roam freely over its 3,000 square miles, and the only "hunting" permitted here is by tourists armed with cameras.

The largest ears in the world are those of the African elephant. A large male elephant may have ears three feet wide.

Who's Leading?

Move With Teeth In It

By Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON

The appointment of Lassie, the canine TV star, as special consultant to the administration's Keep America Beautiful program has hit Washington like a bombshell. With the appointment of Betty Furness as special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, and now Lassie, President Johnson seems to have decided to recruit more television personalities to dramatize his Great Society programs.

Art Buchwald

The reason why the Lassie appointment came as a surprise was that most political observers here in Washington believed Lassie wanted to run for governor of California. Now that he's decided to work for the administration, he may have hurt his political chances back home.

If the Keep America Beautiful campaign is a success, Mrs. Lady Bird Johnson will get all the credit. But if it fails, Lassie will be the one who is in the doghouse.

SOURCES CLOSE to the White House revealed that there was a foul-up concerning the appointment of Lassie. It seems that the President, who has promised to appoint more women to high government positions, had ordered his advisers to find a female dog to head his beautification program.

Only after Lassie was sworn in was it discovered that the TV star was a male. The discovery was made when Lassie was introduced to the President's male collie, Blanco, in the rose garden, and nothing happened.

There were raised eyebrows among litterbugs, too, over the appointment of Lassie as a beautification expert. Critics have pointed out that whereas Betty Furness never did her own shopping before becoming a consumer consultant (her cook did it all), Lassie always has had someone picking up his litter after him (usually a CBS vice-president).

But Lassie's supporters maintain that he's willing to learn everything there is about litter and that he's taking a crash course at the District of Columbia garbage dump to be filled in on his job.

This is not the first time that President Johnson has appointed a dog to his administration. There have been others, in the State Department, Defense, HEW and the post office. But so far this is the first dog associated with the beautification program.

THE WHITE HOUSE denied the appointment of Lassie was made to pay off a political debt. A White House spokesman said: "Lassie was picked on his merits and he has the full support of the American Kennel Association. The President knows he will make a contribution to the United States, and to show that the appointment was not merely for show, he is upgrading Lassie's position and will let him sit in on cabinet meetings."

There may be some Senate opposition to Lassie's appointment, mainly from friends of the billboard lobby, who feel that dogs have done more damage to billboards than anyone else. But Senate supporters plan to defend Lassie on the grounds that his bark is worse than his bite.

Lassie was not available for comment, but close friends said that he jumped at the chance to serve his country.

A close acquaintance told me: "Lassie has vowed to run a clean administration and he isn't going to be pushed around. When he gets his teeth into something, he doesn't let go."

Asked if he supported President Johnson's policies in Vietnam, the acquaintance said, "Lassie would never bite the hand that feeds him."

Roll Out The Battlewagons

By Truman Twill

We could have predicted that our great good government would be talking about demothballing battleships at this stage of the crusade in Southeast Asia.

If the crusade drags on much longer, the baffled militarists in charge of conducting it will be demothballing the cavalry, Civil War cannons in public parks and bows and arrows in museums.

And if it goes on even longer than that, field commanders will be calling for spears, war clubs and catapults. This is the way it happens in war.

Each new war is going to be over in a blitz, the militarists and their scientific advisers and weapons designers say. World War II was going to be settled in a matter of a few days by poison gas. When it dragged on, instead, it finally had to be settled by the BOMB.

That led to the supposition the BOMB would settle the next war, too. But when the next war broke out in Korea, it never was settled; it is still grinding on, with bored garrison troops peering out of trenches, as if it were 1918 all over again with rock-head generals unable to think of a way to quit mucking around in the muddy fields of Flanders.

So the United States may have to demothball battleships, so these big-gun offshore platforms can lob shells into the interior of enemy territory, one of the oldest concepts of 20th century warfare.

It is implausible to believe the Navy Department already is studying the plans of the Monitor and the Merrimac, with the idea of going into Haiphong Harbor with "ironclads"?

Or that foot soldiers may be practicing phalanx attacks?

Or that weapons suppliers may be working on impenetrable shields and suits of armor?

Napalm is only a modern version of the flaming pitch once thrown down on attackers from ramparts of castles.

The new "beehive" artillery shell that scatters steel darts in all directions is only a modern version of the hurled spears of distant ancestors.

Techniques of mass murder improve constantly, but the more they improve the more they become what they used to be when the world was newer.

Our great good government is thinking in behalf of all of us if it does not overlook the Trojan horse the Greeks used to knock over Troy from the inside out. How about a wooden elephant?

All of us can be sure the Asian enemy, with a more vibrant appreciation of history than is common among Americans, will pass up no chances to profit from experiences of the past. The enemy already has used poisoned spear tips and booby traps.

Fortunately, there are no enemy battleships to re-enact the disaster at Jutland. But surely the enemy has read about Billy Mitchell's demonstration that one airplane can demolish one battleship — the military break - through of the 20th century.

The enemy must have heard about Billy Mitchell. Even our own admirals now know his name and fame.

Odd Facts

The largest animal that has ever lived on the earth or in its waters is the whale. Not even the giant dinosaurs of prehistoric times were as large as the sulfur-bottom whale. One such whale which was killed off the South Georgia Islands, on the edge of the Antarctic, measured 111 feet in length and weighed about 90 to 100 tons. The reason that whales can grow to such an enormous size is that the water supports their bodies. A land mammal can get only as heavy as its legs can carry.

Back in 1902, automobile speeders in the U.S. were called "scorchers," and a scorcher in New York City was any driver who exceeded eight miles an hour.

Louisiana leads the United States in the production of sugar cane, sweet potatoes and early spring strawberries.

War Report

By James Marlow

How Did We Get Into It?

WASHINGTON

How did we ever get into the war in Vietnam? There are a lot of arguments about it. But the Senate Republican Policy Committee's staff report could have done a far better job explaining the origins than it did.

This report was supposed to provide Republicans with material for discussion in the hope they could reach agreement on what position to take. It did anything but. Almost immediately, instead of discussing, Republicans began arguing.

The report's main point is that the Democrats, under Presidents Johnson and John F. Kennedy, and not the Republicans under President Dwight D. Eisenhower, are the ones who sent U.S. fighting men into Vietnam.

That's true, but it's far from the whole story. The American involvement was a slow process, beginning with aid and ending with men. Presidents Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman, too, were part of the process.

In 1950, the French, without promising the Vietnamese freedom after holding them in colonial bondage almost 100 years, had been fighting for four years against Ho Chi Minh, a lifelong Communist, backed by Vietnamese Communists and no doubt non-Communist Vietnamese intent on driving out the French.

By then the Chinese Communists had taken over all of mainland China. In 1950 the Korean War began. Truman began a policy of giving the French aid. This aid eventually cost billions of dollars.

Truman's constant theme was that the Communists were trying to take over the world. When he became president in 1953, Eisenhower continued the Truman aid policy. He shared Truman's fears about the Communist intentions.

He was particularly afraid that unless stopped, communism would gobble up all Southeast Asia. He explained it in a couple of ways. One was the domino theory: that if Vietnam fell to communism, the other Southeast Asian nations would follow. He put it another way: that Vietnam was the cork in the bottle.

He said he was bitterly opposed to sending U.S. troops into Vietnam. He said he would try to make sure it didn't happen. And under him it didn't happen. But he also said something else.

"No matter how the struggle may have started," he said, "it has long since become one of the testing places between a free form of government and a dictatorship: Its outcome is going to have the greatest significance for us, and possibly for a long time in the future."

In 1954, Ho Chi Minh's forces forced the French into surrender. At Geneva the two sides agreed Vietnam should be divided into North and South, with Ho Chi Minh running the North, until 1956.

In that year the people of the two Vietnams would vote on a single government for all of them. But before then a new government had been set up in South Vietnam.

NITHER this new government nor the United States was a party to the agreement. The United States supported this new government with aid and technicians. When 1956 came South Vietnam refused to let the elections take place. If it had, Ho Chi Minh almost certainly would have won.

The United States, under Eisenhower, continued to support the South. It seemed inevitable — and it turned out that way — that now the North Vietnamese Reds would try to take South Vietnam by force since they had been refused a chance to do it by ballot.

The war began on a small scale in the late 1950's and gradually got bigger. It seems reasonable, although some might wish to argue it, that since the United States backed South Vietnam, anxious as it was to stop the spread of communism, and continued to back South Vietnam after it repudiated the elections which made war inevitable, then the United States had an obligation to continue supporting it.

By the time Kennedy was in office awhile the war grew more intense. He sent some troops over. They weren't enough. South Vietnam seemed in danger of being engulfed by the Viet Cong and the North. Johnson then sent in hundreds of thousands of troops.

Both Kennedy and Johnson shared the Truman - Eisenhower fear that communism was on the march and had to be stopped.

Ambridge JP Backs Plan

Shafer Reports 'Success' On Convention Proposal

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer reported today "surprising success, so far," in his efforts to convince justices of the peace to support the constitutional convention referendum.

Shafer said, however, that "a hard core is still out to kill (constitutional) reform at the polls next Tuesday." The referendum question and eight proposed amendments to the 93-year-old state charter are on the primary ballot.

The governor said that slightly more than 200 members of the minor judiciary have responded to a letter inviting their support in the convention campaign. The letter was signed by Rep. Joseph P. Rigby, R-Allegheny, a Pittsburgh alderman who agreed to serve as chairman of a minor judiciary committee supporting reform, he said.

"Responses are running about 50-50, with half (of the JPs) agreeing to support the calling of a convention, and the other half usually very bitterly opposed," Shafer said.

The minor judiciary traditionally has opposed the convention method of reform, Shafer noted, because it has feared that a convention would abolish the JP system.

Shafer quoted one Ambridge JP as writing, "This is my 13th year in office...and I am going to be one justice of the peace who will do everything to help pass the convention."

The negative response, Shafer said, has been equally determined: A Pipersville JP simply scrawled the word "nuts" on the letter he received and returned it; another JP in Youngsville wrote back, "You are barking up the wrong tree."

Support, meanwhile, was offered by a professional group for another Shafer program on the primary ballot, a $500 million bond issue for land and water conservation.

Robert W. Pierson, president of the Pennsylvania chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architects, said today his organization is conducting a mail campaign urging voter support of the question.

"These bonds to be voted on at the May 16 primary will correct the land and water problems of the past and prepare Pennsylvania for future growth," Pierson said.

On Monday, the Committee for Nine Yes Votes, a formal group backing the constitutional drive, announced formation of a "truth squad" to counter, it said, any false claims presented by the opponents of revision.

Its director, former State Atty. Gen. William A. Schnader of Philadelphia, said the "truth squad" is going to "make sure that the people are not taken in" by the tactics of the opponents.

Others comprising the "truth squad," the committee said, will be:

Former state Sen. Robert P. Casey, D-Lackawanna; Gilbert Nurick of Harrisburg, president of the Pennsylvania Bar Association; Noel Arthur of Meadville, a business executive; Mrs. H. Everett Sanford of Verona, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Womens Clubs; and Gustave G. Amsterdam of Philadelphia, a banking executive.

Pittsburgh Motorist Forfeits $57 Bond

A Pittsburgh man forfeited a $57.50 appearance bond Monday afternoon in the court of Justice of the Peace Lloyd Nalley of Newell.

Francis J. Whitman Jr., 50, was charged April 28 by Constable Harold Davis when the officer reported he saw a car driven by the man strike a tractor-trailer rig and continue east on Route 30. Davis halted the driver in a parking lot about a half-mile from the scene of the wreck.

Whitman's hearing had been set for Saturday, but he was granted a continuance until Monday.

Four Injured At Rogers In 'Chain' Crash

Four young Wellsville women escaped with only minor cuts and bruises when their car was rammed from behind by another auto and hammered into the rear of a halted bus at Rogers Monday.

Twenty - five passengers on the bus — headed for an Episcopal Church event in Youngstown — escaped injury in the mishap on Route 7 at the railroad crossing in the village.

Rogers Police Chief Sidney Cowan said the Inter - City Bus Co. vehicle operated by John V. Young of East Palestine R. D. had halted at the tracks in compliance with PUCO regulations.

A 1964 auto operated by Miss Nora Lee Amato of 1227 Commerce St., Wellsville, also headed north, stopped behind the bus.

Richard Ray Schilling of Warren, headed north in a 1965 sedan, did not halt and his car struck the rear of the other auto, knocking it into the rear of the bus. The mishap occurred at 5:35 p. m.

Miss Amato suffered minor cuts of the face and nose. Three passengers in her car — all her sisters — also received minor injuries: Miss Marguerite Amato of 1227 Commerce St., bruised arm; Mrs. John Pickring of Parshall St., laceration of the leg, and Mrs. Rose Sullivan of Parshall St., lacerations of the leg.

All were treated at City Hospital and released.

Schilling was charged with failure to stop in the assured clear distance and posted a bond for a hearing Monday before Rogers Mayor Glenn Rhodes.

The young woman's car was damaged heavily, Chief Cowan said. There was moderate damage to the front of Schilling's auto and about $500 damage to the rear of the bus.

The bus had been chartered by St. Stephen's Episcopal Church for a trip to St. John's Episcopal Church in Youngstown, Young said.

He said there were about 25 passengers from East Liverpool, Wellsville and Midland aboard.

Federally Financed, Broad Powers

Ohio Board Of Education Sets Urban Commission

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —A Commission on Urban School Development, federally financed and with broad responsibility powers for helping cities solve their mounting educational problems, was created by the State Board of Education Monday.

"This won't be just window dressing or a study group of delay action," State Supt. of Public Instruction Martin Essex assured.

He said it would investigate curriculum, occupational and vocational programs, school planning, use of recreation areas for school training and establishment of supplementary centers for arts and sciences.

The commission also will deal with the problem of urban racial imbalances in schools "although this isn't the central reason for its establishment," Essex said.

To be set up by midsummer. the commission of 11 members —laymen and school officials— will work with a salaried consultant.

If successful, it could lead to eventual creation of a separate state department of education for city schools, Essex said.

The state superintendent told the board that two-thirds of Ohio's 2,230,000 public school children live in cities, 25 per cent in the eight metropolitan centers.

"They have borne the brunt of the complex problems of population mobility, unemployment and cultural change," Essex said. "With the fourth iargest school enrollment in the nation, Ohio cannot afford to jeopardize future progress and economic development by avoiding its urban challenges."

In other action at its regular monthly meeting, the board reallocated $1 million in unspent federal funds to 368 school districts for operation of summer programs for disadvantaged children.

The board was told during Monday's session that Ohio is providing special education programs for only 175,000 of the 850,000 children who could benefit from such classes for the handicapped, slow learners or exceptionally bright.

"We need 1,000 more professional people annually to work in special education," said S.J. Bonham, director of the Division of Special Education. The most critical shortages are of school psychologists and speech and hearing therapists, he said.

Among other business, the board:

—Approved formation of a joint vocational school district including Clinton, Fayette and Highland counties. Planned is a $2.4 million school providing 30 vocational courses for 900 to 1,000 students. A .64-mill levy and federal funds are proposed to finance the new school.

—Received a report from board member Ward Miller of Portsmouth on foreign language training in Ohio. Although enrollment in language classes has doubled since 1958, Miller reported, the pecentage of students participating has gone only from 24 to 29 per cent. Schools offering four years of language, he said, had increased from 37 to 156 since 1957.

—Increased transfer of 25.6 acres from Clay Local School District in Scioto County to Portsmouth city schools.

Courses Set; Rescheduling Plan Detailed

The scheduling of courses for the 1967-68 term at East Liverpool High School has been completed by Mrs. Ruth Connor, dean of girls, and Bert Dawson, dean of boys.

When the scheduling was carried out it was on the assumption that all courses would result in passing grades.

But, any student who fails a course must remain in school after receiving his report card June 8 in order to be rescheduled, the deans pointed out. This means the student will be required to find transportation home other than the school buses, which will leave at dismissal.

If the student does not remain to consult with the deans about revisions, the scheduling will be done as the deans see fit, it was explained.

Each student will receive a postcard in the late summer announcing his or her schedule. Although changes are not encouraged, they can be made if there is a good reason.

The request must be made within one week after the schedule is received. All changes must be submitted in person by the student at the principal's office.

No changes will be made after Aug. 18, approximately two weeks prior to the opening of the new term.

Bible Class Eyes Addition To Hall At Newell Church

The John Wesley Bible Class of the Newell Methodist Church named a committee Monday night to study the cost of building a proposed second-floor addition to the Fellowship Hall.

Harry Skeels presided. Prayer was led by Oral McGown.

The building committee includes Skeels, George McIntosh and Barton McIntosh.

Skeels announced the class will conduct the Sunday School Mother's Day program and will meet Thursday night at 7:30 in the church to make final plans and hold a practice session.

Lunch was served nine by George Wilson and Skeels.

The next meeting will be June 12.

Rogers Firemen Set Youth Dance As Drive Benefit

ROGERS — Plans for a record hop for the benefit of the "Dollars For Scholars" drive were made by Rogers volunteer firemen Monday night at the station.

The teen - age dance will be held May 17 at the station. Firemen and Mrs. Ruth Jenkins, area publicity chairman for the "Dollars" drive, will be in charge.

Robert Clark, president, led a discussion on continuation of the record hops on Wednesday nights and it was agreed to continue sponsoring them if sufficient students attend.

Herbert Myers of Signal was accepted as a new member on a 30-day probation period.

David Burson was named chairman for the third annual firemen's fair July 20-22. Dennis Deems will be assistant chairman, and Chief Harley Rice will be parade marshal.

The Auxiliary will be in charge of the food tent.

Clark announced work will be conducted each Monday night at the firemen's lot in preparation for the fair.

The next meeting will be June 10.

Ohio Man Acquitted Of Perjury Charges

CLEVELAND (AP)—Paul E. Lyons, 30, was acquitted after a six-day trial by a common pleas court jury Monday of perjury charges in connection with the 1965 murder trial of his fellow ironworker Alan E. Walch.

Lyons had provided an alibi for Walch, acquitted of the murder of tavern owner Ben Feigenbaum. Lyons and his lawyer contended the perjury charges were engineered by the Cuyahoga County prosecutor's office as "vindictive retaliation."

Ambridge JP Backs Plan

Shafer Reports 'Success' On Convention Proposal

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer reported today "surprising success, so far," in his efforts to convince justices of the peace to support the constitutional convention referendum.

Shafer said, however, that "a hard core is still out to kill (constitutional) reform at the polls next Tuesday." The referendum question and eight proposed amendments to the 93-year-old state charter are on the primary ballot.

The governor said that slightly more than 200 members of the minor judiciary have responded to a letter inviting their support in the convention campaign. The letter was signed by Rep. Joseph P. Rigby, R-Allegheny, a Pittsburgh alderman who agreed to serve as chairman of a minor judiciary committee supporting reform, he said.

"Responses are running about 50-50, with half (of the JPs) agreeing to support the calling of a convention, and the other half usually very bitterly opposed," Shafer said.

The minor judiciary traditionally has opposed the convention method of reform, Shafer noted, because it has feared that a convention would abolish the JP system.

Shafer quoted one Ambridge JP as writing, "This is my 13th year in office...and I am going to be one justice of the peace who will do everything to help pass the convention."

The negative response, Shafer said, has been equally determined: A Pipersville JP simply scrawled the word "nuts" on the letter he received and returned it; another JP in Youngsville wrote back, "You are barking up the wrong tree."

Support, meanwhile, was offered by a professional group for another Shafer program on the primary ballot, a $500 million bond issue for land and water conservation.

Robert W. Pierson, president of the Pennsylvania chapter of the American Society of Landscape Architects, said today his organization is conducting a mail campaign urging voter support of the question.

"These bonds to be voted on at the May 16 primary will correct the land and water problems of the past and prepare Pennsylvania for future growth," Pierson said.

On Monday, the Committee for Nine Yes Votes, a formal group backing the constitutional drive, announced formation of a "truth squad" to counter, it said, any false claims presented by the opponents of revision.

Its director, former State Atty. Gen. William A. Schnader of Philadelphia, said the "truth squad" is going to "make sure that the people are not taken in" by the tactics of the opponents.

Others comprising the "truth squad," the committee said, will be:

Pittsburgh Motorist Forfeits $57 Bond

A Pittsburgh man forfeited a $57.50 appearance bond Monday afternoon in the court of Justice of the Peace Lloyd Nalley of Newell.

Francis J. Whitman Jr., 50, was charged April 28 by Constable Harold Davis when the officer reported he saw a car driven by the man strike a tractor-trailer rig and continue east on Route 30. Davis halted the driver in a parking lot about a half-mile from the scene of the wreck.

Whitman's hearing had been set for Saturday, but he was granted a continuance until Monday.

Four Injured At Rogers In 'Chain' Crash

Four young Wellsville women escaped with only minor cuts and bruises when their car was rammed from behind by another auto and hammered into the rear of a halted bus at Rogers Monday.

Twenty - five passengers on the bus — headed for an Episcopal Church event in Youngstown — escaped injury in the mishap on Route 7 at the railroad crossing in the village.

Rogers Police Chief Sidney Cowan said the Inter - City Bus Co. vehicle operated by John V. Young of East Palestine R. D. had halted at the tracks in compliance with PUCO regulations.

A 1964 auto operated by Miss Nora Lee Amato of 1227 Commerce St., Wellsville, also headed north, stopped behind the bus.

Richard Ray Schilling of Warren, headed north in a 1965 sedan, did not halt and his car struck the rear of the other auto, knocking it into the rear of the bus. The mishap occurred at 5:35 p. m.

Miss Amato suffered minor cuts of the face and nose. Three passengers in her car — all her sisters — also received minor injuries: Miss Marguerite Amato of 1227 Commerce St., bruised arm; Mrs. John Pickring of Parshall St., laceration of the leg, and Mrs. Rose Sullivan of Parshall St., lacerations of the leg.

All were treated at City Hospital and released.

Schilling was charged with failure to stop in the assured clear distance and posted a bond for a hearing Monday before Rogers Mayor Glenn Rhodes.

The young woman's car was damaged heavily, Chief Cowan said. There was moderate damage to the front of Schilling's auto and about $500 damage to the rear of the bus.

The bus had been chartered by St. Stephen's Episcopal Church for a trip to St. John's Episcopal Church in Youngstown, Young said.

He said there were about 25 passengers from East Liverpool, Wellsville and Midland aboard.

Federally Financed, Broad Powers

Ohio Board Of Education Sets Urban Commission

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —A Commission on Urban School Development, federally financed and with broad responsibility powers for helping cities solve their mounting educational problems, was created by the State Board of Education Monday.

"This won't be just window dressing or a study group of delay action," State Supt. of Public Instruction Martin Essex assured.

He said it would investigate curriculum, occupational and vocational programs, school planning, use of recreation areas for school training and establishment of supplementary centers for arts and sciences.

The commission also will deal with the problem of urban racial imbalances in schools "although this isn't the central reason for its establishment," Essex said.

To be set up by midsummer, the commission of 11 members —laymen and school officials— will work with a salaried consultant.

If successful, it could lead to eventual creation of a separate state department of education for city schools, Essex said.

The state superintendent told the board that two-thirds of Ohio's 2,230,000 public school children live in cities, 25 per cent in the eight metropolitan centers.

"They have borne the brunt of the complex problems of population mobility, unemployment and cultural change," Essex said. "With the fourth largest school enrollment in the nation, Ohio cannot afford to jeopardize future progress and economic development by avoiding its urban challenges."

—Received a report from board member Ward Miller of Portsmouth on foreign language training in Ohio. Although enrollment in language classes has doubled since 1958, Miller reported, the pecentage of students participating has gone only from 24 to 29 per cent. Schools offering four years of language, he said, had increased from 37 to 156 since 1957.

—Increased transfer of 25.6 acres from Clay Local School District in Scioto County to Portsmouth city schools.

Out Of The Air

By JOHN HORN

A Visit To Rehearsal

Let no one kid you about the glamor of an actress' life.

I went to the Lower East Side to visit Colleen Dewhurst in rehearsal. One of the truly fine actresses of the American stage, she played a TV double header within a week: Arthur Miller's "The Crucible" on CBS Thursday, and Colette's "In My Mother's House" on the National Educational Television network Sunday in New York and various dates elsewhere.

-:-

THE LOWER EAST SIDE is that depressed area where great muck-raking pioneers in photography and sociology, like Jacob Riis and Lewis Hine, found living conditions deplorable 67 years ago. The neighborhood has retrogressed since.

Along 2nd Ave., one of the posh boulevards, the Yiddish theater once flourished, and some outstanding Jewish restaurants still survive.

Otherwise the scene is inartistic and chaotic when not offensive. The streets are filthy and crowded. A picket line of comedians parades before a burlesque house, where presumably the girls, as well as the paint, are peeling inside.

-:-

BEATS AND HIPPIES in rebellious long hair, beards and filthy clothes mingle with the plain poor and bewildered sightseers. Panhandlers accost and abuse passersby. Sodden drunks, their dirty faces bruised or bloody, sway precariously in the middle of the sidewalk.

Going to the Central Plaza rehearsal hall, a vacant echoing ballroom, or out to a nearby cheap Chinese restaurant for lunch, Miss Dewhurst daily passed this astonishing scene which cried out for Hogarth memorialization. And she passed it without batting a smoky-gray eye.

Over Oriental vegetables and seafood one day during her Colette rehearsal — "I've always loved Channel 13. It is NET? What's the difference? When you have money, you can afford to play for educational television.

-:-

"I'M ALWAYS looking for something. My agent said it was Colette. I said yes over the phone" — Miss Dewhurst was given dealer's choice in conversation and let to wander at will within the context of how she used television and how television used her.

Time was short, and such an arrangement seemed best.

She was without makeup, in sweater and slacks. Her hair flowed graying down her back. When not prompted by a voluble press agent — whereupon dutiful references were made to "The Crucible" — she spoke in low, intense bursts, almost stream of consciousness, dropping first names without their last, as if holding a private conversation with herself.

"I do guest shots in series. I've done the Caseys, the Kildares, the FBI. Big Valley was the latest. I do them when I'm not doing something else.

-:-

"WHAT THEY WANT from you — and they get — is that you're fast, you learn lines, you're professional in attitude, you try to do the best you can in the circumstances.

"The circumstances are impossible.

"Your agent describes your scenes on the phone. I hate to be typed. I like a part that's different. You arrive in Hollywood and at the hotel desk you're handed a revised script, a different script.

"At 5 a.m., you're at the studio, meet a man who says, 'I'm your director. We're going to start with Scene 6 and go 10 pages. It's the scene where, married 15 years, you tell your husband you're through.'

"You look at the stranger who's playing your husband. It has got to be impossible.

"Then people fuss over you. Let me look at your makeup, dear. Let me touch up your hair. Let me do anything for you. I'm a goddess, obviously. I'm flattered constantly to keep me happy. No wonder out there there are people they admire and subordinates.

-:-

"THE WHOLE THING is a joke. Through tape and film my children can see 'The Crucible' years from now. I want them to say proudly, 'That's my mother! That's my father!'

There was talk of other things. Of director Jose Quintero and a new play she'll be in next fall.

Mention was made of other cast members — Cathleen Nesbitt, Tuesday Weld, Melvyn Douglas, Fritz Weaver and of Henry Jones telling Catherine Burns: "I feel sorry for you. You're so young and probably never again will you ever meet a cast like this."

At no time was George C. Scott named. Her former husband, father of her two children, and they play man and wife in the play about the 1962 Salem witchcraft trials.

Band, Orchestra Event

Reign At Dance

Beth Thornton was crowned queen and Gary Martin king during the 35th annual band and orchestra banquet and formal dance Saturday night at the East Liverpool Country Club, sponsored by the ELHS Band and Orchestra Mothers. The theme was "Sound of Music."

Judy Silliance and Dan Morgan were the first attendants and Pam Mackall and Clyde Gaston second attendants.

DON ADAMS, director, was master of ceremonies and introduced the 44 senior members by limerick. A gift was presented each of the members by Mrs. Thomas Snow, president of the Band Mothers. Gifts also were presented to Adams from the students by Mike Heiney. Jerri Russell presented Mrs. Donald Fish a gift from the orchestra and Mrs. Snow received a gift from the Band Mothers.

The program was turned over to Bob Fannin, band president, who introduced last year's recipients of the following awards and they presented them to this year's winners — "Foot of the Year," to Jim Flora from Bill Frail; "Mouth of the Year," to Robbie Hammond by Mike Heiney, and the "Karl" award, to Ron Givens by Dana Stoddard.

Last will and testament by the seniors was read by Fannin and "Orchids and Onions" was presented by Phil Talbott.

An original skit was presented by Penny Rogers, Beth Thornton, Fannin, Gary Martin and Jim Gritton. The director gave comments and thanks to the seniors.

GUESTS were Mr. and Mrs. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pelini, Paul Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fisk, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Lynch, Robert Shankovich, officers of the sponsoring group and their husbands and senior parents.

Doors were draped in blue and white net and silver glitter instruments. This theme also was carried out in the drop ceiling. The side lights were adorned in the same motiff. The mantels were adorned with palms and ferns, net and large gold records and the balcony was decorated with blue and white stripes with black notes, and instruments on silver glitter.

The table decorations were centerpieces of miniature band stands with miniature band, pink styrofoam pianos with two pink tapers. Pink and blue net separated the students from the parents.

The guest table featured a flower arrangement in pink, blue, yellow and white and pink tapers in silver candleabra. The flowers were presented to Mrs. Adams.

Favors were colored drums complete with sticks. Programs featured white with blue lettering and the name cards were held by small blue music stands made of pipe cleaners.

Music for dancing was provided by Del Sinchak from 9 to midnight. The grand march was led by the band officers. About 150 couples participated. Punch was served.

Chaperons for the evening were band parents.

Lunar Orbiter 4 Due Pictures Of Moon Thursday

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Lunar Orbiter 4, in the desired orbit around the moon, will start Thursday taking pictures of the moon Thursday that are expected to be 10 times sharper than any taken with earth telescopes.

The 600-pound spacecraft, launched Thursday from Cape Kennedy, Fla., swung into the near-perfect orbit Monday after a braking rocket was fired for eight minutes.

The high point of the orbit is what scientists wanted — 3,789 miles above the moon's surface. The low point is 1,677 miles — just three miles off the predicted 1,647 miles.

Orbiter 4 is circling the moon roughly from pole to pole every 12 hours and one minute. Scientists say it will photograph 90 per cent of the surface.

Other Orbiters still are circling the moon and radioing back information, although they are no longer taking pictures.

Solution Offered To Check Larvae

LISBON — European pine sawfly larvae are active in Columbiana County, according to Joe D. Pittman, county extension agent for agriculture.

He recommends one - half gallon of 25 per cent emulsifiable concentrate DDT per 5 to 10 gallons of water (per acre) for use in mist blower or aerial spraying, or one - half gallon of 25 per cent emulsifiable concentrate DDT in 100 gallons of water for other sprayers.

A 5 per cent DDT dust gives good results for the grower who has only a few smaller trees.

Pittman says now is the time to treat stumps for pine weevil control. All solid stumps should be sprayed, using one gallon of BHC and 5 to 10 gallons of spray oil.

Anyone using these material should follow all precautions on the labels, Pittman emphasized.

Ohio Man, Woman Indicted For Murder

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—William A. Terry, 23, Hamilton, was indicted by the Butler County grand jury Monday on a first-degree murder charge in the fatal beating of his 21-month old niece, Heide Miller. Terry, babysitting March 22, allegedly beat the child when she began crying.

The jury also indicted Mrs. Joanne Thurmond, 33, Middletown, on a second-degree murder charge in the shooting death last December of Oscar Johnson, 33, Middletown.

Out Of The Air

By JOHN HORN

A Visit To Rehearsal

Let no one kid you about the glamor of an actress' life.

I went to the Lower East Side to visit Colleen Dewhurst in rehearsal. One of the truly fine actresses of the American stage, she played a TV double header within a week: Arthur Miller's "The Crucible" on CBS Thursday, and Colette's "In My Mother's House" on the National Educational Television network Sunday in New York and various dates elsewhere.

-:-

THE LOWER EAST SIDE is that depressed area where great muck-raking pioneers in photography and sociology, like Jacob Riis and Lewis Hine, found living conditions deplorable 67 years ago. The neighborhood has retrogressed since.

Along 2nd Ave., one of the posh boulevards, the Yiddish theater once flourished, and some outstanding Jewish restaurants still survive.

Otherwise the scene is inartistic and chaotic when not offensive. The streets are filthy and crowded. A picket line of comedians parades before a burlesque house, where presumably the girls, as well as the paint, are peeling inside.

-:-

BEATS AND HIPPIES in rebellious long hair, beards and filthy clothes mingle with the plain poor and bewildered sightseers. Panhandlers accost and abuse passersby. Sodden drunks, their dirty faces bruised or bloody, sway precariously in the middle of the sidewalk.

Going to the Central Plaza rehearsal hall, a vacant echoing ballroom, or out to a nearby cheap Chinese restaurant for lunch, Miss Dewhurst daily passed this astonishing scene which cried out for Hogarth memorialization. And she passed it without batting a smoky-gray eye.

Over Oriental vegetables and seafood one day during her Colette rehearsal — "I've always loved Channel 13. It is NET? What's the difference? When you have money, you can afford to play for educational television.

-:-

"I'M ALWAYS looking for something. My agent said it was Colette. I said yes over the phone" — Miss Dewhurst was given dealer's choice in conversation and let to wander at will within the context of how she used television and how television used her.

Time was short, and such an arrangement seemed best.

She was without makeup, in sweater and slacks. Her hair flowed graying down her back. When not prompted by a voluble press agent — whereupon dutiful references were made to "The Crucible" — she spoke in low, intense bursts, almost stream of consciousness, dropping first names without their last, as if holding a private conversation with herself.

"I do guest shots in series. I've done the Caseys, the Kildares, the FBI. Big Valley was the latest. I do them when I'm not doing something else.

-:-

"WHAT THEY WANT from you — and they get — is that you're fast, you learn lines, you're professional in attitude, you try to do the best you can in the circumstances.

"The circumstances are impossible.

"Your agent describes your scenes on the phone. I hate to be typed. I like a part that's different. You arrive in Hollywood and at the hotel desk you're handed a revised script, a different script.

"At 5 a.m., you're at the studio, meet a man who says, 'I'm your director. We're going to start with Scene 6 and go 10 pages. It's the scene where, married 15 years, you tell your husband you're through.'

"You look at the stranger who's playing your husband. It has got to be impossible.

"Then people fuss over you. Let me look at your makeup, dear. Let me touch up your hair. Let me do anything for you. I'm a goddess, obviously. I'm flattered constantly to keep me happy. No wonder out there there are people they admire and subordinates.

-:-

"THE WHOLE THING is a joke. Through tape and film my children can see 'The Crucible' years from now. I want them to say proudly, 'That's my mother! That's my father!'

There was talk of other things. Of director Jose Quintero and a new play she'll be in next fall.

Mention was made of other cast members — Cathleen Nesbitt, Tuesday Weld, Melvyn Douglas, Fritz Weaver and of Henry Jones telling Catherine Burns: "I feel sorry for you. You're so young and probably never again will you ever meet a cast like this."

At no time was George C. Scott named. Her former husband, father of her two children, and they play man and wife in the play about the 1962 Salem witchcraft trials.

Band, Orchestra Event

Reign At Dance

Beth Thornton was crowned queen and Gary Martin king during the 35th annual band and orchestra banquet and formal dance Saturday night at the East Liverpool Country Club, sponsored by the ELHS Band and Orchestra Mothers. The theme was "Sound of Music."

Judy Silliance and Dan Morgan were the first attendants and Pam Mackall and Clyde Gaston second attendants.

DON ADAMS, director, was master of ceremonies and introduced the 44 senior members by limerick. A gift was presented each of the members by Mrs. Thomas Snow, president of the Band Mothers. Gifts also were presented to Adams from the students by Mike Heiney. Jerri Russell presented Mrs. Donald Fish a gift from the orchestra and Mrs. Snow received a gift from the Band Mothers.

The program was turned over to Bob Fannin, band president, who introduced last year's recipients of the following awards and they presented them to this year's winners — "Foot of the Year," to Jim Flora from Bill Frall; "Mouth of the Year," to Robbie Hammond by Mike Heiney, and the "Karl" award, to Ron Givens by Dana Stoddard.

Last will and testament by the seniors was read by Fannin and "Orchids and Onions" was presented by Phil Talbott.

An original skit was presented by Penny Rogers, Beth Thornton, Fannin, Gary Martin and Jim Gritton. The director gave comments and thanks to the seniors.

GUESTS were Mr. and Mrs. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pelini, Paul Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fisk, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Lynch, Robert Shankovich, officers of the sponsoring group and their husbands and senior parents.

Doors were draped in blue and white net and silver glitter instruments. This theme also was carried out in the drop ceiling. The side lights were adorned in the same motiff. The mantels were adorned with palms and ferns, net and large gold records and the balcony was decorated with blue and white stripes with black notes, and instruments on silver glitter.

The table decorations were centerpieces of miniature band stands with miniature band, pink styrofoam pianos with two pink tapers. Pink and blue net separated the students from the parents.

The guest table featured a flower arrangement in pink, blue, yellow and white and pink tapers in silver candleabra. The flowers were presented to Mrs. Adams.

Favors were colored drums complete with sticks. Programs featured white with blue lettering and the name cards were held by small blue music stands made of pipe cleaners.

Music for dancing was provided by Del Sinchak from 9 to midnight. The grand march was led by the band officers. About 150 couples participated. Punch was served.

Chaperons for the evening were band parents.

Elmer Rice, 74, Playwright, Dies

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP)—Playwright Elmer Rice, one of the American stage's most prolific, peppery and controversial figures, died in a Southampton hospital Monday. He was 74.

Rice suffered a heart attack a week ago while en route to Europe on the liner France. Later pneumonia set in. His third wife, the former Barbara Marshall of Boston, was with him.

Rice, who saw the theater as a platform to urge social reform, believed the Broadway stage need not "be devoted exclusively to gags, wisecracks, tap-dancing, knockabout farce, fustian romance and polite adulteries," he once wrote.

His "Street Scene," which won the Pulitzer Prize in 1928, dramatized the brutalizing effect of slum life on the men and women who lived it. Rice said the play was rejected by "practically every manager in New York" until William A. Brady finally produced it.

Priest Accuses Eagles, Moose Of Racial Bias

PITTSBURGH (AP — A Roman Catholic priest has accused the Eagles and Moose national fraternal organizations of racial discrimination, saying they bar Negroes from membership.

The Rev. Donald McIlvane called on Roman Catholic laymen and priests to resign from the two organizations and appealed to the Pittsburgh diocese to prohibit use of Moose or Eagles facilities by Roman Catholic organizations.

Target of Father McIlvane's censure Monday were membership application forms of the two groups which he said restrict membership to the white race only.

"We call this requirement despicable, odious and immoral," said the Rev. McIlvane, vice president of the Catholic Interracial Council and administrator of St. Richard's Roman Catholic Church in Pittsburgh's predominantly Negro Hill District.

He described as "evil" what he said was the Moose's application which prohibited membership if the candidate was married to a non-white.

A spokesman for the Eagles in Pittsburgh said, "We haven't seen his statement and until we do we don't have any comment." Moose representatives were unavailable for comment.

However, an Eagles member who said he was a Roman Catholic said, "There are at least 50 other organizations which have the same rules. Why doesn't he name them? Why is he picking on the Eagles and Moose?"

Father McIlvane said, "These two organizations include ordinary working people, they enroll the average Catholic. We feel he should be friendly to Negroes, that whites and Negroes should meet together, discuss things over a drink."

Driver Cited After Mishap

A city motorist was cited after his car rammed the rear of another, causing injuries to two persons, Monday at 9:04 p. m. on St. Clair Ave. at Blackmore St.

The crash involved cars operated by Frank J. Forzano, 59, of Hardin Ave. and Paul Arnoff, 46, of Richardson Ave.

Forzano's car struck the rear of the Arnoff vehicle at the intersection. Forzano told Patrolman W. F. Copestick he was northbound on St. Clair at about 30 miles an hour when the car in front of him turned, put on the brakes and then turned toward the center of the road.

Arnoff told pouce he had halted to wait until oncoming traffic passed so he could make a left turn onto Blackmore St.

Heavy damage resulted to the front of Forzano's 1958 sedan, while Arnoff's 1960 sedan was damaged in the rear.

Forzano was cited for failure to stop in the assured clear distance.

He was fined $25 and costs after pleading guilty to the charge at a hearing this morning in Municipal Court.

All the injured were in the Arnoff vehicle. The driver, his wife, Mrs. Roberta Arnoff, 42, and their daughters, Sharon, 11, and Maureen, 5, were taken to City Hospital in the police cruiser.

Arnoff had a strained neck and his wife strained back muscles. The children apparently were not hurt.

A car operated by Jason K. Hendershot 55, of 142 W. 2nd St. was damaged in a hit-skip accident Monday at 6:03 p. m. at 3rd and Broadway.

Hendershot told Patrolman Copestick he had halted at the traffic light and was struck in the rear by another vehicle.

The other driver backed up and drove away without stopping, Hendershot told police. He said he can identify the driver of the other car and will file charges.

His wife, Mrs. Clara B. Hendershot, 55, was treated at City Hospital for multiple contusions suffered in the mishap.

Cleanup Set At Salineville

SALINEVILLE — The annual spring cleanup was set for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday when Council met Monday night.

The schedule follows:

Wednesday — West end of town to the Church of Christ on Main St.

Thursday — Church of Christ to the Salineville Motor Co., including Schoolhouse Hill.

Friday — John St., Foundry Hill, Station and Twiss Hill.

Operations will begin each day at 10 a. m. and trash must be placed in containers at the curb.

The fire department was granted permission to build a storage room at the rear of the station.

The improvement committee will meet Monday evening to inspect village properties in need of cleaning.

A complaint was received of a clogged sewer on High St. and a request made for a catch basin to be installed on W. Main St. Both were referred to the street committee.

Ordinances were ordered for the following levies: Playground, ½-mill, fire hydrants, 1 mill, and cemetery, 2 mills.

Bills totaling $1,081 were paid.

Mayor Stanley Fitch presided.

The next meeting will be May 26.

Chamber Group Plans Cleanup

Plans for Chamber of Commerce participation in the annual East Liverpool "Cleanup Campaign" were outlined during a meeting of the civic affairs committee Monday at the Chamber office.

Repainting of street trash barrels and distribution of posters and stickers promoting the drive are planned as part of the city campaign.

Tom Babb is chairman of the Chamber subcommittee in charge.

Art Doak, committee chairman, presided. Discussion was held on city transportation and the need for a federal coordinator to direct East Liverpool development and federal assistance projects.

Don Eckert explained the role such a coordinator could have in development.

No Jail For Slim Jims

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) — The Butler County Jail is having its cell bars placed closer together. The other night a 15-year-old boy, only 70 pounds, squeezed through the bars of his cell and slid down some blankets tied together to freedom.

3 New Teachers Named By Board At Wellsville

Three new teachers were appointed during Monday night's meeting of the Wellsville Board of Education.

Patricia Pisel, who will graduate from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, was hired to teach junior high mathematics next fall at a begining salary of $5,250.

Stephen Laber of East Palestine was hired as a junior high social studies teacher at a salary of $5,450. He attended New Mexico State College.

Robert Westcott, a graduating senior at West Liberty State College who has been working as substitute band director at Wellsville, was hired for the next school year at a salary of $5,250.

The resignation of John Tuttle, elementary and secondary school art teacher, was accepted effective June 9.

Supt. Lowell Myers said teaching vacancies still exist in many fields, including English, Spanish, chemistry, physics and elementary education.

Myers announced his appointment to the Federal Relations Committee of the Ohio Association of School Administrators. The post will involve study into the role of federal activities in the school systems.

A countywide board of education meeting was announced for Thursday in Lisbon to discuss a completed survey on the need in Columbiana County for vocational schooling. The plan would provide for vocational courses at schools in either end of the county.

The board will appear at a public meeting of the Department of Liquor Control May 17 in the Council chambers to protest the issuance of a C-2 carryout permit to Hazel Sell of 925 Main St. An application for a similar permit has been made by Anna Marie Haynes of 1800 Clark Ave., which the board agreed also to protest. Both objections are on the grounds that the establishments are within 500 feet of school buildings.

Ferrall reminded members that the mere fact of a firm being near the schools has been ruled insufficient grounds to deny an applicant a liquor license.

Approval was given to a 1967 Tittle II federal grant totaling $4,319.12.

Russell Dysert and Dr. Janis Lauva were unable to attend last night's session.

Boys To Face Hearings For Barge Thefts

Six juveniles implicated in theft and vandalism of property at the barge dock of the S-H Bell Co. in Little England will receive hearings June 1 at 2:30 p.m. before Juvenile Judge Louis Tobin at Lisbon.

City Patroman S. E. Hayes, in a report filed today, said the investigation started more than a week ago.

The shipping firm, with headquarters at 2217 Michigan Ave., has been complaining for almost a year of thefts and vandalism at the dock area.

Numerous lanterns used to light the barges have been stolen and rope used to tie them has been destroyed.

Hayes said the loss became greater in the past month and an investigation over a week ago showed 100 feet of nylon rope valued at $1 per foot had been cut loose from a dock area. Some of the rope was used to make a "Tarzan" swing.

One of the boys lost his wallet, at the scene, giving police the first break in the case.

Some of the lanterns have been recovered, poice said.

Institute Set On Thursday

The nursing service and staff education committees of City Hospital will present an institute on "Diseases of the Chest" Thursday at the Metsch-Harker Nurses Residence.

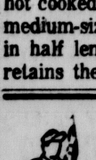

The all-day program will begin with a coffee hour at 9.

The program will include a lecture at 10:30 by Dr. A. S. Fisher on "Cystic Fibrosis." At 1:30 p. m., Dr. Allen O'Brien will discuss (Some Aspects of) "Nursing Care of Thoracic and Neurosurgical Patients."

Discussion periods and the screening of a film will complete the program. All tri-state and visiting nurses are invited to attend, with no reservations necessary.

Arrangements may be made with Mrs. Sarah E. Davis, director of nursing service; Mrs. Helen Bemis, chairman of the nursing service committee, and Mrs. Senja Vaughn, chairman of the staff education committee.

Youth Unhurt In Car Upset

An East Palestine youth escaped injury Monday night when his car overturned on its top along Route 558 about a mile east of Route 7, the Highway Patrol at Lisbon reported.

Albert Lester Jr., 18, of East Palestine R.D. 1 lost control of his 1953 coach on a curve about 6:15, and the auto went off the left side, came back on the road and off the right side and overturned.

There was moderate damage to the left side and top. Lester was charged with speeding.

No one was injured in a two-car collision on Route 428 about two miles north of East Liverpool at 8:15 p. m., officers said.

A 1964 sedan operated by Belva Mae Foreman, 45, of R.D. 2 was struck in the side by a 1947 sedan driven by Earl D. Haney, 39, of Brighton Ave., East Liverpool.

The patrol said the woman was attempting to make a left turn as Haney attempted to pass.

Priest Accuses Eagles, Moose Of Racial Bias

PITTSBURGH (AP — A Roman Catholic priest has accused the Eagles and Moose national fraternal organizations of racial discrimination, saying they bar Negroes from membership.

The Rev. Donald McIlvane called on Roman Catholic laymen and priests to resign from the two organizations and appealed to the Pittsburgh diocese to prohibit use of Moose or Eagles facilities by Roman Catholic organizations.

Target of Father McIlvane's censure Monday were membership application forms of the two groups which he said restrict membership to the white race only.

"We call this requirement despicable, odious and immoral," said the Rev. McIlvane, vice president of the Catholic Interracial Council and administrator of St. Richard's Roman Catholic Church in Pittsburgh's predominantly Negro Hill District.

He described as "evil" what he said was the Moose's application which prohibited membership if the candidate was married to a non-white.

A spokesman for the Eagles in Pittsburgh said, "We haven't seen his statement and until we do we don't have any comment." Moose representatives were unavailable for comment.

However, an Eagles member who said he was a Roman Catholic said, "There are at least 50 other organizations which have the same rules. Why doesn't he name them? Why is he picking on the Eagles and Moose?"

Father McIlvane said, "These two organizations include ordinary working people, they enroll the average Catholic. We feel he should be friendly to Negroes, that whites and Negroes should meet together, discuss things over a drink."

Council Committee Suggests Move

'Rounding Off' Corners Studied At Lisbon Square

LISBON — Council's street committee Monday night recommended "rounding off" two corners at the intersection of Lincoln Way and Market St. on the Square.

Chairman Robert Kelm said the State Highway Department suggests changing the radius of the northeast corner to a minimum of 50 feet, and possibly 60 feet, and the radius of the northwest corner to 30 feet.

Kelm said the state made a traffic count recently at the intersection and found the northeast corner the busiest of the four.

The count showed that 3,107 vehicles traveled west on Lincoln Way (U.S. Route 30) in a 24-hour period and that 1,203 of these turned north onto Market St. (Route 45), and 169 of those turning north were big trucks.

—:—

STATE MEN said the streets through the Square are wide enough and changing the radius at the two corners should speed up traffic and keep truck wheels from running up on the sidewalk.

Council earlier this year proposed widening the two streets through the Square and putting in new sidewalks.

However, in a recent meeting with Jack Kimball, new deputy director of the Highway Department Division 11 at New Philadelphia, Kelm, Bill Mattix and Mayor Dean Stockman were told the state has no money for this project.

Kelm said the solution recommended by Kimball is fairly simple and should not be too expensive. He will present cost estimates at the next meeting May 22.

Council last night adopted a resolution asking the Highway Department to consider "scalping" Route 30 from the east to the west edge of Lisbon and put down a new pavement. Kelm said Kimball told him such a project may take three or four years to go through.

Council also voted to:

Buy two steel nets for the blacktop tennis courts at Swimming Pool Park and have the courts patched and given a seal coat.

Pay Kelm, Mattix and Stockman $35 each for expenses for last Thursday's trip to Division 11 headquarters.

Ask Division 11 to make a traffic count at the junction of Routes 164 and 517 north of the fairgrounds to see if a traffic light is needed.

Signed a contract with Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., to pay approximately $1.40 a month for lighting an old city of Philadelphia gas street lamp installed by the fountain on the Square. The lamp is in operation. William Hochradel, Salem area manager for the gas company, brought the contract to Council.

Clerk - treasurer John Ebert was authorized to attend a meeting of the Ohio Municipal Clerks Association May 25 at Columbus.

Fire Chief Thirl Flugan and Frank Morlan and Harold Adams of the fire department attended. They will work with Council's Fire Committee regarding specifications for a new truck firemen hope to buy.

ADAMS submitted the firemen's ambulance report for April. It showed the ambulance responded to six calls and there was only one donation — $10 — for the service. The department spent $315, which included ambulance maintenance and supplies and $294 for liability insurance for members using it.

Harold Pickering of the Merchants Committee of the Chamber of Commerce asked Council's help in drafting legislation requiring solicitors of donations to be screened by the Chamber before approaching merchants.

Pickering said groups from miles around solicit businessmen for advertising and donations of all kinds. Mayor Stockman directed Solicitor Joseph Baronzzi to work with the committee on this request.

Other visitors were Floyd Lower, Richard Dunn and Willis Coleman and William Robinson, who are Republican nominees for Council at the Nov. 7 election.

2 Of Mightiest Queens To Rule Waves Near End

LONDON (AP — The reigns of two of the mightiest queens that ever ruled the waves are drawing to an end.

The Cunard Line announced Monday that it will withdraw the 81,273- ton Queen Mary from service at the end of this year and her 83,997- ton sister ship, the Queen Elizabeth, a year later. The queens were the largest passenger ships in maritime history.

Increasing airline competition has been hurting the liners, and they have been losing $2.1 million a year. Cunard has not decided whether to scrap or sell the two ships but said it would not allow them to be used competitively or for any "undignified purpose."

A single successor to the pair will be launched Sept. 20. The unnamed "Q4" will enter service in 1969.

One Of Andrews Singing Sisters Dies Of Cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Laverne Andrews, eldest of the singing Andrews Sisters, died Monday of cancer. She had been ill for eight months. She was 51.

Her sisters, Maxene and Patti, learned of the death while they were fulfilling a nightclub engagement at Lake Tahoe, 500 miles to the north.

Laverne's husband of 18 years, Lou Rogers, a wholesale liquor dealer, was at his wife's bedside in their West Los Angeles home when she died. They had no children.

Carrying on the group's 35-year performing tradition, the younger sisters had appeared without Laverne for nearly a year.

The sisters made almost 900 records—of which 60 million copies have been sold—since they became successful in the 1930s.

Chester Councilmen Hit County Fund Handling

During a street cleaning discussion at Monday night's meeting, Chester councilmen expressed dissatisfaction with the way Hancock County funds are being handled.

The ciriticism developed when Councilman Charles Kology told Percy Willison, chairman of the Street Committee, that he still would like to have the streets in his ward cleaned.

He noted that the Fairview Rd. and Pennsylvania Ave. were especially in need of cleaning. Willison agreed, but said Commissioner Lester Bishop has been unable to do the job because of the recent heavy rainfall.

Kology commented, "When I went to school we started with one and went to five, but now it seems we start with five and go to one."

He referred to street cleaning which he said went on in Willison's Fifth Ward while his First Ward was neglected. Willison declared it wasn't so.

When council brought up the possibility of having the State Road Commission clean all of the Fairview Rd. and the city pay its share of the bill, Mayor Burton Ward charged that the county funds go to keep the Waterford Park race track road clean, with the rest of the county neglected.

Kology continued the discussion, claiming the county officials represent the race track and no one else. He pointed out residents have voted funds for sheriff's deputies and the cruisers now have 12,000 miles on them, "but it isn't that far to the race track," he went on.

He said "the race track is the only one in the county that gets anything done." "The officials don't represent the whole county," he added.

Man Convicted In Car Theft; Faces New Trial Wednesday

LISBON — A Common Peas Court jury convicted Vernon Etters, 24, of auto theft Monday afternoon. Judge Raymond S. Buzzard deferred sentencing.

The former Lisbon area resident will go to trial Wednesday on a charge of armed robbery of Maurice Young, 38, of Salem R. D. 3.

The defendant last week pleaded guilty to a third indictment returned by the January grand jury — breaking and entering at the Young residence on the Lisbon - Salem Rd.

The state claims all three offenses occurred the morning of Jan. 17 at Young's home, that Etters broke a window to get in the house, waited for Young to return, threatened him with a butcher knife to have a check written for $200, then took Young's 1964 Mercury when the owner ran to a nearby market to call for help.

Etters testified yesterday that Young wrote out the check voluntarily and told him he could take the car if he let him know within three hours where to get it.

Etters admitted he had a butcher knife. He said he was acquainted with Young and intended to ask him for money and the car and planned to use the knife only if Young wouldn't agree. He said he put the knife away when Young told him to take whatever he wanted. Etters said he took some change and a revolver after Young ran to the market.

The defendant admitted under cross -examination he was convicted of auto theft four years ago and pleaded guilty in January to a burglary Dec. 15 at Ferrier's News Agency in Salem.

Etters is serving 1 to 15 years in Ohio Penitentiary for the Ferrier burglary and was returned last week to answer to the three indictments.

Work Session Reset At Chapel For Park

LISBON — A work session rained out last Saturday at Williamsport Chapel in Beaver Creek State Park has been rescheduled for 10 a. m. Saturday.

Van Redpath of Columbiana, chairman of the chapel committee of the Columbiana County Forests and Parks Council, said volunteers are needed to help get the church and grounds ready for the first service of the season at 8:30 a.m. Sunday.

April Activities Listed By Stacey

LISBON — Columbiana County titled 555 new vehicles in April, Clerk of Courts Carl L. Stacey reports in his monthly summary. This compared with 516 in March and 567 in April last year.

The title department issued 4,696 auto titles, 120 duplicate titles, 1,017 memorandums, 81 duplicate memorandums, 1,707 notations of liens, 1,430 cancellations of liens and 1,750 acknowledgments.

Stacey said the title department took in $7,264, of which the county received $5,578 and the state $1,686.

Stacey said his office paid the county treasurer $9,851 in fees collected in Common Pleas Court and the Car Title Department.

The state treasurer received $9,747 from the collection of sales and use tax, $82,941 from the collection of the dealer's tax and $1,155 for inspection certificates.

Seventy-six civil cases were filed last month in Common Pleas Court, compared with 62 in April last year.

4 Windows Smashed In High School Here

Four windows in East Liverpool High School on E. 4th St. were broken at 5:18 a. m. today by two men who fled the scene.

Patrolman Robert Duffy, desk officer, received a call from a man who said two men were breaking the windows.

Officers were dispatched and found that three windows had been knocked out, apparently with a missile, and the fourth by kicking.

Three were on the west side of the building and the other on the north side.

A venetian blind also was damaged, police said.

Council Committee Suggests Move

'Rounding Off' Corners Studied At Lisbon Square

LISBON — Council's street committee Monday night recommended "rounding off" two corners at the intersection of Lincoln Way and Market St. on the Square.

Chairman Robert Kelm said the State Highway Department suggests changing the radius of the northeast corner to a minimum of 50 feet, and possibly 60 feet, and the radius of the northwest corner to 30 feet.

Kelm said the state made a traffic count recently at the intersection and found the northeast corner the busiest of the four.

The count showed that 3,107 vehicles traveled west on Lincoln Way (U.S. Route 30) in a 24-hour period and that 1,203 of these turned north onto Market St. (Route 45), and 169 of those turning north were big trucks.

—:—

STATE MEN said the streets through the Square are wide enough and changing the radius at the two corners should speed up traffic and keep truck wheels from running up on the sidewalk.

Council earlier this year proposed widening the two streets through the Square and putting in new sidewalks.

However, in a recent meeting with Jack Kimball, new deputy director of the Highway Department Division 11 at New Philadelphia, Kelm, Bill Mattix and Mayor Dean Stockman were told the state has no money for this project.

Kelm said the solution recommended by Kimball is fairly simple and should not be too expensive. He will present cost estimates at the next meeting May 22.

Council last night adopted a resolution asking the Highway Department to consider "scalping" Route 30 from the east to the west edge of Lisbon and put down a new pavement. Kelm said Kimball told him such a project may take three or four years to go through.

Council also voted to:

Buy two steel nets for the blacktop tennis courts at Swimming Pool Park and have the courts patched and given a seal coat.

Pay Kelm, Mattix and Stockman $25 each for expenses for last Thursday's trip to Division 11 headquarters.

Ask Division 11 to make a traffic count at the junction of Routes 164 and 517 north of the fairgrounds to see if a traffic light is needed.

Signed a contract with Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., to pay approximately $1.40 a month for lighting an old city of Philadelphia gas street lamp installed by the fountain on the Square. The lamp is in operation. William Hochradel, Salem area manager for the gas company, brought the contract to Council.

Clerk - treasurer John Ebert was authorized to attend a meeting of the Ohio Municipal Clerks Association May 25 at Columbus.

Fire Chief Thirl Flugan and Frank Morlan and Harold Adams of the fire department attended. They will work with Council's Fire Committee regarding specifications for a new truck firemen hope to buy.

ADAMS submitted the firemen's ambulance report for April. It showed the ambulance responded to six calls and there was only one donation — $10 — for the service. The department spent $315, which included ambulance maintenance and supplies and $294 for liability insurance for members using it.

Harold Pickering of the Merchants Committee of the Chamber of Commerce asked Council's help in drafting legislation requiring solicitors of donations to be screened by the Chamber before approaching merchants.

Pickering said groups from miles around solicit businessmen for advertising and donations of all kinds. Mayor Stockman directed Solicitor Joseph Baronzzi to work with the committee on this request.

Other visitors were Floyd Lower, Richard Dunn and Willis Coleman and William Robinson, who are Republican nominees for Council at the Nov. 7 election.

Palestine VFW Slates Carnival And Parade

2 Of Mightiest Queens To Rule Waves Near End

LONDON (AP — The reigns of two of the mightiest queens that ever ruled the waves are drawing to an end.

The Cunard Line announced Monday that it will withdraw the 81,273- ton Queen Mary from service at the end of this year and her 83,997- ton sister ship, the Queen Elizabeth, a year later. The queens were the largest passenger ships in maritime history.

Increasing airline competition has been hurting the liners, and they have been losing $2.1 million a year. Cunard has not decided whether to scrap or sell the two ships but said it would not allow them to be used competitively or for any "undignified purpose."

A single successor to the pair will be launched Sept. 20. The unnamed "Q4" will enter service in 1969.

Motorist Forfeits

LISBON — Richard F. Welling, 19, of Leetonia R. D. 2, cited Monday night by police on a charge of speeding, forfeited a $20 appearance bond in mayor's court.

One Of Andrews Singing Sisters Dies Of Cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Laverne Andrews, eldest of the singing Andrews Sisters, died Monday of cancer. She had been ill for eight months. She was 51.

Her sisters, Maxene and Patti, learned of the death while they were fulfilling a nightclub engagement at Lake Tahoe, 500 miles to the north.

Laverne's husband of 18 years, Lou Rogers, a wholesale liquor dealer, was at his wife's bedside in their West Los Angeles home when she died. They had no children.

Carrying on the group's 35-year performing tradition, the younger sisters had appeared without Laverne for nearly a year.

The sisters made almost 900 records—of which 60 million copies have been sold—since they became successful in the 1930s.

ed with an unusually heavy inventory due to the spring planting season. A grinding mill and mixers also were on the premises. The company occasionally would load boxcars of wheat for shipment to warehouses.

According to one member of the family and fire officials, there was no insurance on either the building or its contents. Mrs. Rudibaugh said the last employe left at 8 p.m. Monday.

The fire came "within one foot" of spreading to Johnson's Pontiac, which includes a paint shop with large quantities of highly flammable liquids. Firemen removed six cars from the garage lots when it was feared the fire would spread.

The dealership did sustain some damage to glass, the roof, and a masonry wall.

No estimate was made on the damage to the abandoned homes or to Johnson's establishment.

Lewis lauded assistant Chief Robert Lloyd who initiated the operation and is credited with preventing the fire from spreading.

NO CAUSE has yet been determined, but Lewis said the hottest point of the fire when emergency workers arrived seemed to be the center of the building.

"The flames fanned both ways and engulfed the remainder of the structure," he explained. "Then,' he continued, "it just mushroomed."

An added hazard was the constant detonation of rifle and shotgun shells, causing firemen to exercise unusual caution in approaching the building.

The structure is at least 50 years old and was the site of the second major fire in Wellsville in recent weeks. Early in April a $100,000 blaze destroyed a portion of the Wesco Manufacturing Co.

Firemen were still at the scene late this moring. Lewis is continuing an investigation.

Midland Board Reviews Tax Loss, Teachers' Pay

A proposed salary increase for Midland's teachers is uncertain because of possible tax revenue loss in the district, the Midland board of education advised faculty representatives Monday night.

A revised version of a two-year salary schedule for the system's 59 teachers was presented to the board at the meeting at the high school.

Maurice J. Newman, president, was in charge of the meeting at which Reynold Peduzzi, president of the Midland Education Association, and Dennis Cambier, chairman of the MEA salary committee, presented the revised schedule.

PEDUZZI'S report indicated the MEA is seeking a $4,800 salary minimum for non - certified personnel, compared to the present $4,500 minimum.

Recently the board granted an $600 increase in minimum pay to certified teachers — from $4,500 to $5,100.

The starting salary scale for those with master's degrees was recently increased to $5,400 at the request of the MEA.

The MEA is also asking for a starting salary of $5,700 for those with a master's degree plus 30 hours of college credit.

A further request was that the board begin paying the cost of Blue Cross and Blue Shield employes insurance by 1968-69.

Peduzzi said the MEA began negotiations with Supt. Wilbur Dershimer in January, and met with the board in February when the MEA made an original salary proposal that would have cost $48,000 in a year.

CALLED BACK to a board meeting in March when an apparent impasse developed, the MEA drew up a compromise salary schedule which could cost the system some $62,500 over two years, or $32,500 the first year and $30,000 the second, Peduzzi said.

The compromise schedule was presented to the board in April but since no action was taken, Peduzzi said the MEA sent a letter to the board last week asking an answer by today.

Supt. Dershimer said an answer was not made because the new budget is not completed, and the board is unable to determine what tax money will be available.

He referred to a proposed $65,000 reduction in the annual tax revenue from Crucible Steel Co. Midland Works since the firm will receive exemptions on certain types of machinery at the Midland plant.

Ed Cilli, board member, said County Commissioners Eli Corak and James Ross recently spoke with John Strand, works manager at Crucible, about the tax situation, and said the commissioners plan to meet with Crucible representatives in a week or two.

Cilli said the firm had indicated a willingness to confer with Council and school board representatives about the situation.

STRAND SAID this morning, "Once Crucible's appeal on exempt machinery is settled, the firm intends to sit down with the responsible people to work out with the community some arrangements which will not leave it in economic stress."

Supt. Dershimer said in addition to the possible loss of the Crucible revenue, the board is also faced with the need to pay out $25,000 to the Beaver County Community College and $15,000 as principal payment on the new bond issue due June 1, 1968, on the new high school addition.

He said since taxpayers are now paying 42 mills, it is hoped no additional tax millage will be required.

He said the board is not evading any issue of a need for teacher salary increases, but can not give an intelligent answer until the new budget is worked out.

The board authorized the finance committee to meet with the salary committee of the MEA May 17 before a special school board meeting May 18.

Driver Receives Fine, Jail Term

A 67-year-old East Liverpool area motorist was fined and jailed for driving while intoxicated at a hearing this morning before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff.

Henry Otto Wagner of R. D. 3, Calcutta, pleaded guilty to the charge filed by the Highway Patrol at Lisbon following a mishap Friday on the Wilson Hill Rd. in which his car went over an embankment.

Wagner was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to serve three days in the County Jail at Lisbon. His operator's license was suspended for six months.

Two other motorists were fined for speeding. Ellis Hugh McBane of 926 Wood St., Wellsville, was fined $15 and costs after entering a no contest plea, while James Lawrence Wessel of Petersburg was fined $15 and costs and his license was suspended 10 days. Wessel pleaded guilty.

is on appeal before the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The current new-trial motion, filed Feb. 23, accuses the government of resorting to wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping to convict Hoffa and his codefendants of tampering with the jury which heard his 1962 conspiracy trial at Nashville, Tenn. That trial ended in a deadlocked jury.

The government has denied the charges, but said at a pretrial conference April 21 that there would be a basis for a new trial if proven true.

Among the witnesses for Hoffa is Benjamin David Nichols of Heiskell, Tenn., an electronics expert who said he installed wiretapping devices in Hoffa's quarters under the direction of Walter Sheridan, special assistant to then-U. S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Sources reported that as many as 50 subpoenaes had been issued by defense and government lawyers for prospective witnesses.

ed with an unusually heavy inventory due to the spring planting season. A grinding mill and mixers also were on the premises. The company occasionally would load boxcars of wheat for shipment to warehouses.

According to one member of the family and fire officials, there was no insurance on either the building or its contents. Mrs. Rudibaugh said the last employe left at 8 p.m. Monday.

The fire came "within one foot" of spreading to Johnson's Pontiac, which includes a paint shop with large quantities of highly flammable liquids. Firemen removed six cars from the garage lots when it was feared the fire would spread.

The dealership did sustain some damage to glass, the roof, and a masonry wall.

No estimate was made on the damage to the abandoned homes or to Johnson's establishment.

Lewis lauded assistant Chief Robert Lloyd who initiated the operation and is credited with preventing the fire from spreading.

NO CAUSE has yet been determined, but Lewis said the hottest point of the fire when emergency workers arrived seemed to be the center of the building.

"The flames fanned both ways and engulfed the remainder of the structure," he explained. "Then,' he continued, "it just mushroomed."

An added hazard was the constant detonation of rifle and shotgun shells, causing firemen to exercise unusual caution in approaching the building.

The structure is at least 50 years old and was the site of the second major fire in Wellsville in recent weeks. Early in April a $100,000 blaze destroyed a portion of the Wesco Manufacturing Co.

Firemen were still at the scene late this moring. Lewis is continuing an investigation.

Salary Hike Asked

Midland Board Reviews Tax Loss, Teachers' Pay

A proposed salary increase for Midland's teachers is uncertain because of possible tax revenue loss in the district, the Midland board of education advised faculty representatives Monday night.

A revised version of a two-year salary schedule for the system's 59 teachers was presented to the board at the meeting at the high school.

Maurice J. Newman, president, was in charge of the meeting at which Reynold Peduzzi, president of the Midland Education Association, and Dennis Cambier, chairman of the MEA salary committee, presented the revised schedule.

PEDUZZI'S report indicated the MEA is seeking a $4,800 salary minimum for non - certified personnel, compared to the present $4,500 minimum.

Recently the board granted an $600 increase in minimum pay to certified teachers — from $4,500 to $5,100.

The starting salary scale for those with master's degrees was recently increased to $5,400 at the request of the MEA.

The MEA is also asking for a starting salary of $5,700 for those with a master's degree plus 30 hours of college credit.

A further request was that the board begin paying the cost of Blue Cross and Blue Shield employes insurance by 1968-69.

Peduzzi said the MEA began negotiations with Supt. Wilbur Dershimer in January, and met with the board in February when the MEA made an original salary proposal that would have cost $48,000 in a year.

—:—

CALLED BACK to a board meeting in March when an apparent impasse developed, the MEA drew up a compromise salary schedule which could cost the system some $62,500 over two years, or $32,500 the first year and $30,000 the second, Peduzzi said.

The compromise schedule was presented to the board in April but since no action was taken, Peduzzi said the MEA sent a letter to the board last week asking an answer by today.

Supt. Dershimer said an answer was not made because the new budget is not completed, and the board is unable to determine what tax money will be available.

He referred to a proposed $65,000 reduction in the annual tax revenue from Crucible Steel Co. Midland Works since the firm will receive exemptions on certain types of machinery at the Midland plant.

Ed Cilli, board member, said County Commissioners Eli Corak and James Ross recently spoke with John Strand, works manager at Crucible, about the tax situation, and said the commissioners plan to meet with Crucible representatives in a week or two.

Cilli said the firm had indicated a willingness to confer with Council and school board representatives about the situation.

STRAND SAID this morning, "Once Crucible's appeal on exempt machinery is settled, the firm intends to sit down with the responsible people to work out with the community some arrangements which will not leave it in economic stress."

Supt. Dershimer said in addition to the possible loss of the Crucible revenue, the board is also faced with the need to pay out $25,000 to the Beaver County Community College and $15,000 as principal payment on the new bond issue due June 1, 1968, on the new high school addition.

He said since taxpayers are now paying 42 mills, it is hoped no additional tax millage will be required.

He said the board is not evading any issue of a need for teacher salary increases, but can not give an intelligent answer until the new budget is worked out.

The board authorized the finance committee to meet with the salary committee of the MEA May 17 before a special school board meeting May 18.

At Hancock Meeting

School System Study Outlined

Dr. William Hitt, head of the Behavioral Science Department at Battelle, Institute in Columbus, appeared before the Hancock County Board of Education Monday night to explain and outline a proposed study of the county school system.

In describing the project, Dr. Hitt said the ideas set forth will answer the questions of "how the school system is doing and where it is going." He pointed out answers to these questions will require an in depth study of the complete school system, take a year to complete and would cost approximately $55,000.

IN ORDER to undertake such a study, Dr. Hitt reported it would be necessary to divide the study program into four phases: Description of the present system, specifications of desired situations, assessment of the present situation and formulating specific recommendations and "moving the school system from the actual to the desired."

In performing these studies Dr. Hitt noted, Phase One would be an empirical study, that is, it would be concerned with the school system as it is presently functioning and in addition, comparisions would be offered as to those courses required by state law and those set fourth by the National Education Association.

An in depth report also would be given on the complete educational system as presently practiced, capabilities of the school staffs, facilities and special services.

Phast Two would be a value judgment study, that is, the desires of the school staffs concerning what they think their school system should be would be listed. Interest here would be centered on the goals and objectives of the teachers plus those set forth by the NEA.

In Phase Three, a comparison would be made between the actual school system and the desired and the discrepencies between the two would be listed.

Phase Four would contain the specific recommendations based upon the above studies and would form a bluepring from which the school system would make the desired changes over a period of time.

DR. HITT noted that during this study the institute would have specialists in the various fields conducting the survey. He said he would have a team of eight men and the services of several professors from Ohio State University who specialize in a number of fields would be at their disposal.

He noted the majority of these people would be employed only on a part - time basis, but Battelle would provide one full-time specialist throughout the course of the study. Dr. Hitt said the school system may only wish to use one or more of the various phases discussed.

He said the institute never has conducted such an in - depth survey for a public school system, but had done surveys of the same nature for the Cleveland Museum and the National Cash Register Co. of Dayton. But, he added, the nature of the studies are similar.

The board said it would discuss the matter further and ask Dr. Hitt to send members copies of the complete outline to be used to inform the public of the proposed study.

In other action, Robert Hall, school superintendent, informed the board repair work on the roof at Weir High School is still in progress.

He said the present work involved repair of loose roof sections, but major repair work has been completed.

HE NOTED that following the repairs he will ask for a meeting with the contractor, the architectural engineers of the school and the insurance company to review the whole matter.

The board approved 10 requests: Rita Roach to attend a meeting of the state mathematics curriculum committee in Charleston on May 12 and 13; three teachers to attend the state track meet at Charleston on May 19; use of the multi-purpose room at Weir High for the band parents' annual banquet on May 13; Milton Weinberg to chaperone stuadents at the annual recognition day luncheon on the campus of Bethany college May 24; the Post-Prom Committee of Oak Glen High School to use building "C" and "D" on June 2 and 3; for Phyllis Wilkins, Carolyn Rice, Mary Porter, Dorothy Murray, Ruth Glass, Jenny Jaziano, and Virginia Knightstep to attend an Oglebay Institute sewing demonstration and lecture on May 17.

Also approved was the hiring of James A. LaScola of 649 Carolina Ave., Chester and Umbert J. Ciccolella of Follansbee as secondary school teachers.

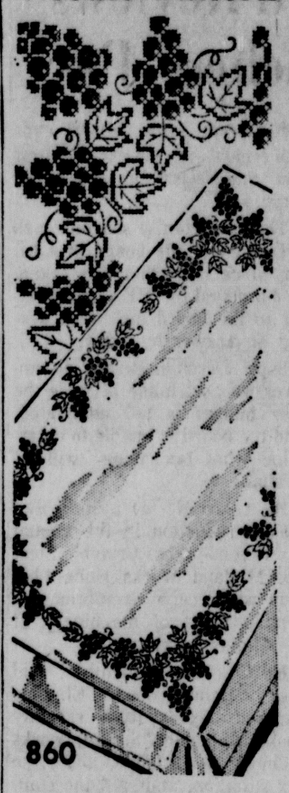

The resignations of three teachers and one instructional aide were accepted. They are: Nancy Lyons, Charles B. Davis, Trudy Rawson and Mrs. Maxine Mountjoy, instructional aide at the Chester Primary School.

Approval was granted to leave of absence requests submitted by Mrs. Suzanne W. Kuhns and Sandra J. LaPosta for the 1967-68 school year.

The board, after a short discussion, approved the use of the Weir High football stadium by the local soccer team. It will be used when the football team is not playing.

Ida Hvizdak of Weirton was employed as substitute matron at Weir High.

Jaycees Here Plan Election

Plans for the annual election of officers May 22 were outlined during a meeting of the East Liverpool Jaycees Board of Directors Monday night.

The Jaycees will observe "Membership Night," "Keith Goodman Night" and "Hire A Veteran Night" at the same time.

This was the final meeting of the directors for the 1966-67 term.

Budgets were approved for the post-prom party Friday night at Westgate School; innaugural ball June 16 at the Willows Motel; Teenage Road-e-o May 20 at Westgate parking lot; Miss Columbiana Pageant June 8-10 at Westgate; junior tennis in June at Thompson Park, and junior golf June 26 at the Country Club.

The Jaycees will cooperate with the Chamber of Commerce in the annual spring cleanup campaign Monday.

Tentative approval was given a project to co-sponsor a weekly record hop with radio station WOHI. The details will be worked out later.

A report was heard on the East Palestine charter night presentation and the local committee was commended for its work in helping form the new chapter.

Letters of congratulations were read on the success of the Home and Industrial Show.

Passage Seen On Race Riot Bill For Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An emergency bill to help police cope with possible summer race riots by outlawing firebombs neared passage in the legislature today but a fight was expected on a key provision.

Three members of the Senate Judiciary Committee indicated they would seek a Senate floor amendment taking out of the bill a so-called "possession with intent" provision.

Sens. John W. Bowen R-15 Columbus, William B. Nye D-28 Akron and Calvin C. Johnson D-9 Cincinnati opposed the provision which would make it a felony to possess ingredients "with intent" for the making of firebombs.

They pointed out that ingredients for such bombs consist only of a match, a rag and inflammable liquid and asserted that possession of such common items could result in arrests of innocent persons.

Aimed at curbing rioting and violence such as occurred last summer in Cleveland and Dayton, the bill would make it a felony to manufacture, sell, distribute or possess materials for firebombs often described as "Molotov cocktails."

Conviction could bring 1 - 5 years in the penitentiary.

Each house passed four bills Monday night as the lawmakers started their 18th and what shaped up as one of the busiest weeks of the session. Stepped-up House hearings on the administration's $4.9 billion two-year operating budget and auditions for three dozen proposed state songs were among activities on tap.

A brief flurry of debate preceded passage Monday night of a bill to increase penalties for distributing or selling obscene literature to minors. An 84 - 3 vote sent the measure to the Senate following objections that it would do nothing to strengthen present "ineffective" laws which leave the definition of obscenity up to courts.

But Rep. Ethel G. Swanbeck R-14 Erie, a co-sponsor, insisted that obscenity "is obvious enough to be recognized by any adult" and told the House "I hope you will support this bill and define it as you will."

Opponents were Reps. Margaret Dennison R-98 Trumbull, Robert C. Carpenter R-15 Seneca and Edwin T. Hofstetter R-36 Geauga.

Under the bill, fines would range from a minimum of $500 to a maximum of $5,000, up from the present $200 and $2,000 The minimum prison term would jump from one to two years although the present maximum of seven years would remain unchanged.

By a vote of 83-6, the lower chamber passed and sent to the Senate a measure that would give the Ohio Board of Regents authority to approve community college districts, increase community college boards of trustees from seven members to nine and stipulate that three trustees must be named by the governor.

Rep. George V. Voinovich R-53 Cleveland said the measure would give the regents more authority in their master plan for higher education but at the same time guarantee local control by county commissioners.

Also approved by the House was a measure increasing the horse racing season in border counties competing with tracks in neighboring state. It would permit racing in those counties between March 1 and Nov. 1. The season now runs from March 10 to Oct. 24.

The Senate passed without dissent and sent to the House measures to require proceeds from state parks to be placed in a separate rotary fund for parks and recreational improvements and remove from the statutes obsolete provisions covering certain functions of contractors and the state highway director.

Senators concurred in House changes on a bill to increase the maximum length of tractor-trailer trucks and buses on Ohio highways. The House accepted Senate amendments to a bill permitting the highway director to set aside freeway land — extending 500 feet on either side from the center line —for roadside parks and recreational facilities.

House Speaker Charles F. Kurfess R-4 Wood named three members to a conference committee which will try to resolve differences on a measure providing pay increases for an estimated 45,000 state employes. They are House Finance Chairman Ralph E. Fisher R-24 Wayne and Reps. Ralph D. Cole Jr. R-5 Hancock and Douglas Applegate D-33 Jefferson.

Senate members of the conference committee are not yet named.

Sweet Adelines Serve As Hostess For Rally

Members of Sweet Adelines, Inc., served as hostesses during the annual chorus and quartet competition of Region 15 over the weekend at the Hilton Hotel in Pittsburgh. About 1,000 Sweet Adelines and 500 guests attended.

Hostesses were Alberta Bates, Nancy Beaver, Doris Cameron, Hilda Edgar, Millie Emmerling, Jennie Jones, Madalyn Mack, Phyllis Moore, Marjorie Reed, Lois Richey, Ruth Rinehart, and Marjorie Stover.

—:—

SERVING IN various capacities were: Cheryl Anderson, photography; Faye Wright, Connie Fowler, Kathleen Galeno and Jody Popejoy, registration; Florence Gloekner, Mary Reed, Janet Wilson and Delores Zamborsky, tickets; Sandy Wilson and Peggy Woodward, stage.

In the evening, the Samaritones, a quartet from the Men's Barbershop Group, took tickets at the door.

Red tote bags were given each registered Sweet Adeline.

On Friday, many families and friends of the local group attended, including Glenn Woods, former director, his wife and daughter. Sonya Rose, a member, attended, but did not sing.

New Regional officers elected are Suzanne Houston of Warren, Pa., regent; Jan Dietz, East Liverpool, vice regent; Gerry Steuchel of Buffalo, N.Y., secretary, and Joan Montaganni of Scarborough, Ontario, Canada, treasurer.

Bonnie Blackmore and Bette Damaska, both of East Liverpool, served as pages.

First-place winners in the quartet competition were the Sky-Hi's of Cleveland. The Canadian Velvetones, Toronto chapter, finished second and the Maple Keys of the London Chapter third.

—:—

WINNERS in the competing choruses were the Cleveland Suburbans, first; Toronto, Ontario group, second, and the Scarborough, Ontario group, third place.

Ruth Rinehart, East Liverpool chapter president, gave the welcome Saturday night and introduced Lois Napier of Scarborough, International president, who in turn introduced Verna Young of the Scarborough Chapter.

The 29 local members sang two selections Saturday afternoon and two in the evening.

About 500 thronged the hospitality room which was arranged by the East Liverpool chapter following the quartet competition, with Alberta Bates in charge.

Local officers, in addition to Mrs. Rinehart, are Faye Wright, vice president; Alberta Bates, treasurer; Bonnie Blackmore, recording secretary, and Sonya Rose, corresponding secretary.

Norma Jones was general chairman for the event and Mrs. Rinehart co-chairman.

More Bombing Hardens Reds, Military Men Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many military men believe gradual escalation of U. S. bombing hardened the North Vietnamese psychologically and steeled them to a long war.

These uniformed professionals feel the bombing's impact on the North Vietnamese will to fight would have been more telling if American planes had been free from the start to hit at a wide range of targets.

They also contend the long-standing immunity granted to some kinds of targets enabled the North Vietnamese to concentrate air defenses around targets they figured eventually would be hit — and that this has raised the cost in U. S. planes and lives.

Generally, these military men argue that the U. S. policy has added up to too little, too late.

Bit by bit, civilian authorities have been approving targets long urged by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

This has prompted military professionals to claim the service chiefs were thinking way ahead of the civilians.

Civilian policy makers hold that any drastic, widespread air offensive against North Vietnam might have propelled Red China and the Soviet Union into the war.

This same fundamental concern until now has deterred authorities in the White House and Pentagon from allowing American bombers to strike at the docks and harbor of Haiphong, North Vietnam's chief port.

The civilian leaders fear such strikes — or the mining of the approaches to the harbor — could lead to sinking of Soviet vessels and bring on a dangerous confrontation with Moscow.

There has been a marked toughening of U. S. government attitudes toward North Vietnam and a broadening of targets to include some which were free from attack for more than two years.

Reports have circulated recently that the Johnson administration may be reviewing its no-bombing policy with regard to Haiphong's harbor and dock area, the inlet for at least two-thirds of North Vietnam's military and civilian supplies.

Mining or otherwise blocking off Haiphong harbor has been near the top of the Joint Chiefs' list of preferred actions against North Vietnam for considerably more than a year.

Military officers point out that the Joint Chiefs wanted to destroy the petroleum storage, pumping complex and oil stocks in the Haiphong area for many months before such attacks were authorized by President Johnson last June.

The delay, these military officers claim, gave the enemy time to disperse much of his oil supplies into the countryside in fuel drums, and to muster a fleet of barges to haul petroleum to shore from tankers.

The top-level decision to allow the bombing — started last month — of some of the fields harboring North Vietnam's MIG jet interceptors still falls well short of what Air Force and Navy air authorities believe should be permitted.

Crash Hurts 2 In Truck

Two Pittsburgh men were injured when their small van-type truck wrecked on Route 30 at "Shane's Bend" just west of the Pennsylvania state line early today.

John C. Okorn of Bellevue was in "fair" condition at City Hospital with a laceration of the scalp and abrasions of the wrist received in the mishap.

James Patrick of Pittsburgh, the driver, suffered multiple lacerations of the left hip. He was treated and released.

Officers of the Pennsylvania state police at Carnegie were investigating late this morning, but had no details of the mishap which occurred about 2 a.m.

Planners OK 2 Committee Final Reports

The East Liverpool Planning Commission Monday night gave approval to final reports of the Central Business District and Transportation subcommittees, in line with preparation of a model of the city's proposed comprehensive plan.

The business district plan, which features a mall and various redevelopment programs for the downtown area, is a long-range proposition which would follow provision for greater parking and revision of the transportation and traffic pattern.

The transportation committee's recommendation includes extension of the freeway to the Chester Bridge and beyond, with ramps providing access to the downtown area.

Daniel Ziegler of the Carroll V. Hill Associates, planning consultant for the city, explained the basic traffic flow as proposed by the original plan and recommended by the transportation committee.

The transportation report was submitted by H. Jud English, chairman.

In other action, the commission approved a recommendation to Council that money be authorized for a family housing survey by Carroll V. Hill in line with a proposed housing code and recertification of the plan by the U. S. Housing and Urban Development Department.

The city has been advised the city should have a housing code in active status by July 1 in order to qualify for recertification in the federal program by Jan. 1.

In order to meet the requirement, a family housing survey is needed, Mayor George Willshaw said.

Ziegler explained the survey would determine if a housing code went into effect, whether adequate housing would be available for those now residing in deteriorating or dilapidated homes would be able to locate adequate private living quarters or whether a low rent housing program would be needed.

He said the sample survey could rest on a 10 per cent or 20 per cent sampling of the families, but indicated a 20 per cent sampling would be more accurate and dependable.

The commission agreed to recommend a 20 per cent sampling. The survey would cost an estimated $600.

George Steele, president, said the next meeting will be May 22, with subdivision regulations to be considered.

Aide Of Dodd Hits Charges About Payroll

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Albert P. Morano, chief administrative assistant to Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., has labeled as "untrue and distorted" charges that he was put on the senator's payroll while working for a Connecticut manufacturing firm.

James P. Boyd Jr., a former administrative aide to the senator, said in Washington Monday that Morano was a director of the Conetta Manufacturing Co. Inc., of Greenwich, while working for Dodd on an annual government salary of about $5,000.

Boyd's testimony previously was instrumental in the ethics committee's recommendation that Dodd be censured by the Senate.

Boyd alleged that Morano, a former Connecticut Republican congressman, had used his position as Dodd's assistant in trying to get the Department of Defense to buy from Conetta a surplus of about 85,000 triger assemblies for the Army's M14 rifle.

Morano said he went off the payroll of Conetta the day he went to work for Dodd in August 1962.

The following month he resigned as a director of the company and this ended his relationship with the company, he said.

Thus, Morano explained, he had no connection with the company when it "requested me to enlist the aid of the senator" to get the Defense Department to buy the surplus trigger assemblies.

He said he did get the senator's help in the matter. However, the Defense Departmnt rejected Conetta's offer on the trigger assemblies, as it had done once before.

Boyd said Monday that Dodd wrote a letter to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in connection with the matter.

Morano said, "Yes, I did intercede for Conetta. I wrote a memo to Sen. Dodd telling him of the situation. He said he would help."

"I was not a member of Conetta at that time," Morano said. "Every day of the week manufacturers are asking congressmen to help them."

Morano said that about a year and a half after the Defense Department had declined to buy Conetta's trigger assemblies, they asked the firm to submit a competitive bid on the same item.

"The bids ranged from $1.35 (Conetta's) to $8 or more and Conetta became and is today the sole producer of the M14 trigger assembly which is used by the Army," he said.

The M14 trigger assembly is nearly identical with the M1 trigger assembly, for which Conetta had previously been the prime contractor.

"My conclusion is this is a the ethics committee and the Senate," Morano said.

There was no reference to the Morano matter in the ethics committee's recent report recommending the censure of Dodd, but it is known that the committee looked into the situation.

Its censure recommendation was based on findings that Dodd had diverted at least $116,083 in campaign and testimonial funds to his own use and had billed both the Senate and private organizations for travel expenses.

'Then Blames Driver For Accidents'

Car Firms Seen Catering To 'Nut Behind Wheel'

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry caters to the dangerous instincts of the "nut behind the wheel," then blames the driver for auto accidents, a lawyer said today.

"As psychiatrists above all others have cause to know, nuts-whether behind the wheel or anywhere else-ought to be helped, not exploited," Prof. Jeffrey O'Connell said.

His remarks were in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association.

The University of Illinois professor cited auto names such as Wildcat, Cougar, Mustang and Barracuda to back up his point.

He quoted advertising copy describing cars that said: "All muscle and an almost neurotic urge to get going. A deep breathing, growling under the hood. Comes on like Genghis Khan."

One safe-driving pamphlet quoted by O'Connell said, "We can identify an immature driver "without even looking-just by hearing the way he drives. A reckless or discourteous driver can be a quiet one, but usually isn't. He tends to make harsh, distinctive noises that reveal his dangerous presence as the rattles, growls, hisses and buzzes of other menaces."

But, O'Connell said, the same auto company advertised a new model to teen-agers with the copy: "For stab and steer men, there is a new three-speed automatic you can lock in any gear. Make small noises in your throat. Atta boy, tiger!" This model is "just a friendly little sabre-toothed pussy cat. One of these at fast idle sounds like feeding time at the zoo."

O'Connell, the author of several books on legal aspects of auto safety and accidents, told the psychiatrists that psychiatrists should be especially interested in this auto ad: 'Drive it like you hate it; it's cheaper than psychiatry.'"

He suggested that officials of the psychiatric association focus on the problem and offer their research results to the auto industry.

"Ads designed to excite the most dangerous tendencies in drivers are particularly rampant in teen-age car magazines," O'Connell said.

Judge Assesses Fine In Driving Case Here

Mrs. Nancy Doak of Oakmont was fined $15 and costs on a charge of permitting an unlicensed driver to operate her car at a hearing this morning before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff. She entered a plea of no contest.

Mrs. Doak was charged by the Highway Patrol at Lisbon after her son, Donald, 15, was involved in an accident in front of the Doak home April 25.

Mrs. Doak explained to the court she had permitted her son to move the vehicle from the rear of the house to the front and in so doing he became involved in the mishap with a motorcycle.

The boy is to appear in Juvenile Court at Lisbon today.

A city of 50,000 inhabitants does not use as much water each day as a large paper mill.

Hearing Slated In Shooting Case At New Brighton

NEW BRIGHTON — Arraignment was slated today for a borough man on a charge of assault with intent to kill as a result of the wounding of a Beaver Falls man by a shotgun blast Monday night.

Leslie North, 26, of Beaver Falls was in "fair" condition today at New Brighton unit of Beaver Valley Providence Hospital with wounds of the forearm.

Oscar Tates of 6th Ave., New Brighton, was being held by officers on the shooting charge.

Police who found Tates with a loaded 16 gauge shotgun at a 5th St. site, said he told them North had threatened him with a knife.

North was found wounded in an apartment at 315 13th Ave. with a butcher knife nearby. Officers said there were 80 pellets in North's arm.

Caribbean Area Gets First Crematorium

KINGSTON (AP) — The first crematorium in the Caribbean area is being built here.

The crematorium is being built for Sam Isaacs and Son Limited of Kingston, undertakers. It will be equipped with two single Lawnswood Negas cremators supplied by a major British engineering company in Manchester, Northern England, which will cost 8,500 pounds.

The cremators will be almost similar to the most modern installations in Britain.

Girlie Books Not Obscene, Court Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever may be the Supreme Court's going definition of obscenity — and there are about as many definitions as there are justices — Monday's ruling in this highly subjective area makes one thing clear: Girlie magazines are not obscene.

Undoubtedly this is cheering news for champions of First Amendment rights and for sellers of such spicy publications, just as it is displeasing to those who consider girlie magazines corrupting.

But perhaps equally significant is what the decision does not do: lay down a rule on whether retailers may be prosecuted under state obscenity laws when they claim they were largely unaware of a suspect publication's contents.

And the court's definition of obscenity is no clearer than it was in March 1966, the last time it delivered major pronouncements on the subject and upheld the conviction of Eros magazine publisher Ralph Ginzburg.

The convictions of Robert Redrup, a New York City newsstand operator who sold two racy paperbacks to a policeman, and of William Austin, who sold girlie magazines in his Paducah, Ky., bookstore, were thrown out Monday because a majority of the justices found their prosecutions in conflict with the First Amendment.

At least four different constitutional views of obscenity were presented in the unsigned opinion, but none was singled out as controlling in the Redrup and Austin cases.

Similarly, the court barred Arkansas from prohibiting circulation of eight girlie magazines, but the opinion trained no particular concept of obscenity on the Arkansas action.

Actually, when the court took on the cases more than a year ago it specifically refused to pass judgment on whether the magazines and the two paperbacks were legally obscene.

Instead, it said it would decide procedural issues, including the question of knowledge of contents.

The court acted then, it said Monday, "upon the hypothesis that the material involved in each case was of a character described as obscene in the constitutional sense."

"But," it said, "we have concluded that the hypothesis upon which the court originally proceeded was invalid." In other words, the magazines and the two paperbacks, "Shame Agent" and "Lust Pool," cannot constitutionally be held obscene.

There were two dissenters, Justices John M. Harlan and Tom C. Clark. In an opinion in which Clark joined, Harlan declared: "These dispositions do not reflect well on the processes of the court, and I think the issues for which the cases were taken should be decided."

Such a decision awaits another day.

Man Gives Up After Holding 3 As Hostage

BROMLEY, Ky. (AP—Billy Dameron, 27, surrendered to police today after he had held the Bromley town marshal and two children as hostages in the Dameron home for more than two hours.

Dameron, reported to be wanted in West Virginia, surrendered at the urging of the Rev. William Sale, a Bromley minister.

Three shots had been fired during the siege of the house but apparently none was aimed at anyone.

The fugitive seized Bromley Marshal Archie Serp when the marshal went to the house to serve a warrant on him, authorities said.

About 1½ hours after going to Dameron's house officers shouted to Serp to see if he was all right, and he responded that he was.

A couple of shots were fired, but apparently not at anyone.

Moore Urges W. Va. Flood Control Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Arch A. Moore, Jr., R-W.Va., has made a plea for congressional appropriations for the Burnsville Dam and the Stonewall Jackson dam and reservoir in north-central West Virginia.

Moore told a House appropriations subcommittee Monday money was needed for these flood control projects on the Little Kanawha River in Braxton County and the West Fork River in Lewis County.

"The recent destructive floods in central West Virginia were primarily in these two river basins and have made obvious the urgency for these authorizations," Moore said.

He asked that $500,000 budgeted for the Stonewall Jackson project, which is $425,000 more than the administrated has budgeted for planning the project.

The entire Stonewall Jackson dam and reservoir complex is expected to cost about $35.7.

The Burnsville Dam project was first authorized by Congress in 1938 but no money has been appropriated for it and the administration has no request pending for the dam, which is estimated would cost $21.8 million.

Moore urged the committee to appropriate $1 million for planning this dam.

At Hancock Meeting

School System Study Outlined

Dr. William Hitt, head of the Behavioral Science Department at Battelle, Institute in Columbus, appeared before the Hancock County Board of Education Monday night to explain and outline a proposed study of the county school system.

In describing the project, Dr. Hitt said the ideas set forth will answer the questions of "how the school system is doing and where it is going." He pointed out answers to these questions will require an in depth study of the complete school system, take a year to complete and would cost approximately $55,000.

IN ORDER to undertake such a study, Dr. Hitt reported it would be necessary to divide the study program into four phases: Description of the present system, specifications of desired situations, assessment of the present situation and formulating specific recommendations and "moving the school system from the actual to the desired."

In performing these studies Dr. Hitt noted, Phase One would be an empirical study, that is, it would be concerned with the school system as it is presently functioning and in addition, comparisions would be offered as to those courses required by state law and those set fourth by the National Education Association.

An in depth report also would be given on the complete educational system as presently practiced, capabilities of the school staffs, facilities and special services.

Phast Two would be a value judgment study, that is, the desires of the school staffs concerning what they think their school system should be would be listed. Interest here would be centered on the goals and objectives of the teachers plus those set forth by the NEA.

In Phase Three, a comparison would be made between the actual school system and the desired and the discrepencies between the two would be listed.

Phase Four would contain the specific recommendations based upon the above studies and would form a bluepring from which the school system would make the desired changes over a period of time.

DR. HITT noted that during this study the institute would have specialists in the various fields conducting the survey. He said he would have a team of eight men and the services of several professors from Ohio State University who specialize in a number of fields would be at their disposal.

He noted the majority of these people would be employed only on a part - time basis, but Battelle would provide one full-time specialist throughout the course of the study. Dr. Hitt said the school system may only wish to use one or more of the various phases discussed.

He said the institute never has conducted such an in - depth survey for a public school system, but had done surveys of the same nature for the Cleveland Museum and the National Cash Register Co. of Dayton. But, he added, the nature of the studies are similar.

The board said it would discuss the matter further and ask Dr. Hitt to send members copies of the complete outline to be used to inform the public of the proposed study.

In other action, Robert Hall, school superintendent, informed the board repair work on the roof at Weir High School is still in progress.

He said the present work involved repair of loose roof sections, but major repair work has been completed.

HE NOTED that following the repairs he will ask for a meeting with the contractor, the architectural engineers of the school and the insurance company to review the whole matter.

The board approved 10 requests: Rita Roach to attend a meeting of the state mathematics curriculum committee in Charleston on May 12 and 13; three teachers to attend the state track meet at Charleston on May 19; use of the multi-purpose room at Weir High for the band parents' annual banquet on May 13; Milton Weinberg to chaperone stuadents at the annual recognition day luncheon on the campus of Bethany college May 24; the Post-Prom Committee of Oak Glen High School to use building "C" and "D" on June 2 and 3; for Phyllis Wilkins, Carolyn Rice, Mary Porter, Dorothy Murray, Ruth Glass, Jenny Jaziano, and Virginia Knightstep to attend an Oglebay Institute sewing demonstration and lecture on May 17.

Also approved was the hiring of James A. LaScola of 649 Carolina Ave., Chester and Umbert J. Ciccolella of Follansbee as secondary school teachers.

The resignations of three teachers and one instructional aide were accepted. They are: Nancy Lyons, Charles B. Davis, Trudy Rawson and Mrs. Maxine Mountjoy, instructional aide at the Chester Primary School.

Approval was granted to leave of absence requests submitted by Mrs. Suzanne W. Kuhns and Sandra J. LaPosta for the 1967-68 school year.

The board, after a short discussion, approved the use of the Weir High football stadium by the local soccer team. It will be used when the football team is not playing.

Ida Hvizdak of Weirton was employed as substitute matron at Weir High.

Jaycees Here Plan Election

Plans for the annual election of officers May 22 were outlined during a meeting of the East Liverpool Jaycees Board of Directors Monday night.

The Jaycees will observe "Membership Night," "Keith Goodman Night" and "Hire A Veteran Night" at the same time.

This was the final meeting of the directors for the 1966-67 term.

Budgets were approved for the post-prom party Friday night at Westgate School; innaugural ball June 16 at the Willows Motel; Teenage Road-e-o May 20 at Westgate parking lot; Miss Columbiana Pageant June 8-10 at Westgate; junior tennis in June at Thompson Park, and junior golf June 26 at the Country Club.

The Jaycees will cooperate with the Chamber of Commerce in the annual spring cleanup campaign Monday.

Tentative approval was given a project to co-sponsor a weekly record hop with radio station WOHI. The details will be worked out later.

A report was heard on the East Palestine charter night presentation and the local committee was commended for its work in helping form the new chapter.

Letters of congratulations were read on the success of the Home and Industrial Show.

Passage Seen On Race Riot Bill For Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An emergency bill to help police cope with possible summer race riots by outlawing firebombs neared passage in the legislature today but a fight was expected on a key provision.

Three members of the Senate Judiciary Committee indicated they would seek a Senate floor amendment taking out of the bill a so-called "possession with intent" provision.

Sens. John W. Bowen R-15 Columbus, William B. Nye D-28 Akron and Calvin C. Johnson D-9 Cincinnati opposed the provision which would make it a felony to possess ingredients "with intent" for the making of firebombs.

They pointed out that ingredients for such bombs consist only of a match, a rag and inflammable liquid and asserted that possession of such common items could result in arrests of innocent persons.

Aimed at curbing rioting and violence such as occurred last summer in Cleveland and Dayton, the bill would make it a felony to manufacture, sell, distribute or possess materials for firebombs often described as "Molotov cocktails."

Conviction could bring 1 - 5 years in the penitentiary.

Each house passed four bills Monday night as the lawmakers started their 18th and what shaped up as one of the busiest weeks of the session. Stepped-up House hearings on the administration's $4.9 billion two-year operating budget and auditions for three dozen proposed state songs were among activities on tap.

A brief flurry of debate preceded passage Monday night of a bill to increase penalties for distributing or selling obscene literature to minors. An 84 - 3 vote sent the measure to the Senate following objections that it would do nothing to strengthen present "ineffective" laws which leave the definition of obscenity up to courts.

But Rep. Ethel G. Swanbeck R-14 Erie, a co-sponsor, insisted that obscenity "is obvious enough to be recognized by any adult" and told the House "I hope you will support this bill and define it as you will."

Opponents were Reps. Margaret Dennison R-98 Trumbull, Robert C. Carpenter R-15 Seneca and Edwin T. Hofstetter R-36 Geauga.

Under the bill, fines would range from a minimum of $500 to a maximum of $5,000, up from the present $200 and $2,000 The minimum prison term would jump from one to two years although the present maximum of seven years would remain unchanged.

By a vote of 83-6, the lower chamber passed and sent to the Senate a measure that would give the Ohio Board of Regents authority to approve community college districts, increase community college boards of trustees from seven members to nine and stipulate that three trustees must be named by the governor.

Rep. George V. Voinovich R-52 Cleveland said the measure would give the regents more authority in their master plan for higher education but at the same time guarantee local control by county commissioners.

Also approved by the House was a measure increasing the horse racing season in border counties competing with tracks in neighboring state. It would permit racing in those counties between March 1 and Nov. 1. The season now runs from March 10 to Oct. 24.

The Senate passed without dissent and sent to the House measures to require proceeds from state parks to be placed in a separate rotary fund for parks and recreational improvements and remove from the statutes obsolete provisions covering certain functions of contractors and the state highway director.

Senators concurred in House changes on a bill to increase the maximum length of tractor-trailer trucks and buses on Ohio highways. The House accepted Senate amendments to a bill permitting the highway director to set aside freeway land — extending 500 feet on either side from the center line —for roadside parks and recreational facilities.

House Speaker Charles F. Kurfess R-4 Wood named three members to a conference committee which will try to resolve differences on a measure providing pay increases for an estimated 45,000 state employes. They are House Finance Chairman Ralph E. Fisher R-24 Wayne and Reps. Ralph D. Cole Jr. R-5 Hancock and Douglas Applegate D-33 Jefferson.

Senate members of the conference committee are not yet named.

Sweet Adelines Serve As Hostess For Rally

Members of Sweet Adelines, Inc., served as hostesses during the annual chorus and quartet competition of Region 15 over the weekend at the Hilton Hotel in Pittsburgh. About 1,000 Sweet Adelines and 500 guests attended.

Hostesses were Alberta Bates, Nancy Beaver, Doris Cameron, Hilda Edgar, Millie Emmerling, Jennie Jones, Madalyn Mack, Phyllis Moore, Marjorie Reed, Lois Richey, Ruth Rinehart, and Marjorie Stover.

—:—

SERVING IN various capacities were: Cheryl Anderson, photography; Faye Wright, Connie Fowler, Kathleen Galeno and Jody Popejoy, registration; Florence Gloekner, Mary Reed, Janet Wilson and Delores Zamborsky, tickets; Sandy Wilson and Peggy Woodward, stage.

In the evening, the Samaritones, a quartet from the Men's Barbershop Group, took tickets at the door.

Red tote bags were given each registered Sweet Adeline.

On Friday, many families and friends of the local group attended, including Glenn Woods, former director, his wife and daughter. Sonya Rose, a member, attended, but did not sing.

New Regional officers elected are Suzanne Houston of Warren, Pa., regent; Jan Dietz, East Liverpool, vice regent; Gerry Steuchel of Buffalo, N.Y., secretary, and Joan Montaganni of Scarborough, Ontario, Canada, treasurer.

Bonnie Blackmore and Bette Damaska, both of East Liverpool, served as pages.

First-place winners in the quartet competition were the Sky-Hi's of Cleveland. The Canadian Velvetones, Toronto chapter, finished second and the Maple Keys of the London Chapter third.

—:—

WINNERS in the competing choruses were the Cleveland Suburbans, first; Toronto, Ontario group, second, and the Scarborough, Ontario group, third place.

Ruth Rinehart, East Liverpool chapter president, gave the welcome Saturday night and introduced Lois Napier of Scarborough, International president, who in turn introduced Verna Young of the Scarborough Chapter.

The 29 local members sang two selections Saturday afternoon and two in the evening.

About 500 thronged the hospitality room which was arranged by the East Liverpool chapter following the quartet competition, with Alberta Bates in charge.

Local officers, in addition to Mrs. Rinehart, are Faye Wright, vice president; Alberta Bates, treasurer; Bonnie Blackmore, recording secretary, and Sonya Rose, corresponding secretary.

Norma Jones was general chairman for the event and Mrs. Rinehart co-chairman.

More Bombing Hardens Reds, Military Men Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many military men believe gradual escalation of U. S. bombing hardened the North Vietnamese psychologically and steeled them to a long war.

These uniformed professionals feel the bombing's impact on the North Vietnamese will to fight would have been more telling if American planes had been free from the start to hit at a wide range of targets.

They also contend the long-standing immunity granted to some kinds of targets enabled the North Vietnamese to concentrate air defenses around targets they figured eventually would be hit — and that this has raised the cost in U. S. planes and lives.

Generally, these military men argue that the U. S. policy has added up to too little, too late.

Bit by bit, civilian authorities have been approving targets long urged by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

This has prompted military professionals to claim the service chiefs were thinking way ahead of the civilians.

Civilian policy makers hold that any drastic, widespread air offensive against North Vietnam might have propelled Red China and the Soviet Union into the war.

This same fundamental concern until now has deterred authorities in the White House and Pentagon from allowing American bombers to strike at the docks and harbor of Haiphong, North Vietnam's chief port.

The civilian leaders fear such strikes — or the mining of the approaches to the harbor — could lead to sinking of Soviet vessels and bring on a dangerous confrontation with Moscow.

There has been a marked toughening of U. S. government attitudes toward North Vietnam and a broadening of targets to include some which were free from attack for more than two years.

Reports have circulated recently that the Johnson administration may be reviewing its no-bombing policy with regard to Haiphong's harbor and dock area, the inlet for at least two-thirds of North Vietnam's military and civilian supplies.

Mining or otherwise blocking off Haiphong harbor has been near the top of the Joint Chiefs' list of preferred actions against North Vietnam for considerably more than a year.

Military officers point out that the Joint Chiefs wanted to destroy the petroleum storage, pumping complex and oil stocks in the Haiphong area for many months before such attacks were authorized by President Johnson last June.

The delay, these military officers claim, gave the enemy time to disperse much of his oil supplies into the countryside in fuel drums, and to muster a fleet of barges to haul petroleum to shore from tankers.

The top-level decision to allow the bombing — started last month — of some of the fields harboring North Vietnam's MIG jet interceptors still falls well short of what Air Force and Navy air authorities believe should be permitted.

Girlie Books Not Obscene, Court Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever may be the Supreme Court's going definition of obscenity — and there are about as many definitions as there are justices — Monday's ruling in this highly subjective area makes one thing clear: Girlie magazines are not obscene.

Undoubtedly this is cheering news for champions of First Amendment rights and for sellers of such spicy publications, just as it is displeasing to those who consider girlie magazines corrupting.

But perhaps equally significant is what the decision does not do: lay down a rule on whether retailers may be prosecuted under state obscenity laws when they claim they were largely unaware of a suspect publication's contents.

And the court's definition of obscenity is no clearer than it was in March 1966, the last time it delivered major pronouncements on the subject and upheld the conviction of Eros magazine publisher Ralph Ginzburg.

The convictions of Robert Redrup, a New York City newsstand operator who sold two racy paperbacks to a policeman, and of William Austin, who sold girlie magazines in his Paducah, Ky., bookstore, were thrown out Monday because a majority of the justices found their prosecutions in conflict with the First Amendment.

At least four different constitutional views of obscenity were presented in the unsigned opinion, but none was singled out as controlling in the Redrup and Austin cases.

Similarly, the court barred Arkansas from prohibiting circulation of eight girlie magazines, but the opinion trained no particular concept of obscenity on the Arkansas action.

Actually, when the court took on the cases more than a year ago it specifically refused to pass judgment on whether the magazines and the two paperbacks were legally obscene.

Instead, it said it would decide procedural issues, including the question of knowledge of contents.

The court acted then, it said Monday, "upon the hypothesis that the material involved in each case was of a character described as obscene in the constitutional sense."

"But," it said, "we have concluded that the hypothesis upon which the court originally proceeded was invalid." In other words, the magazines and the two paperbacks, "Shame Agent" and "Lust Pool," cannot constitutionally be held obscene.

There were two dissenters, Justices John M. Harlan and Tom C. Clark. In an opinion in which Clark joined, Harlan declared: "These dispositions do not reflect well on the processes of the court, and I think the issues for which the cases were taken should be decided."

Such a decision awaits another day.

Crash Hurts 2 In Truck

Two Pittsburgh men were injured when their small van-type truck wrecked on Route 30 at "Shane's Bend" just west of the Pennsylvania state line early today.

John C. Okorn of Bellevue was in "fair" condition at City Hospital with a laceration of the scalp and abrasions of the wrist received in the mishap.

James Patrick of Pittsburgh, the driver, suffered multiple lacerations of the left hip. He was treated and released.

Officers of the Pennsylvania state police at Carnegie were investigating late this morning, but had no details of the mishap which occurred about 2 a.m.

Planners OK 2 Committee Final Reports

The East Liverpool Planning Commission Monday night gave approval to final reports of the Central Business District and Transportation subcommittees, in line with preparation of a model of the city's proposed comprehensive plan.

The business district plan, which features a mall and various redevelopment programs for the downtown area, is a long-range proposition which would follow provision for greater parking and revision of the transportation and traffic pattern.

The transportation committee's recommendation includes extension of the freeway to the Chester Bridge and beyond, with ramps providing access to the downtown area.

Daniel Ziegler of the Carroll V. Hill Associates, planning consultant for the city, explained the basic traffic flow as proposed by the original plan and recommended by the transportation committee.

The transportation report was submitted by H. Jud English, chairman.

In other action, the commission approved a recommendation to Council that money be authorized for a family housing survey by Carroll V. Hill in line with a proposed housing code and recertification of the plan by the U. S. Housing and Urban Development Department.

The city has been advised the city should have a housing code in active status by July 1 in order to qualify for recertification in the federal program by Jan. 1.

In order to meet the requirement, a family housing survey is needed, Mayor George Willshaw said.

Ziegler explained the survey would determine if a housing code went into effect, whether adequate housing would be available for those now residing in deteriorating or dilapidated homes would be able to locate adequate private living quarters or whether a low rent housing program would be needed.

He said the sample survey could rest on a 10 per cent or 20 per cent sampling of the families, but indicated a 20 per cent sampling would be more accurate and dependable.

The commission agreed to recommend a 20 per cent sampling. The survey would cost an estimated $600.

George Steele, president, said the next meeting will be May 22, with subdivision regulations to be considered.

Man Gives Up After Holding 3 As Hostage

BROMLEY, Ky. (AP—Billy Dameron, 27, surrendered to police today after he had held the Bromley town marshal and two children as hostages in the Dameron home for more than two hours.

Dameron, reported to be wanted in West Virginia, surrendered at the urging of the Rev. William Sale, a Bromley minister.

Three shots had been fired during the siege of the house but apparently none was aimed at anyone.

The fugitive seized Bromley Marshal Archie Serp when the marshal went to the house to serve a warrant on him, authorities said.

About 1½ hours after going to Dameron's house officers shouted to Serp to see if he was all right, and he responded that he was.

A couple of shots were fired, but apparently not at anyone.

Dameron's wife, Laura Jean, had called police from a neighbor's. She was quoted as saying her husband, away several weeks, came home Monday night.

Aide Of Dodd Hits Charges About Payroll

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Albert P. Morano, chief administrative assistant to Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., has labeled as "untrue and distorted" charges that he was put on the senator's payroll while working for a Connecticut manufacturing firm.

James P. Boyd Jr., a former administrative aide to the senator, said in Washington Monday that Morano was a director of the Conetta Manufacturing Co. Inc., of Greenwich, while working for Dodd on an annual government salary of about $5,000.

Boyd's testimony previously was instrumental in the ethics committee's recommendation that Dodd be censured by the Senate.

Boyd alleged that Morano, a former Connecticut Republican congressman, had used his position as Dodd's assistant in trying to get the Department of Defense to buy from Conetta a surplus of about 85,000 triger assemblies for the Army's M14 rifle.

Morano said he went off the payroll of Conetta the day he went to work for Dodd in August 1962.

The following month he resigned as a director of the company and this ended his relationship with the company, he said.

Thus, Morano explained, he had no connection with the company when it "requested me to enlist the aid of the senator" to get the Defense Department to buy the surplus trigger assemblies.

He said he did get the senator's help in the matter. However, the Defense Departmnt rejected Conetta's offer on the trigger assemblies, as it had done once before.

Boyd said Monday that Dodd wrote a letter to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in connection with the matter.

Morano said, "Yes, I did intercede for Conetta. I wrote a memo to Sen. Dodd telling him of the situation. He said he would help."

"I was not a member of Conetta at that time," Morano said. "Every day of the week manufacturers are asking congressmen to help them."

Morano said that about a year and a half after the Defense Department had declined to buy Conetta's trigger assemblies, they asked the firm to submit a competitive bid on the same item.

"The bids ranged from $1.35 (Conetta's) to $8 or more and Conetta became and is today the sole producer of the M14 trigger assembly which is used by the Army," he said.

The M14 trigger assembly is nearly identical with the M1 trigger assembly, for which Conetta had previously been the prime contractor.

"My conclusion is this is a the ethics committee and the Senate," Morano said.

There was no reference to the Morano matter in the ethics committee's recent report recommending the censure of Dodd, but it is known that the committee looked into the situation.

Its censure recommendation was based on findings that Dodd had diverted at least $116,083 in campaign and testimonial funds to his own use and had billed both the Senate and private organizations for travel expenses.

Moore Urges W. Va. Flood Control Fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Arch A. Moore, Jr., R-W.Va., has made a plea for congressional appropriations for the Burnsville Dam and the Stonewall Jackson dam and reservoir in north-central West Virginia.

Moore told a House appropriations subcommittee Monday money was needed for these flood control projects on the Little Kanawha River in Braxton County and the West Fork River in Lewis County.

"The recent destructive floods in central West Virginia were primarily in these two river basins and have made obvious the urgency for these authorizations," Moore said.

He asked that $500,000 budgeted for the Stonewall Jackson project, which is $425,000 more than the administrated has budgeted for planning the project.

The entire Stonewall Jackson dam and reservoir complex is expected to cost about $35.7.

The Burnsville Dam project was first authorized by Congress in 1938 but no money has been appropriated for it and the administration has no request pending for the dam, which is estimated would cost $21.8 million.

Moore urged the committee to appropriate $1 million for planning this dam.

Charged With Armed Robbery

Convict Surrenders After Car Thefts, Kidnap Of 6

ADA, Okla. (AP) — A 6-foot-10 convict who blundered halfway across Oklahoma in a vain escape bid Monday was charged with armed robbery Monday night in one county, then transferred here, the county where he took six persons hostage.

The flight led through seven counties to 20 miles from the Texas border.

Emmett Ray McCarthy, 34, was charged at Ardmore, in Carter County, with taking the car of an Ardmore woman, one of four cars officers said he took during the seven-hour flight that ended when he crashed one into a tree on a dead-end street in Marietta.

The 210-pound convict took seven persons hostage, including two policemen, after snatching the pistol of his police guard at an Oklahoma City hospital about 5 a.m., police said.

He was facing an operation for a dislocated spinal disc, the disorder that got him out of the Oklahoma State Prison at McAlester. McCarthy was serving a 12-year term for armed robbery in Oklahoma City.

He harmed no one, fired not a single shot and surrendered at gunpoint without resisting.

The first hostage was Oklahoma City Patrolman Robert Thompson, who said McCarthy snatched his revolver as the convict rolled his wheel chair past the patrolman.

Thompson was released at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hailey, near Noble in adjoining Cleveland County.

Thirty-five miles away, near Asher, McCarthy tried to take the car of a fruit stand owner, but it would not start. He tied up the operator, Ernest Nance, 67, and Nance's wife. They said McCarthy did not threaten them.

Later, the fugitive entered the Pontotoc County home of Stratford City Marshal John Shults and forced the officer, his wife, their two children and two visiting youngsters into Shults' car. He released them in Ardmore after taking another car from the home of Mrs. C.F. Adams.

Mrs. Adams said McCarthy told her, "Lady, if you do what I tell you I won't harm you."

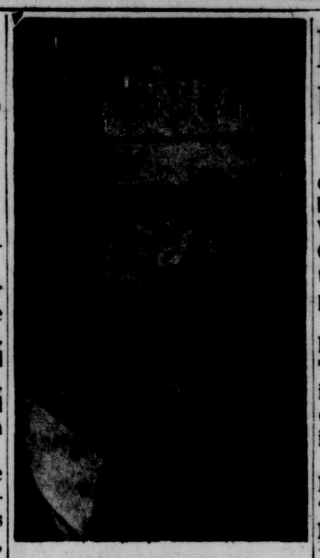

"I asked him why he didn't surrender and he said the police already had something on him. I told him this would only make it harder for him," Mrs. Adams said.

The Ardmore woman said she wasn't frightened, but was indignant.

"I felt like hitting him in the head," she said.

Deputy Sheriff Jack McGehee began chasing McCarthy after he was spotted in Marietta. The convict lost control of the car and hit a tree. McGehee leaped out with a shotgun and said the man dropped a pistol and "just gave up."

McGehee said McCarthy had two .38-caliber pistols, a .22 caliber rifle and a shotgun when he was captured.

MR. HAMILTON
Sales Aide Retires.

James Hamilton Ends 28 Years With Ohio Power

The 28-year Ohio Power Co. career of James K. Hamilton, residential sales representative here, has concluded with early retirement.

The East Liverpool native has been in ill health for about a year.

He began his service with Ohio Power as a truck clerk in the Plant Records Department in 1939. He served the company as a collector in the Accounting Department, a meter reader, a clerk and a residential salesman. He was promoted to his retiring post in December 1959.

Prior to joining Ohio Power, he worked for the Crucible Steel Co., the Standard Oil Co. and the Pure Oil Co.

His African Basenji dogs have earned numerous championships at shows throughout Ohio.

He holds membership in the Ohio Power Veteran Employes Assn., the Youngstown All.Breed Dog Training Club and St. Aloysius Catholic Church.

The Hamilton family residence is on Air Beacon Rd., R.D. 1.

Pin, Honorary Membership Presented By Church Group

Miss Irene Firth was presented a pin and honorary membership during a meeting of the WSCS of the Calvary Methodist Church, at the May meeting in the social rooms. Thirteen were present.

Mrs. June Bourne, program leader, discussed "Dialogue Through Sharing." Mrs. Pauline Carmichael, Mrs. Lillie Aikens and Miss Firth participated in the program.

Miss Connie Carmichael and Miss Pattie Starkey sang a duet, "Early in the Morning," with Miss Starkey guitarist.

Mrs. Marion Pickens, president, presided and reservations were taken for the May Day luncheon at the Trinity United Presbyterian Church.

Miss Jan Hyder and Miss Elaine Oliver will attend the week's summer school of missions at Mt. Union College, Alliance, under sponsorship of the WSCS. The First Methodist Church women are invited to the salad smorgasbord in June.

Mrs. Iva Evans reported on the hospitalized and shut-in patients she has visited. Miss Eleanor Wilson, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the new slate of officers. Mrs. Jacie Blatch gave the secretary's report and Mrs. Bourne the treasurer's report. The report of the district meeting in Columbiana was submitted by Miss Firth.

Mrs. Lillie Aikens, Mrs. Pickens and Miss Firth were hostesses.

Officers will be installed at the June meeting. Hostesses will be Mrs. Carmichael and Joan Weber, with Eleanor Wilson program leader.

If you're like most people, you have no idea of what will be on next week's shopping list. But we prepare our shopping list a full five years in advance.

For example, the equipment we're receiving today, we planned for in 1962 or earlier. These days we're hard at work planning what we'll need to supply the growing electric requirements of this area in 1972 and beyond.

Planning ahead as a system makes it possible to buy the most efficient generating units available and build the nation's most powerful transmission lines. This is just one of the important benefits of our seven-state network of interconnected companies. The benefit to you? Dependable, low-cost electric service now and in the future.

We've got a system!

If you're like most people, you have no idea of what will be on next week's shopping list. But we prepare our shopping list a full five years in advance.

For example, the equipment we're receiving today, we planned for in 1962 or earlier. These days we're hard at work planning what we'll need to supply the growing electric requirements of this area in 1972 and beyond.

Planning ahead as a system makes it possible to buy the most efficient generating units available and build the nation's most powerful transmission lines. This is just one of the important benefits of our seven-state network of interconnected companies. The benefit to you? Dependable, low-cost electric service now and in the future.

It's another way we serve you better electrically.

Chester Council Takes Action On Various Matters

Chester Council passed on first reading Monday night an ordinance raising court costs to $7.

The new distribution of funds will give the mayor $5 of the total costs, the arresting officer $1 and the uniform fund of the police department $1. An additional $.50 will be charged if the mayor is required to provide a transcript of the proceedings.

Passed on second reading was an ordinance which provides for the prosecution of persons leaving ignition keys in parked cars.

CITING THE increase of car thefts, the ordinance calls for a maximum fine of $100 or 30 days in jail upon arrest.

Ward announced a cancer fund dance will be held May 26 in the City Hall. After questioning, it was learned the money for the Friday night dances on the second floor of the city building goes into the uniform fund if the Chester Mice League.

Councilmen tabled business on replacing the floor under the city's fire trucks.

Members decided to seek more information about the kind of rebuilding that will be necessary in order to properly support the trucks, which weigh 10 tons each.

Firemen told Council the present concrete flooring is developing new cracks each time a truck is pulled from the garage and soon the entire floor will be crumbling. The total cost of the project is expected to be about $2,000.

Ward pointed out the city is presently in no position to finance such a project.

Herche's Drugstore was granted permission to display a camping trailer on the sidewalk in front of the store May 11 through 14.

A LETTER was received from James L. Bowen of Paden City requesting Council sign a petition along with all other councils in the state asking the federal government to assign a proposed proton accelerator project scheduled by the Atomic Energy Commission to West Virginia.

Councilman Robert Kincaid noted the curb on Railroad St., presently is in need of repair. He said it is far higher than it should be and requested the city, as he phrased it, to "pull the curb and lower it." He was told a petition from all residents in the block would be necessary before the measure could be acted upon. He said he would see that it was obtained.

Mayor Ward announced a change in the use of radar and traffic checks. He did not disclose details, but said those who might be caught by the checks had found ways to avoid them and so the police department is undertaking revisions.

Council discussed at length the number of people living in the city who have purchased Ohio license plates by using another person's name in registering the vehicle.

Councilman Robert Kincaid was especially vehement toward the drivers, terming them "bad citizens" since they are not paying their fair share of taxes for schools and the city's upkeep.

Roy Cashdollar pointed out, however, the action was legal since the car is registered in the name of an Ohio resident. He said it's one of the disadvantages of a border city. People buy cigarettes elsewhere and their liquor too, "and I can't say as I blame them," he continued. He noted rising taxes have caused shoppers to go out of state and indicated the license plates were just another step.

Kincaid said, however, he believes something, possibly harrassment on the part of the police, should be done to curb the situation.

—:—

FOLLOWING the completion of business, Kitty King, acting as Third Ward councilman with Roy Cashdollar, asked if there wasn't a law prohibiting parking close enough to an intersection to obstuct the view. Percy Willison said the ordinance reads that no cars may be parked within 20 feet of an intersection. Miss King said she has noticed many motorists parking too close and suggested something might be done to alleviate the situation. Charles Kology noted all curbs at intersections are to be painted yellow to indicate where motorists may not park.

On a motion by Cashdollar, members voted to send a plant to Jess Selmon, presently a patient at Pittsburgh Veterans Hospital. He is the Water Department superintendent.

Clerk Donald Hood announced he has scheduled a meeting Saturday morning with county tax officials to determine why the city's tax valuation was cut more than $1 million for the coming year. He said it could be an error.

Kology said he wondered if it was an error or if another community is getting Chester's money. "Weirton's always crying for more money," he added.

Presently property is taxed at 50 per cent of its total value.

Bills totaling $2,245.53 were ordered paid and remittances in the amount of $5,680.45 were received.

CHESTER MAYOR BURTON WARD and City Clerk Donald Hood discuss with two members of the Oak Glen High School Student Council the proceedings of City Council. The students, John Zelinsky and Bobbie Boyles, were among those who took part in a student government day at Chester Monday. Ward and school officials arranged the student council project.

2 Appointed To Committee In Chester TV

After a lengthy discussion, two members of Chester Council were appointed Monday night to a franchise committee controlling cable television service in the community.

The committee, according to an ordinance passed in 1966, must have two members from the company, the C. & S. Cable Co., two from Council and one "disinterested citizen." Prior to last night's session, Councilmen Percy Willison and Roy Cashdollar served on the committee.

They indicated the four men met at least three times last year in an effort to appoint the fifth member, but could not reach a decision. Willison asked that he not be reappointed to the post.

Councilman Charles Kology criticized an increase in the cable company's rates from $3.50 a month to $3.95. He said the action was illegal since the company did not notify the city and the new rates were not approved by the five - man committee.

Cashdollar said the four appointed members of the committee couldn't come to an agreement on the fifth man, though several names were submitted; and so "the company forgot about it and went ahead and raised the rates." But, he added, there have been no protests concerning the rate increase.

Councilmen agreed that a time limit of about 30 days should be set and the company given notice that if a fifth member of the committee is not selected, Council will revise the ordinance so the mayor, with Council's approval, can appoint the other representative.

ROGERS — The annual village spring cleanup, held Saturday and Monday, has been extended to include this Saturday, Mayor Glenn Rhodes said, because of the wet weekend weather.

$50 Fine Assessed In Liquor Case Here

Edward Francis Ryan, 20, of 215 W. 7th St. was fined $50 and costs on a charge that he as a minor "did pay for, purchase and consume intoxicating liquor" during a hearing this morning before Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff.

Ryan pleaded guilty. The charge against him was the outgrowth of a case in which Norman Anthony of E. 5th St. was cited for selling intoxicating beverages to an intoxicated person and for selling to a person under 21.

Anthony is a bartender at the Village Green Tavern.

Ryan was named in an affidavit signed April 23 by agents of the State Liquor Control Department. Ryan had been free on $250 bond.

Pending Actions Cut For Common Pleas

LISBON — Columbiana County's two courts of common pleas reduced the number of cases pending from 817 to 784 during April.

Clerk of Courts Carl L. Stacey reports the courts disposed of 116 cases, while 83 new cases were filed during the period.

An analysis of dispositions shows 71 divorce cases, 28 civil suits and 17 criminal cases. There were 88 trials to court, 10 cognovit and default judgments and 18 cases settled or dismissed.

Columbiana County has six cases pending before the Seventh District Court of Appeals.

Park Board Names Staff At Palestine

EAST PALESTINE — The East Palestine Park Board Monday night hired attendants for the City Park swimming pool and set the annual "Free Day" for May 30 at the pool.

No admission will be charged during the annual pool opening day event.

Board members announced work had been completed on improvement of the older pavilion — a $5,000 project — and a new roof had been placed on the bath house.

Work on roads has been hampered by wet weather, but it is hoped all will be resurfaced by the time the park opens.

Members of the Area Jaycees asked permission for sponsoring a "Youth Day" program at the park July 4.

Hired from a list of 63 applicants for summer park jobs—twice the ordinary amount — were Alan Cohen, Robert Mollenkopf and Jean Merwin, life guards; Sam Barnhouse, Russell Laner, Nancy Nesbitt and Carol Colella, basket attendants, and Nancy Clark, Vicki Henderson and Frances Wilson for the concession stand.

Karen Archibald and Lynn Rudge were hired as clerk - secretaries.

The ancient Phoenicians were the first to introduce liquor into Ireland.

Post Gets Set For Election

Final nomination of officers was heard during a meeting of American Legion Post 374 Monday night at the East End home.

The election will be May 22, with the polls open from noon to 8 p. m. Installation will be June 5. Robert Patchin of Columbiana Post 290, past department treasurer, will be the installing officer.

The candidates are Vincent McGeehan and Densel McKinney, commander; William Reagle and Kenneth Yost, first vice commander; Earl Ohneziet, Louis Krawiec and Donald Hancock, second vice commander; Robert Poynter and Paul Beck, finance officer; Robert Milne, adjutant; John Reardon and Louis Provost, chaplain; Leroy Patterson and Thomas Davidson, sergeant-at-arms; David Anderson and George Bartley, judge advocate; James Wallover, service officer; James Cregar, Walter (Tad) Galloway, Wayne Dorsey, Michael Vohar, Robert Nutter, Steve Lucas, Kenneth (Perry) Cunningham, John Long, Howard Mellon and Charles Fowler, trustees; and John Ruhe, John Morris and Ray Cusick, death benefits trustees.

McGeehan, commander, presided. Forty - four attended. A donation was made to the Columbiana County Mental Health Association.

The 10th District convention will be June 17-18 at Massillon. The state convention will be July 21-23 at Cincinnati.

The post membership was reported at 664. Bernard D. Wright, county commander, was a guest.

The post will meet again Monday night.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: Get out the wet noodle. You've goofed again.

You said very young children should not be taken to funerals and then you printed a letter from a woman who was very upset because her husband's funeral was marred by roughneck kids running up and down the aisle in the chapel, falling over the baskets of flowers and fighting at the foot of the casket.

Some children should not be taken to a skunk rassle much less a funeral, but this is because their parents never taught them how to behave. We took our children, 3, 4 and 6 years of age, to my mother's funeral, and there wasn't a peep out of any of them.

Our kids can be depended on to behave well at all times because that's the way we raised them. — A PROUD PAPA.

Dear Proud: Congratulations, pa. You do have a point. And now, we shall hear from a funeral director who lives in Bay City, Mich.

Stay At Homes

Dear Ann: I read with interest a recent letter about young children being brought to funerals. Perhaps you would like to know the general feeling of funeral home employes.

We do not like to have children under 8 years of age come to the funeral home. Invariably they cause a disturbance at a time when peace and quiet are of the utmost importance.

Very young children do not understand what is going on. It is natural for them to be inquisitive, but their shouting of questions and climbing on the caskets in the selection room are hard for the bereaved.

We ask parents to discipline their children until we are blue in the face, but it goes in one ear and out the other.

I hope the millions of people who read your column will take note of this and learn from it. You would earn the grateful thanks of every funeral director in the country. — W.M.H.

-:-

Dear W.M.H.: Here's the letter and I hope it helps. And it is nice for me to get a smile from the members of your profession, for a change. Ever since I put the knock on going into hock for expensive funerals, I've been the stepchild of the industry. So hello again.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Valley Group Appeals For Flood Funds

WASHINGTON (AP — The Ohio Valley Improvement Association, calling attention to floods which caused hundreds of millions of dollars in damage, urged a House appropriations subcommittee Monday to approve funds for projects on the Ohio River and other waters in the Ohio Valley.

A statement submitted to the subcommittee cited the flood of this spring which caused damage estimated at $35 million and the 1963 and 1964 floods which each caused damages of about $100 million.

At the same time, the improvement association said existing flood control protection works prevented damage exceeding $122 million this spring, bringing to more than $1.3 billion the damage prevented by structures costing about $1 billion.

In addition to flood control, the association called for funds for navigation, water quality control and other projects.

It described the proposed Lake Erie-to-Ohio River canal in Ohio and Pennsylvania as vital.

Thick slices of rare roast beef may be coated with prepared mustand and bread crumbs, then broiled. The broiling should be quick so that the meat becomes warm, but not overcooked.

Hospital Hikes Rates Second Time In 1967

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP)— The Lake County Memorial Hospital board of trustees increased hospital rates Monday for the second time this year. The new rises range from $1.50 to $6 a day.

Effective May 16, daily rates for private room with bath will be $47.50; private room $42.50; semiprivate $36.50 and ward $27. Nursery rooms will be $12.50 and incubator $16.50. Hospital Administrator James I. Boyce said the increases were necessary to keep operations at hospitals in Painesville and Willoughby at a break-even point.

Dear Folks: Many of us make home movies without a sound track. Not only of the family, but especially when we go on trips.

Recently, dear old friends of mine sent me a roll of movie film. When he were running the film a thought struck me: These friends have a tape recorder as well as a movie camera so why not combine the two and have "talkies!"

If you're a home movie enthusiast and have a tape recorder, get out all your old movie reels and watch them by yourself.

As the film runs, tape record where it was taken, who that person is, the fun you had on the trip and what is coming up next!

It sure makes your movies more meaningful.

And as you replace the film in its box, put the tape away in a box, too, and store them together.

Now don't forget . . . the next time you take a movie film of your family, get that tape recorder out, plug it in and you can have live action and words at the same time.

How much more precious can anything be than the voices of those we love?

You don't really have anything to lose because the tape can be used over and over again if it doesn't turn out satisfactorily . . . and it sure is fun to hear those voices when the movie is being run.

Now isn't that tricky?

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE: It does not pay to belittle anybody — the Lord never did!

Try a little understanding. Everybody can't be perfect.

CHAPLAIN.

DEAR HELOISE: When buying material for colored or printed pillowcases (especially for children) buy a little extra material to sew along the top of a sheet to match the cases.

This makes an inexpensive matching sheet and pillow case and they look so attractive.

"THRIFTY".

DEAR HELOISE: Just a little hint as to what can be done with yellowed window shades.

My shades are the roll-up-and-down kind with green on one side and white on the other.

As they are in perfect condition, except for the "yellow," I laid them on a table and just cleaned the white side with white liquid shoe polish.

They dried overnight.

When I hung them back on the window they were nice and white again.

DEAR HELOISE: For those of you who don't own a clothes dryer and want to hang out your laundry after a rain or before the dew drys off the grass:

Slip each foot inside a plastic bread bag. Tie them on and you have instant boots.

When you get back on the porch just slip them off and discard. No wet shoes!

JESSIE.

DEAR HELOISE: When I made cream pie with a graham cracker crust, there was always some left over as we are a small family. The second day the crust was usually soggy.

Now, I always BAKE the crust if there is an option to either bake or chill it.

While it is still warm, I press marshmallows into the warm crust to cover the surface. This way I have no soggy crust the second day as the melted marshmallows seal it beautifully.

Besides, it adds an interesting layer and improves the flavor of the whole pie.

V. NEELY.

Thanks you little angel.

While testing this, I put those little tiny marshmallows all over the bottom and then poured in my hot pudding.

It was a knockout.

And while we are on the subject of pudding pies, don't forget that you can always put broken bits of chocolate in the bottom of any kind of crust, then pour your hot pudding over it and you have a false,black-bottom pie!

Truly great also.

Marichal Gains 4th Victory

Cards Edge Bucs On Rap By Maris

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Roger Maris, who once earned his Ph. D. in home run hitting, has started the learning process all over and now is one step closer to earning a promotion to first grade.

Maris, inserted into the St. Louis line-up as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning Monday night, rapped a run-scoring double with two out in the 10th inning, climaxing a three-run rally and giving the Cardinals a 6-5 victory over Pittsburgh.

It was one of the biggest of the 17 hits Maris has had this season, his first in the National League after 10 years in the American.

"This is like starting kindergarten all over again," the 32-year-old slugger said, thinking of everything he would have to learn about the new league after the New York Yankees traded him to St. Louis.

And as long as he was starting over again, Maris decided he'd like to do things differently.

"Maybe I'll destroy that home run image," said the man who experienced virtually nothing but trouble after hitting 61 homers in 1961. "All I want are base hits. I've got some good hitters like Orlando Cepeda, Tim McCarver and Mike Shannon behind me."

The left-hander hasn't hit any homers this season, but five doubles and one triple help make up his .270 batting average.

And he was right about the hitters he mentioned. Cepeda's single helped tie Monday night's game 3-3 in the ninth, and Shannon and McCarver each singled across a run before Maris delivered his clutch double.

In other NL games, San Francisco whipped Chicago 9-2 and Los Angeles topped Houston 4-2.

At the time, Maris' RBI appeared to be only an insurance run, but it proved decisive when pinch hitter Manny Jimenez socked a two-run double in the Pirates' half of the 10th. Larry Jaster prevented Pittsburgh from tying the game, coming on to get the last two outs.

Juan Marichal pitched a four-hitter for his fourth straight victory after three consecutive defeats at the start of the season.

The San Francisco ace received support from Willie Mays, who hit a homer, and Tom Haller, who drove in three runs with two doubles and a single.

Ron Fairly was the big man for Los Angeles against Houston, knocking in three runs with a double and a pair of singles. He also curiously was thrown out at the plate twice trying to score.

Claude Osteen needed help from reliever Ron Perranoski for his fourth victory against one defeat.

STAR OF THE 1955 World Series, Sandy Amoros, was back with the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday for at least seven days. Sandy retired from baseball in 1959 being only seven days short of the required five years in the Major League to be covered by the five-year pension plan. By going active for the Dodgers for a week he will be able to collect his pension. (UPI Telephoto)

Surprising Senators Defeat Twins, 7-4

California Nips Yankees By 3-2

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Young Tim Cullen, who left a legend in Saskatchewan with two mighty swings, has left his marks on Minnesota with one feeble flick of the wrists.

Cullen, Washington's rookie second baseman, delivered he key hit — a bloop double into short left field — during a six-run seventh-inning salvo that gave the surprising Senators a 7-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins Monday night.

"They should wipe the blood off the ball," the 24-year-old Californian said of his looping hit that sent two runs across the plate, giving the Senators a 5-3 lead en route to their eighth victory in the last 10 games.

"I'd have to say that's my biggest hit in the majors," added Cullen, who blasted two grand-slam homers in one inning five years ago while playing semipro ball in Saskatoon, Sask. "It was a good pitch — a fast ball high and tight. I was looking for it, but I didn't get around on it. I think I've got lazy hands."

Lazy hands or not, Cullen has stroked eight hits in 18 at-bats for a .444 mark while sharing second base with Bernie Allen and Bob Saverine during the Senators' climb to third place in the American League.

In Monday night's only other AL game, the California Angels edged the New York Yankees 3-2 on Rick Reichardt's tie-breaking single in the seventh inning.

St. Louis nipped Pittsburgh 6-5 in 10 innings, Los Angeles topped Houston 4-2 and San Francisco mauled the Chicago Cubs 9-2 in National League play.

Washington trailed the Twins 3-1 when Frank Howard's single triggered the seventh inning uprising. Cap Peterson's double knocked out Minnesota starter Jim Ollom and reliever Al Worthington walked Paul Casanova before yielding a tying two-run single by pinch hitter Jim King.

Cullen's two-run double off Jim Merritt, Hank Allen's sacrifice fly and a run-scoring error by shortstop Zoilo Versalles completed the rally.

"We've had some timely hitting, but tonight is the first time we've really busted out," said Senators pilot Gil Hodges. "The fellows are playing the kind of baseball they're capable of playing. They are believing in themselves and that they can do the job."

California snapped a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning when Jim Fregosi, Jimmie Hall and Reichardt drilled singles off Yankee reliever Hal Reniff.

Hall's first-inning homer off starter Fred Talbot and a run-scoring single by Tom Satriano in the fourth gave the Angels a 2-1 edge, but New York pulled even in the fifth when Charlie Smith double and scored on a single by John Kennedy.

Talbot homered off California starter Nick Willhite in the third.

Mikan Optimistic Of New Cage Loop

NEW YORK (AP) — George Mikan, commissioner of the American Basketball Association, is optimistic about the future of his new, 11-team circuit despite the recent acquisition of college All-Americas Jimmy Walker and Bill Bradley by clubs in the rival National Basketball Association.

"We tried for them but they took the NBA," Mikan pointed out. "You have to remember, though, that in football the National Football League had the best draft choices but the American League still came up with a good product."

Walker, former Providence star, was drafted by Indianapolis of the ABA and Detroit of the NBA. He signed a four-year contract for a reported $250,000 with the Pistons. Bradley, the Princeton All-America, came to terms with the New York Knicks of the NBA for an estimated $500,000 over four years.

"Our teams have now signed about 70 players, including free agents and those from the colleges and the NBA," Mikan estimated.

The latest NBA player to move to an ABA team was Erwin Mueller, 6-foot-8 center and forward for the Chicago Bulls. His signing by the New York entry of the fledgling league was announced Monday.

Mueller, who played college ball for the University of San Francisco, averaged 12.7 points for the Bulls in 1966-67, his first season in the NBA.

"We're surprised and disappointed," Dick Klein, owner of the Chicago Bulls, said in Chicago. "We never really had a chance to negotiate with him."

Mikan admitted, "We have had problems with franchises, but we are stabilizing them. We'll go with 11 franchises and our schedule will be released in a few weeks. The season starts Oct. 13."

Pittsburgh, Oakland, New Orleans, Minnesota, Louisville, Houston, Denver, Dallas and Anaheim, Calif. are the other teams in the league.

Mueller was the third NBA player signed by an ABA team. The others were LeRoy Ellis of the Baltimore Bullets and Jim (bad News) Barnes of the Los Angeles Lakers.

Ellis signed with New York and Barnes with Dallas of the ABA. But later Ellis signed again with the Bullets.

"Ellis has signed a valid, legal contract with us," said Mark Binstein, business manager of New York's ABA team. "He must play for us or he will not play ball."

Italian Race Driver In Critical Condition

MONTE CARLO (AP)—Italian race driver Lorenzo Bandini remained in critical condition early today, hospital sources said.

Bandini was burned and injured in Sunday's Monaco Grand Prix auto race, when his car overturned and caught fire.

The hospital said Bandini's condition had remained the same during the night. The hope was that he could be transferred soon to Lyon for specialized treatment for burns that cover 80 per cent of his body.

Doctors reported that Bandini, 34, was in a lethargic state, under effects of sedative shots.

Green Bay's Lombardi Honored By Fordham

NEW YORK (AP) — Vince Lombardi was back at Fordham, gulping and telling 600 cheering undergraduates he was overwhelmed at being awarded the university's Insignis Medal.

"I've been trying to swallow this lump in my throat all morning," said the man who bristles and barks commands as the coach of the Green Bay Packers. "I usually don't get nervous

"This is supposed to be an award for outstanding achievement as a teacher. I know of no qualification of mine to be included among so many distinguished people (previous receipients included Francis Cardinal Spellman, Nobel Prize-winning physicist Dr. Victor Hess and Peruvian statesman Victor Belaunde).

"I must give the credit to my father and mother; my wife and children; Fordham, which gave me a chance through football; St. Cecelia's, a high school in Englewood, N.J., where he first at West Point, the finest football teacher; the Mara family of the New York football Giants, and Green Bay."

The 600 students who had given him a rousing ovation listened while he spoke of an intangible thing called "spirit."

"Cardinal Spellman once told me I had put the Fordham spirit in Green Bay," said Lombardi. "Just what is spirit? Every year I try to think of a new word for it....mental toughness, or whatever you want.

"Last winter at the Super Bowl I called it something that I have been sorry about ever since. When those tough sports writers asked me what made the Packers click, I said 'love.' Now, you fellows know what kind of 'love' I meant. It was the kind that means loyalty, teamwork, respecting the dignity of another, spartanism with sacrifices. Heart power not hate power.

"When we lose this esprit de corps Fordham will no longer be Fordham and Green Bay no longer will be Green Bay."

Listeners who know him only as the hard-to-crack stone face of the football locker room or the stern taskmaster on the field were given a rare insight into this complex 53-year-old man.

A few minutes earlier, Lombardi had been fielding questions in an open news conference, telling everybody that Jim Taylor, the veteran fullback who played out his option and became a free agent May 1, still would be welcome at Green Bay.

"The matter is unresolved," he said, fixing his interrogator with a stare. "It is up to Jimmy to make his decision. You ask if it's money alone? I don't know. Jimmy doesn't talk much. He never told me what he wants. We have made the same offer as last year."

On the Kansas City Chiefs, champions of the American Football League, Lombardi had the same comments he made on that January afternoon after his Packers had beaten the Chiefs in the Super Bowl.

"I still think Kansas City did not compare with the top teams in the NFL because they do not play in the same competition. They have fine football players but not enough of them."

The site of the next Super Bowl?—"I think it would be a good thing to move it around."

Will Green Bay win again?—"Green Bay will have a very representative team:"

Will the pro merger work?—"Eventually, yes. There still are some things to be worked out, like television."

Four new players with the California Angels this spring are relief pitcher Pete Cimino, first baseman Don Mincher and outfielder Jimmie Hall, three ex-Minnesota Twins, and outfielder Len Gabrielson, formerly with the San Francisco Giants.

First Elimination Fight Set For Clay's Successor

NEW YORK (AP) — Plans are moving rapidly ahead to pick a successor to heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, who now faces the fight of his life, one that figures to last considerably longer than 15 rounds.

As Clay was formally charged with a violation of the Selective Service Act Monday for having refused to be inducted into the Army, the first bout in an elimination tournament to determine the new champion was tentatively set.

The World Boxing Association and New York Athletic Commission stripped Clay of the title after he defied the Army.

Karl Mildenberger, the European champion who was beaten by Clay in a 15-round decision last September, will fight Thad Spencer, the No. 7 challenger, in Germany sometime in September, according to promoter Mike Malitz.

Malitz said a new company, Sports Action, Inc., had been formed to run the elimination tournament of eight boxers.

The group may involve the American Broadcasting Co., which wants to televise some of the fights, and the Houston Astrodome, where the semifinal and the final bouts may be held. Others in the group are Bob Arum, a promoter, and Jimmy Brown, ex-pro football star.

Malitz said representatives of all eight fighters met with him here Tuesday and that pairings were set up for the first four bouts.

Besides Mildenberger-Spencer, these would pit former champion Floyd Patterson against Oscar Bonavena of Argentina; unbeaten young contender Joe Frazier against George Chuvalo, the Canadian champion, and Ernie Terrell, former WBA champ, against Jimmy Ellis, a former sparring partner of Clay.

"It's a monumental task to put all the elements together," said Malitz, "but we hope we can do it. We sent out formal contracts today."

Mildenberger's manager, Wolfgang Mueller, said contracts for the match with Spencer had been signed and details would be settled later in the week.

Spencer's manager, Willie Ketchum, said he liked the tournament idea but complained there were too many fighters involved.

Terrell's camp also came out in favor of the tournament and said the big fighter's left eye, injured in his unsuccessful title fight with Clay in February, had healed. Terrell will hold a public workout here Tuesday.

Al Bolan, one of Patterson's advisers, said the former champion would make up his mind about the tournament after his fight with Jerry Quarry scheduled for Los Angeles July 9.

Clay Plans Fights Abroad To Finance Court Battles

By LAWRENCE LEE
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Under indictment for refusing to be inducted into the Army, stripped by domestic boxing groups of his world heavyweight title, a laughing, confident Cassius Clay today planned bouts abroad to finance his court fight against Selective Service.

Although no contract for a foreign match has been signed, Clay is known to be considering at least three, all against old opponents.

He may fight George Chuvalo in Montreal before Expo '67 is over, Floyd Patterson in Tokyo within the next two months or Karl Mildenberger in Stockholm before the summer is out.

Clay was indicted Monday by a federal grand jury in Houston, the adopted hometown where he was called as a draftee April 28, but refused to take the oath, explaining that he was Muslim minister Muhammad Ali and, as a man of the cloth, exempt from military duty.

The government asked U. S. Dist. Judge Ben C. Connally to order Clay to surrender his passport, but one of Clay's lawyers, Hayden Covington of New York, argued that this would be taking the fighter's livelihood away.

Covington told Connally in a brief hearing on bond terms that the influential New York State Athletic Commission, the World Boxing Association and other state boxing commissions have taken Clay's right to fight away.

The lawyer said that these actions would be fought separately, but that Clay badly needs overseas work as a boxer in order to pay his legal bills.

"While he has had a tremendous income, he is far from a man of means," Covington said. "The record in this case is as big as an anti-trust record. This entails tremendous expense to the defendant."

Clay, dressed in a well-tailored gray suit and a blue polka-dot tie, yawned intermittently as Covington recited the fighter's financial obligations, including a $1,200 monthly alimony payment.

Clearly impatient with the arguments, Connally interrupted Covington to say that Clay could keep the passport and would be free to travel through the United States on Muslim duties, but that he would have to request court permission for any trip abroad.

Connally set bond at $5,000, $500 of that in cash, and Clay was photographed, fingerprinted and freed in the custody of his Houston lawyer, Quinnan Hodges.

Clay was grim through most of the proceedings.

Before the judge, he murmured "yes, sir" to questions from the bench and a barely audible "not guilty" to the charge of draft dodging.

But afterwards, he was the old Clay. He ducked behind a pillar to play peek-a-boo with a television camerman, signed autographs for tourists from Mexico and shook hands with ditch diggers working beside the concert hall.

The last place Boston Bruins allowed 253 goals in 70 games. They scored 182 goals, six less than the New York Rangers who finished fourth, two notches ahead of the Bruins.

Cards Edge Bucs On Rap By Maris

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Roger Maris, who once earned his Ph. D. in home run hitting, has started the learning process all over and now is one step closer to earning a promotion to first grade.

Maris, inserted into the St. Louis line-up as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning Monday night, rapped a run-scoring double with two out in the 10th inning, climaxing a three-run rally and giving the Cardinals a 6-5 victory over Pittsburgh.

It was one of the biggest of the 17 hits Maris has had this season, his first in the National League after 10 years in the American.

"This is like starting kindergarten all over again," the 32-year-old slugger said, thinking of everything he would have to learn about the new league after the New York Yankees traded him to St. Louis.

And as long as he was starting over again, Maris decided he'd like to do things differently.

"Maybe I'll destroy that home run image," said the man who experienced virtually nothing but trouble after hitting 61 homers in 1961. "All I want are base hits. I've got some good hitters like Orlando Cepeda, Tim McCarver and Mike Shannon behind me."

The left-hander hasn't hit any homers this season, but five doubles and one triple help make up his .270 batting average.

And he was right about the hitters he mentioned. Cepeda's single helped tie Monday night's game 3-3 in the ninth, and Shannon and McCarver each singled across a run before Maris delivered his clutch double.

In other NL games, San Francisco whipped Chicago 9-2 and Los Angeles topped Houston 4-2.

At the time, Maris' RBI appeared to be only an insurance run, but it proved decisive when pinch hitter Manny Jimenez socked a two-run double in the Pirates' half of the 10th. Larry Jaster prevented Pittsburgh from tying the game, coming on to get the last two outs.

Juan Marichal pitched a four-hitter for his fourth straight victory after three consecutive defeats at the start of the season.

The San Francisco ace received support from Willie Mays, who hit a homer, and Tom Haller, who drove in three runs with two doubles and a single.

Ron Fairly was the big man for Los Angeles against Houston, knocking in three runs with a double and a pair of singles. He also curiously was thrown out at the plate twice trying to score.

Claude Osteen needed help from reliever Ron Perranoski for his fourth victory against one defeat.

STAR OF THE 1955 World Series, Sandy Amoros, was back with the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday for at least seven days. Sandy retired from baseball in 1959 being only seven days short of the required five years in the Major League to be covered by the five-year pension plan. By going active for the Dodgers for a week he will be able to collect his pension. (UPI Telephoto)

Surprising Senators Defeat Twins, 7-4

California Nips Yankees By 3-2

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Young Tim Cullen, who left a legend in Saskatchewan with two mighty swings, has left his marks on Minnesota with one feeble flick of the wrists.

Cullen, Washington's rookie second baseman, delivered he key hit — a bloop double into short left field — during a six-run seventh-inning salvo that gave the surprising Senators a 7-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins Monday night.

"They should wipe the blood off the ball," the 24-year-old Californian said of his looping hit that sent two runs across the plate, giving the Senators a 5-3 lead en route to their eighth victory in the last 10 games.

"I'd have to say that's my biggest hit in the majors," added Cullen, who blasted two grand-slam homers in one inning five years ago while playing semipro ball in Saskatoon, Sask. "It was a good pitch — a fast ball high and tight. I was looking for it, but I didn't get around on it. I think I've got lazy hands."

Lazy hands or not, Cullen has stroked eight hits in 18 at-bats for a .444 mark while sharing second base with Bernie Allen and Bob Saverine during the Senators' climb to third place in the American League.

In Monday night's only other AL game, the California Angels edged the New York Yankees 3-2 on Rick Reichardt's tie-breaking single in the seventh inning.

St. Louis nipped Pittsburgh 6-5 in 10 innings, Los Angeles topped Houston 4-2 and San Francisco mauled the Chicago Cubs 9-2 in National League play.

Washington trailed the Twins 3-1 when Frank Howard's single triggered the seventh inning uprising. Cap Peterson's double knocked out Minnesota starter Jim Ollom and reliever Al Worthington walked Paul Casanova before yielding a tying two-run single by pinch hitter Jim King.

Cullen's two-run double off Jim Merritt, Hank Allen's sacrifice fly and a run-scoring error by shortstop Zoilo Versalles completed the rally.

"We've had some timely hitting, but tonight is the first time we've really busted out," said Senators pilot Gil Hodges. "The fellows are playing the kind of baseball they're capable of playing. They are believing in themselves and that they can do the job."

California snapped a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning when Jim Fregosi, Jimmie Hall and Reichardt drilled singles off Yankee reliever Hal Reniff.

Hall's first-inning homer off starter Fred Talbot and a run-scoring single by Tom Satriano in the fourth gave the Angels a 2-1 edge, but New York pulled even in the fifth when Charlie Smith double and scored on a single by John Kennedy.

Talbot homered off California starter Nick Willhite in the third.

Clay Plans Fights Abroad To Finance Court Battles

By LAWRENCE LEE
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Under indictment for refusing to be inducted into the Army, stripped by domestic boxing groups of his world heavyweight title, a laughing, confident Cassius Clay today planned bouts abroad to finance his court fight against Selective Service.

Although no contract for a foreign match has been signed, Clay is known to be considering at least three, all against old opponents.

He may fight George Chuvalo in Montreal before Expo '67 is over, Floyd Patterson in Tokyo within the next two months or Karl Mildenberger in Stockholm before the summer is out.

Clay was indicted Monday by a federal grand jury in Houston, the adopted hometown where he was called as a draftee April 28, but refused to take the oath, explaining that he was Muslim minister Muhammad Ali and, as a man of the cloth, exempt from military duty.

The government asked U. S. Dist. Judge Ben C. Connally to order Clay to surrender his passport, but one of Clay's lawyers, Hayden Covington of New York, argued that this would be taking the fighter's livelihood away.

Covington told Connally in a brief hearing on bond terms that the influential New York State Athletic Commission, the World Boxing Association and other state boxing commissions have taken Clay's right to fight away.

The lawyer said that these actions would be fought separately, but that Clay badly needs overseas work as a boxer in order to pay his legal bills.

"While he has had a tremendous income, he is far from a man of means," Covington said. "The record in this case is as big as an anti-trust record. This entails tremendous expense to the defendant."

Clay, dressed in a well-tailored gray suit and a blue polka-dot tie, yawned intermittently as Covington recited the fighter's financial obligations, including a $1,200 monthly alimony payment.

Clearly impatient with the arguments, Connally interrupted Covington to say that Clay could keep the passport and would be free to travel through the United States on Muslim duties, but that he would have to request court permission for any trip abroad.

Connally set bond at $5,000, $500 of that in cash, and Clay was photographed, fingerprinted and freed in the custody of his Houston lawyer, Quinnan Hodges.

Clay was grim through most of the proceedings.

Before the judge, he murmured "yes, sir" to questions from the bench and a barely audible "not guilty" to the charge of draft dodging.

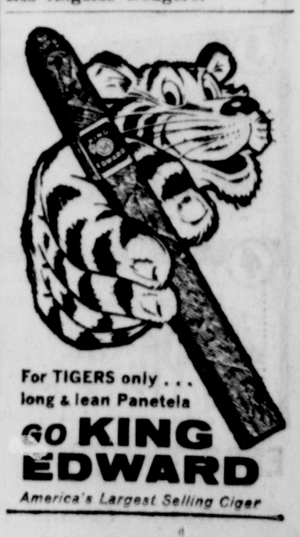

But afterwards, he was the old Clay. He ducked behind a pillar to play peek-a-boo with a television camerman, signed autographs for tourists from Mexico and shook hands with ditch diggers working beside the concert hall.

The last place Boston Bruins allowed 253 goals in 70 games. They scored 182 goals, six less than the New York Rangers who finished fourth, two notches ahead of the Bruins.

Bad Streak Of Putting, Claims Jack Nicklaus

HOUSTON (AP) — Big Jack Nicklaus, who's having the slowest start of his career on the golf tour this year, plays with one basic philosophy: "If I can't win, I don't care where I finish."

When Nicklaus shoots himself out of contention for victory, which has often been the case this year, his mind switches to the next stop, even though two rounds may remain.

"I start thinking about what I can do to win the next one; how I can improve," he said.

"After all, at the end of the year, it's how many firsts you had that really counts.

"Don't get me wrong, though. I always play as well as I can," Nicklaus explained. "If you don't, you're letting your game slip. All I'm saying is that I play to win. If I don't win, whether I finish fifth or 25th makes me no difference."

What has happened to the 27-year-old Columbus, Ohio, miracle man who in less than six years as a professional has won over half a million dollars? All of a sudden, his name barely makes a dent in the weekly official money list.

"I hate to complain, but in golf you have good and bad streaks that come and go," he said. "I'm having a bad streak of putting ... missing some short putts. I'll come back."

Each of the last four years, Nicklaus has won more than $100,000, peaking in 1965 with $140,752. He has won the Masters three times.

This year, though, he didn't even make the 36-hole cut at the Masters and has pocketed only $14,862 in official money a third of the way through the 1967 tour.

In his last five outings, he tied for 34th in the Jacksonville Open, 31st at Pensacola, missed the cut at the Masters, tied for fourth in the Tournament of Champions and last week slipped to 37th in the Houston Champions International.

"It's really not as bad as it looks when you look at the unofficial winnings too," Nicklaus noted, pointing out that he began the year with a victory in the Bing Crosby National, not an official PGA tournament.

He's not among the top 20 official money winners, but is eighth in total earnings with $36,192.

For a party spread, blend a quarter pound of blue cheese with a pound of cream cheese and a few tablespoons of brandy. Refrigerate in a tightly covered jar and store about a week before using to allow flavors to blend.

Astros Trade Dick Farrell To Phillies

HOUSTON (AP) — Fun-loving Dick Farrell is returning to the scene of some of his biggest thrills — on the field and off.

The veteran right-handed reliefer was sent to the Philadelphia Phillies by the Houston Astros Monday in a straight cash transaction, some estimates placing the figure as high as $75,000.

It's a return home for Farrell, 33, who signed with the Phils in 1953 and was 10-2 for them in 1957 before being dealt to the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1961.

Farrell was involved in one of two deals by the Houston Astros Monday. The other sent catcher Bill Heath, who hit .301 in 55 games last year, to the Detroit Tigers' Toledo farm club in the International League for cash and a minor league player to be named before Oct. 2.

You don't expect a vet like Farrell to take a change in uniforms too hard, but he did.

"I didn't want to go any place — and not back to Philly," he said. "I've got a home in Houston. I've been here six years and made my home here six years. I knew something was going on, but when it happens you feel empty."

Farrell came to Houston in the National League expansion draft after the 1961 season. With his departure, only two original Colt 45s remain — infielders Bob Aspromonte and Bob Lillis.

Farrell repaid the Astros by winning more games (53) than any other pitcher in Houston big league history and by being the club's lone All-Star representative for three years.

For those years, Farrell was 53-64 and he takes a 1-0 record with a 4.50 earned run average with him to the Phils.

Farrell was reminded that the Phils are having their troubles with Dick Groat and Bill White injured.

He grinned and said, "I'll be a big inspiration for them when I get there. I'll key them up."

New Stadium At Cincy May Go On Ballot

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Hamilton County Democratic Club launched a drive today to have the proposed sports stadium for Cincinnati placed on the November election ballot.

Club president Walter A. Kelley said petitions would be circulated with hopes of collecting 20,000 signatures. Only 15,000 would be required to get the issue on the ballot.

Vincent Beckman, county Democratic chairman, said the "petition has nothing to do with party politics. It has to do with some peoples' feelings about the stadium."

Beckman said the party favors the stadium "as long as it was soundly financed and if general revenue funds were not involved." The Democratic club has no official connection with the regular party organization.

Kelley said "If the taxpayers are going to be called on to pay for it, then they should be given the right to vote on it."

The petition would call for an ordinance "to prohibit the use of tax revenues for the erection or maintenance of a sports stadium."

Beckman said his party is taking "a close hard look" at the stadium because of increased cost figures. City Manager William C. Wichman said last week the estimated cost is now more than $40 million, an increase of nearly $4 million over what was predicted last July.

Boy Suffers Burns Of Leg

A Georgetown area youth, burned when his trousers caught fire Monday, was treated at City Hospital where ten other area residents were also treated.

Daniel McDole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McDole of Georgetown R. D. 1, received burns of the right lower leg when his trousers leg ignited from an outdoors fire.

Also treated were John Smith, son of Mrs. Ross Jackson Jr. of Macrum St., a laceration of the left thumb on a paper cutter at East Liverpool High School; Terri Shields, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shields of 197 Vernia St., a contusion of the chest while riding a bicycle.

Richard Welsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Welsh of 701 Oakland Ave., a right shoulder injury in gym class at East Junior High School; William Compa of N. Shady Lane Dr., employed at Central Service, lacerations of the right and left arm and left hip when a grinder he was using became caught in a door.

Bad Streak Of Putting, Claims Jack Nicklaus

HOUSTON (AP) — Big Jack Nicklaus, who's having the slowest start of his career on the golf tour this year, plays with one basic philosophy: "If I can't win, I don't care where I finish."

When Nicklaus shoots himself out of contention for victory, which has often been the case this year, his mind switches to the next stop, even though two rounds may remain.

"I start thinking about what I can do to win the next one; how I can improve," he said.

"After all, at the end of the year, it's how many firsts you had that really counts.

"Don't get me wrong, though. I always play as well as I can," Nicklaus explained. "If you don't, you're letting your game slip. All I'm saying is that I play to win. If I don't win, whether I finish fifth or 25th makes me no difference."

What has happened to the 27-year-old Columbus, Ohio, miracle man who in less than six years as a professional has won over half a million dollars? All of a sudden, his name barely makes a dent in the weekly official money list.

"I hate to complain, but in golf you have good and bad streaks that come and go," he said. "I'm having a bad streak of putting ... missing some short putts. I'll come back."

Each of the last four years, Nicklaus has won more than $100,000, peaking in 1965 with $140,752. He has won the Masters three times.

This year, though, he didn't even make the 36-hole cut at the Masters and has pocketed only $14,862 in official money a third of the way through the 1967 tour.

In his last five outings, he tied for 34th in the Jacksonville Open, 31st at Pensacola, missed the cut at the Masters, tied for fourth in the Tournament of Champions and last week slipped to 37th in the Houston Champions International.

"It's really not as bad as it looks when you look at the unofficial winnings too," Nicklaus noted, pointing out that he began the year with a victory in the Bing Crosby National, not an official PGA tournament.

He's not among the top 20 official money winners, but is eighth in total earnings with $36,192.

For a party spread, blend a quarter pound of blue cheese with a pound of cream cheese and a few tablespoons of brandy. Refrigerate in a tightly covered jar and store about a week before using to allow flavors to blend.

Astros Trade Dick Farrell To Phillies

HOUSTON (AP) — Fun-loving Dick Farrell is returning to the scene of some of his biggest thrills — on the field and off.

The veteran right-handed reliefer was sent to the Philadelphia Phillies by the Houston Astros Monday in a straight cash transaction, some estimates placing the figure as high as $75,000.

It's a return home for Farrell, 33, who signed with the Phils in 1953 and was 10-2 for them in 1957 before being dealt to the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1961.

Farrell was involved in one of two deals by the Houston Astros Monday. The other sent catcher Bill Heath, who hit .301 in 55 games last year, to the Detroit Tigers' Toledo farm club in the International League for cash and a minor league player to be named before Oct. 2.

You don't expect a vet like Farrell to take a change in uniforms too hard, but he did.

"I didn't want to go any place — and not back to Philly," he said. "I've got a home in Houston. I've been here six years and made my home here six years. I knew something was going on, but when it happens you feel empty."

Farrell came to Houston in the National League expansion draft after the 1961 season. With his departure, only two original Colt 45s remain — infielders Bob Aspromonte and Bob Lillis.

Farrell repaid the Astros by winning more games (53) than any other pitcher in Houston big league history and by being the club's lone All-Star representative for three years.

For those years, Farrell was 53-64 and he takes a 1-0 record with a 4.50 earned run average with him to the Phils.

Farrell was reminded that the Phils are having their troubles with Dick Groat and Bill White injured.

He grinned and said, "I'll be a big inspiration for them when I get there. I'll key them up."

New Stadium At Cincy May Go On Ballot

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Hamilton County Democratic Club launched a drive today to have the proposed sports stadium for Cincinnati placed on the November election ballot.

Club president Walter A. Kelley said petitions would be circulated with hopes of collecting 20,000 signatures. Only 15,000 would be required to get the issue on the ballot.

Vincent Beckman, county Democratic chairman, said the "petition has nothing to do with party politics. It has to do with some peoples' feelings about the stadium."

Beckman said the party favors the stadium "as long as it was soundly financed and if general revenue funds were not involved." The Democratic club has no official connection with the regular party organization.

Kelley said "If the taxpayers are going to be called on to pay for it, then they should be given the right to vote on it."

The petition would call for an ordinance "to prohibit the use of tax revenues for the erection or maintenance of a sports stadium."

Beckman said his party is taking "a close hard look" at the stadium because of increased cost figures. City Manager William C. Wichman said last week the estimated cost is now more than $40 million, an increase of nearly $4 million over what was predicted last July.

Boy Suffers Burns Of Leg

A Georgetown area youth, burned when his trousers caught fire Monday, was treated at City Hospital where ten other area residents were also treated.

Daniel McDole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McDole of Georgetown R. D. 1, received burns of the right lower leg when his trousers leg ignited from an outdoors fire.

Also treated were John Smith, son of Mrs. Ross Jackson Jr. of Macrum St., a laceration of the left thumb on a paper cutter at East Liverpool High School; Terri Shields, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shields of 197 Vernia St., a contusion of the chest while riding a bicycle.

Mrs. Laura Snediker of 125 Beechwood Ave., abrasions of the right knee and a sprain of the left ankle in a fall in the street; Leslie Diezman of Sprucevale Rd., employed at the Tri - State Appliance Store, a fracture of the left large toe when a box of furnace pipe fell on it.

June A. Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ward of New Cumberland R. D. 2, a contusion of the right ring finger on a sliding board at school; Harry L. Beaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey Beaver of 169 Thompson Ave., abrasions and contusions of the right thumb in a car door.

Jeffrey Pridemore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Pridemore of Smiths Ferry R. D. 1, a laceration of the right cheek in a fall against a toy gun at home; Mrs. Karen Parrish of Irondale, a puncture wound of the right foot on a nail at home.

Local Rabbit Owner Wins Show Honors

Rabbits owned by Miss Vivian Jones of Apples Corners, took honors Sunday at the Richland County Rabbit Breeders Association at the Mansfield Fairgrounds.

The Junior Ruby Eye Polish Buck won first place in his class and also took best Ruby Eye Junior and won best opposite Ruby Eye Polish.

Miss Jones also entered a Senior Ruby Eye Polish Buck which took fourth place and the sister to the Junior Buck which placed third.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, May 9, the 129th day of 1967. There are 236 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date:

In 1754, the first newspaper cartoon, by Benjamin Franklin, appeared in the Pennsylvania Gazette.

In 1781, Spain took possession of Pensacola and all of Florida.

In 1915, Japan presented China with 21 demands, revealing for the first time Japanese designs for world conquest.

In 1936, Italy annexed Ethiopia and King Victor Emmanuel was proclaimed emperor.

In 1945, German Field Marshal Hermann Goering surrendered to the U.S. 7th Army.

In 1946, Italy's King Victor Emmanuel abdicated in favor of his son, Crown Prince Humbert.

Ten years ago—The Agriculture Department said it had assessed penalties of more than a half million dollars against Texas financier Billie Sol Estes.

One year ago — Communist China reported its third nuclear test—the first to use thermonuclear material.

Handel completed his "Messiah" in the incredibly short span of 24 days.

Britain once considered the 34-square-mile island of Ascension, in the South Atlantic, as a man-of-war with a naval officer as governor. Today several nations have communications facilities on the isle. It plays a vital role in the United States space program as a missile tracking station on the Eastern Test Range.

Junior Editors Quiz on INERTIA

QUESTION: If we are standing in a bus which stops suddenly, we lose our balance. Why?

★ ★ ★

ANSWER: When you are riding in a bus, you may seem to stand still, but actually your body is moving forward, as the bus is. If the bus stops suddenly, you get a jolt. This is because of the law of inertia, which can be put this way: a body at rest stays that way, and a body in motion keeps moving in a straight line, unless forces from outside act on it. Because of inertia, your body was moving forward; then the force of the bus stopping suddenly acted on it, giving you the jolt. Jerry, in the picture, shows inertia in another way. The penny is being held on top of his finger by gravity, pulling it down. The penny has inertia. It's not going to move unless a force stronger than it's gravity can disturb its inertia. The card, flipping out from under it, gives it a certain pull away from the finger, but not enough to overcome the inertia holding it in place. When you hit a baseball, you start the ball moving in a straight line, until gravity overcomes it's inertia and it falls to the ground or some smart fielder grabs it in his glove and you're out!

Recovered, No Apparent Spread

Health Official Confirms GI Had Bubonic Plague

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Public Health Service official confirmed today that a Vietnam veteran was hospitalized in Texas for 16 days last fall before doctors realized he was suffreing from bubonic plague.

The victim, a 21-year-old serviceman on furlough, recovered with no further complications and there was no apparent spread of the disease, Dr. David J. Sencer said in a telephone interview from Atlanta. He is head of the National Communicable Disease Center there.

"There was an element of luck," Sencer said. "If the plague had progressed into pneumonic plague and gotten into his bloodstream with an infection of the lung, the chances of epidemic would have been great — because he'd be caughing up phlegm."

Before doctors at Veterans Hospital in Dallas diagnosed the case, the youth had not been under any special quarantine or precautionary care, Sencer said.

Army officials announced curing the bubonic plague case — the first imported into the United States in 42 years — last Nov. 15, but did not mention then that the illness had not been diagnosed for more than two weeks.

Sencer revealed that delay in testimony before a House Appropriations subcommittee. The testimony was released Monday.

After discussing five cases of plague that originated in the United States last year, the doctor said: "The sixth case is frightening. A furloughed serviceman from Vietnam, where plague is epidemic, was admitted to a hospital in a Western state — Texas, as a matter of fact, sir — and remained for 16 days before the disease was suspected.

"Slightly altered circumstances could have lead to pneumonic plague — a true catastrophe, for pneumonic plague can spread into an epidemic, with person-to-person transmission."

The Army said the youth had been assigned to a group tearing down old rat-infested buildings in Vietnam. Fleas from infected rats apparently transmitted the disease. Hundreds of cases of plague or suspected plague have been reported among South Vietnamese.

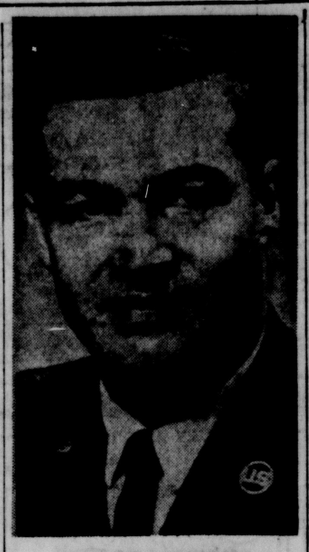

In the interview, Sencer said the youth's illness originally was diagnosed as lymphadenitis, a swelling of lymph nodes from nonspecific infections.

The plague was not detected until a specialist was ordered to examine the youth, who had not been responding to treatment, Sencer said. After the diagnosis was confirmed, doctors at Veterans Hospital got excellent results with antibiotics and the soldier was transferred Oct. 4 to Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio, Tex.

Army officials later said the youth had been free of fever since Sept. 18, but it was not known when he entered the Dallas hospital for initial treatment.

Sencer credited two previous inoculations against plague which the youth had taken in Vietnam with preventing the progression of the disease from bubonic to pneumonic plague.

"You just don't think of plague these days in the United States," the doctor said.

SGT. DAUGHERTY
'Economy Champion'

District Soldier Honored For His Fund Suggestion

T.Sgt. Gerald E. Daugherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Davidson of Hammondsville, has been named "economy champion" for 1967 at Scott Air Force base in Illinois.

The recognition came as the result of money-saving suggestions within the Department of Defense.

Daugherty's name has been placed on a roster of other such winners at the Civil Service Commission in Washington, D.C.

His suggestion led to an annual saving of $11,225.

He is married to the former Sylvia King of England and has two daughters.

A graduate of Stanton Local High School, he has been in the Air Force 13 years.

Brooklyn Police Halt Flareup At Poverty Meeting

NEW YORK (AP — About 100 policemen, including two riot control squads, put down a shouting, pushing disturbance at a Brooklyn antipoverty meeting Monday night after a city fireman was dragged bodily from the hall.

Police minimized the incident involving about 2,000 persons, 75 per cent of them white and Puerto Rican and the remainder Negro.

"It seemed to be a matter of emotions getting the best of some people," said Inspector Thomas Reid, commander of the 10th Division. "There didn't appear to be any racial overtones."

According to police, the disorder came when Stanley Boyd, 37, a Negro city fireman, criticized the conduct of the meeting, called at Public School 288 in the Coney Island section to elect planning committees for the Community Development Corp. — an arm of the city's war on poverty.

While Boyd was speaking, police said, a group of unidentified men grabbed him and began dragging the fireman towards an exit. They said Boyd shouted, "Somebody hit me and I'm going to hit someone!"

May 18-22 In Hancock, Brooke

Preparations Are Made For 2-County Fund Plea

Final preparations have been made for the fund drive of the Hancock - Brooke County Mental Health Society.

It will run May 18 through May 22.

Funds from the Hancock and Brooke county commissioners, proceeds from the recent Hobby Show sponsored by the Weirton Rotary Club, and public contributions from the third annual drive have made it possible for the Board of Directors of the service to add a social worker, Bart Pavuk, and to increase the number of working days of Dr. Williard Schwartz, director of service, and Mrs. Carolyn Switzer, a secretary, Mrs. Audrey Litman, president, has announced.

Pavuk, director of social service at Dixmont State Hospital, Allegheny County, Pa., will work with the service each Saturday. Dr. Schwartz will work one day every week and Mrs. Switzer two days.

Staff personnel also include Mrs. Janet Sullivan, psychiatric social worker, and Dr. Guy Frisk, psychologist.

It is still necessary for the service to maintain an appointment waiting list and further expansion of staff and working days to meet the public demand will be dependent upon the success of the fund drive, according to Dr. Eli Weller, chairman of the campaign.

During April, the service operated 11 days, with a total of 60 visits and 2 collateral appointments. Included were 26 children and 36 adults.

There were 43 appointments with residents of Hancock County and 19 from Brooke County. Five new applications were received for service.

During the meeting, Mrs. Lowell Austin, chairman of the nominating committee reported on nominees for 1967-68 to be elected at the June meeting. They are: Mrs. Audrey Litman, president; Victor Greco, first vice president; John L. Sullivan, second vice president; Mrs. George Tokash, recording secretary; Mrs. Harold Wright, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Eleanor Snyder, treasurer; Mrs. Harold Borza, financial secretary and Mrs. E. M. Clubb Jr., a two-year term, and Emil Presley, a one - year term, as representatives to the Board of Directors of the Mental Health Service.

The society agreed with the Hancock County commissioners on approval of a regional comprehensive mental health center to be constructed by Wheeling, if the program does not entail financial support from either Hancock or Brooke county commissioners or the society.

The next meeting will be June 1.

Trustees Slated To Certify Road Mileage For '67

St. Clair Township trustees were schedued today to meet with County Engineer John Ursu concerning certification of the township road mileage.

At a meeting Monday night, the trustees decided no new blacktop road programs will be accepted this year due to the expenses connected with correction of a landslide problem on Grimms Bridge Rd.

Money has already been spent in an effort to maintain traffic, and the trustees have agreed to share the cost of correction of the slide problem with the Columbiana County Commissioners.

Marvin McKenzie, who recently resigned as constable, was rehired as a parttime officer during the illness of Constable Robert Jones.

Trustees recommended township residents join in an area-wide cleanup, fixup, paintup campaign of the city of East Liverpool, Chamber of Commerce and Jaycees.

The trustees will meet again Monday.

There are approximately 110 million gas appliances in use in homes in the United States.

Chester Sets Pre-School Registration

Pre-school registration will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. at the Chester Primary building, Thayer Allison, principal, has announced.

Parents of children who will be 6 on or before Oct. 31, must bring a birth certificate and immunization record with the child Thursday, as required by state law.

A program on health and physical fitness will be prseented by Mrs. Charlotta Logston, school nurse, and Paul Caseman, physical education teacher.

Children will be permitted to visit the various classrooms with their parents. Refreshments will be served by the PTA, Allison said.

Injured In Accident

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—Butler County Coroner Garret J. Boone was injured Monday night in a two-car accident on a Hamilton bridge.

Dr. Boone, 65, was answering an official call when his car was struck, police said. He suffered head injuries and shock and was admitted to Mercy Hospital. The other driver was not hurt.

Awards Assembly May 26

Various Events Planned For High School Seniors

School days are drawing to a close for East Liverpool High School Seniors and plans have been completed for several major events marking the end of the year.

The annual Senior Assembly will be May 26, the last day of school for seniors, at Memorial Auditorium.

Awards will be presented for journalism, drama, choir, band, attendance, secretarial, citizenship, fellowship, leadership and other activities.

Parents are invited to the assembly at 1 p. m.

Caps and gowns will be distributed May 22 and will be worn for the assembly.

The senior banquet will be May 29 at 6:30 p. m. at the auditorium. Each senior attending is to make a reservation and pay $2 to help defray the costs.

The dress will be street-length dresses for the girls and suits or sports jackets for the boys.

Baccalaureate will be June 4 at 8 p. m. at the auditorium. The Rev. Charles F. Menough will give the class sermon. Rehearsal will be June 2 at 10 a. m.

Commencement will be at 8 p. m. June 6 with Maj. Gen. Keith B. McCutcheon of the Marines the speaker. Rehearsal will be June 5 at 1 p. m.

Each senior will be given four tickets for each service. Two will be reserved in the chair seats and the other two are general admission. The tickets will be distributed at rehearsals.

All remaining tickets will be for general admission.

Pleads Innocent

WARREN, Ohio (AP)— Mrs. Mary Poole, 32, of Warren pleaded innocent Monday in the fatal stabbing April 27 of her husband, Milton, 36, in their parked car. Free on $5,000 bond she was bound to the Trumbull County grand jury on charges of second-degree murder.

Columbus Senior Chosen As Drum Major At OSU

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State's 1967 football season will begin happening when Kirby Wyatt, 23, runs onto the Ohio Stadium field for the opening game Sept. 30.

Wyatt's not a football player. He's short and skinny. But he's as important to OSU football —the spectacle part of it—as a powerful fullback is to Coach Woody Hayes' team.

Monday in an empty stadium Wyatt, a senior from Columbus, won out over five other candidates for drum major of Ohio State's Marching Band. Sophomore Jack Swinehart of Warren was chosen to understudy him as assistant drum major.

Most of the 80,000 or more fans who fill Ohio Stadium for virtually every Buckeye home game wouldn't think of missing the pregame band show, let alone the game kickoff. The first big cheer of every Saturday comes when the drum major struts from the north entrance of the stadium to the 50-yard line.

Then the 120-man band starts toward him blaring the "Buckeye Battle Cry" and the show is on.

Actress Ann-Margret And Roger Smith Wed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Swedish-born actress Ann-Margret wore a miniskirt and tears streamed down her cheeks Monday as she married actor Roger Smith in a Las Vegas hotel suite.

The marriage was the second for Smith, 32, and the 26-year-old Ann-Margret's first.

Only two months ago they publicly broke their engagement, for reasons the actress would not disclose. Their reconciliation led directly to the altar.

The couple was unattended. Two hotel executives, Tony Zeppi and Dick Chappel, witnessed the double-ring ceremony.

Besides her miniskirt, Ann-Margret wore white net stockings, a pearl necklace and white low-heeled shoes with gold buckles.

Recovered, No Apparent Spread

Health Official Confirms GI Had Bubonic Plague

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Public Health Service official confirmed today that a Vietnam veteran was hospitalized in Texas for 16 days last fall before doctors realized he was suffreing from bubonic plague.

The victim, a 21-year-old serviceman on furlough, recovered with no further complications and there was no apparent spread of the disease, Dr. David J. Sencer said in a telephone interview from Atlanta. He is head of the National Communicable Disease Center there.

"There was an element of luck," Sencer said. "If the plague had progressed into pneumonic plague and gotten into his bloodstream with an infection of the lung, the chances of epidemic would have been great — because he'd be caughing up phlegm."

Before doctors at Veterans Hospital in Dallas diagnosed the case, the youth had not been under any special quarantine or precautionary care, Sencer said.

Army officials announced curing the bubonic plague case — the first imported into the United States in 42 years — last Nov. 15, but did not mention then that the illness had not been diagnosed for more than two weeks.

Sencer revealed that delay in testimony before a House Appropriations subcommittee. The testimony was released Monday.

After discussing five cases of plague that originated in the United States last year, the doctor said: "The sixth case is frightening. A furloughed serviceman from Vietnam, where plague is epidemic, was admitted to a hospital in a Western state — Texas, as a matter of fact, sir — and remained for 16 days before the disease was suspected.

"Slightly altered circumstances could have lead to pneumonic plague — a true catastrophe, for pneumonic plague can spread into an epidemic, with person-to-person transmission."

The Army said the youth had been assigned to a group tearing down old rat-infested buildings in Vietnam. Fleas from infected rats apparently transmitted the disease. Hundreds of cases of plague or suspected plague have been reported among South Vietnamese.

In the interview, Sencer said the youth's illness originally was diagnosed as lymphadenitis, a swelling of lymph nodes from nonspecific infections.

The plague was not detected until a specialist was ordered to examine the youth, who had not been responding to treatment, Sencer said. After the diagnosis was confirmed, doctors at Veterans Hospital got excellent results with antibiotics and the soldier was transferred Oct. 4 to Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio, Tex.

Army officials later said the youth had been free of fever since Sept. 18, but it was not known when he entered the Dallas hospital for initial treatment.

Sencer credited two previous inoculations against plague which the youth had taken in Vietnam with preventing the progression of the disease from bubonic to pneumonic plague.

"You just don't think of plague these days in the United States," the doctor said.

SGT. DAUGHERTY
'Economy Champion'

District Soldier Honored For His Fund Suggestion

T.Sgt. Gerald E. Daugherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Davidson of Hammondsville, has been named "economy champion" for 1967 at Scott Air Force base in Illinois.

The recognition came as the result of money-saving suggestions within the Department of Defense.

Daugherty's name has been placed on a roster of other such winners at the Civil Service Commission in Washington, D.C.

His suggestion led to an annual saving of $11,225.

He is married to the former Sylvia King of England and has two daughters.

A graduate of Stanton Local High School, he has been in the Air Force 13 years.

Brooklyn Police Halt Flareup At Poverty Meeting

NEW YORK (AP — About 100 policemen, including two riot control squads, put down a shouting, pushing disturbance at a Brooklyn antipoverty meeting Monday night after a city fireman was dragged bodily from the hall.

Police minimized the incident involving about 2,000 persons, 75 per cent of them white and Puerto Rican and the remainder Negro.

"It seemed to be a matter of emotions getting the best of some people," said Inspector Thomas Reid, commander of the 10th Division. "There didn't appear to be any racial overtones."

According to police, the disorder came when Stanley Boyd, 37, a Negro city fireman, criticized the conduct of the meeting, called at Public School 288 in the Coney Island section to elect planning committees for the Community Development Corp. — an arm of the city's war on poverty.

While Boyd was speaking, police said, a group of unidentified men grabbed him and began dragging the fireman towards an exit. They said Boyd shouted, "Somebody hit me and I'm going to hit someone!"

May 18-22 In Hancock, Brooke

Preparations Are Made For 2-County Fund Plea

Final preparations have been made for the fund drive of the Hancock - Brooke County Mental Health Society.

It will run May 18 through May 22.

Funds from the Hancock and Brooke county commissioners, proceeds from the recent Hobby Show sponsored by the Weirton Rotary Club, and public contributions from the third annual drive have made it possible for the Board of Directors of the service to add a social worker, Bart Pavuk, and to increase the number of working days of Dr. Williard Schwartz, director of service, and Mrs. Carolyn Switzer, a secretary, Mrs. Audrey Litman, president, has announced.

Pavuk, director of social service at Dixmont State Hospital, Allegheny County, Pa., will work with the service each Saturday. Dr. Schwartz will work one day every week and Mrs. Switzer two days.

Staff personnel also include Mrs. Janet Sullivan, psychiatric social worker, and Dr. Guy Frisk, psychologist.

It is still necessary for the service to maintain an appointment waiting list and further expansion of staff and working days to meet the public demand will be dependent upon the success of the fund drive, according to Dr. Eli Weller, chairman of the campaign.

During April, the service operated 11 days, with a total of 60 visits and 2 collateral appointments. Included were 26 children and 36 adults.

There were 43 appointments with residents of Hancock County and 19 from Brooke County. Five new applications were received for service.

During the meeting, Mrs. Lowell Austin, chairman of the nominating committee reported on nominees for 1967-68 to be elected at the June meeting. They are: Mrs. Audrey Litman, president; Victor Greco, first vice president; John L. Sullivan, second vice president; Mrs. George Tokash, recording secretary; Mrs. Harold Wright, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Eleanor Snyder, treasurer; Mrs. Harold Borza, financial secretary and Mrs. E. M. Clubb Jr., a two-year term, and Emil Presley, a one - year term, as representatives to the Board of Directors of the Mental Health Service.

The society agreed with the Hancock County commissioners on approval of a regional comprehensive mental health center to be constructed by Wheeling, if the program does not entail financial support from either Hancock or Brooke county commissioners or the society.

The next meeting will be June 1.

Trustees Slated To Certify Road Mileage For '67

St. Clair Township trustees were schedued today to meet with County Engineer John Ursu concerning certification of the township road mileage.

At a meeting Monday night, the trustees decided no new blacktop road programs will be accepted this year due to the expenses connected with correction of a landslide problem on Grimms Bridge Rd.

Money has already been spent in an effort to maintain traffic, and the trustees have agreed to share the cost of correction of the slide problem with the Columbiana County Commissioners.

Marvin McKenzie, who recently resigned as constable, was rehired as a parttime officer during the illness of Constable Robert Jones.

Trustees recommended township residents join in an areawide cleanup, fixup, paintup campaign of the city of East Liverpool, Chamber of Commerce and Jaycees.

The trustees will meet again Monday.

There are approximately 110 million gas appliances in use in homes in the United States.

Chester Sets Pre-School Registration

Pre-school registration will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. at the Chester Primary building, Thayer Allison, principal, has announced.

Parents of children who will be 6 on or before Oct. 31, must bring a birth certificate and immunization record with the child Thursday. as required by state law.

A program on health and physical fitness will be prseented by Mrs. Charlotta Logston, school nurse, and Paul Caseman, physical education teacher.

Children will be permitted to visit the various classrooms with their parents. Refreshments will be served by the PTA, Allison said.

Injured In Accident

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—Butler County Coroner Garret J. Boone was injured Monday night in a two-car accident on a Hamilton bridge.

Dr. Boone, 65, was answering an official call when his car was struck, police said. He suffered head injuries and shock and was admitted to Mercy Hospital. The other driver was not hurt.

Awards Assembly May 26

Various Events Planned For High School Seniors

School days are drawing to a close for East Liverpool High School Seniors and plans have been completed for several major events marking the end of the year.

The annual Senior Assembly will be May 26, the last day of school for seniors, at Memorial Auditorium.

Awards will be presented for journalism, drama, choir, band, attendance, secretarial, citizenship, fellowship, leadership and other activities.

Parents are invited to the assembly at 1 p. m.

Caps and gowns will be distributed May 22 and will be worn for the assembly.

The senior banquet will be May 29 at 6:30 p. m. at the auditorium. Each senior attending is to make a reservation and pay $2 to help defray the costs.

The dress will be street-length dresses for the girls and suits or sports jackets for the boys.

Baccalaureate will be June 4 at 8 p. m. at the auditorium. The Rev. Charles F. Menough will give the class sermon. Rehearsal will be June 2 at 10 a. m.

Commencement will be at 8 p. m. June 6 with Maj. Gen. Keith B. McCutcheon of the Marines the speaker. Rehearsal will be June 5 at 1 p. m.

Each senior will be given four tickets for each service. Two will be reserved in the chair seats and the other two are general admission. The tickets will be distributed at rehearsals.

All remaining tickets will be for general admission.

Pleads Innocent

WARREN, Ohio (AP)— Mrs. Mary Poole, 32, of Warren pleaded innocent Monday in the fatal stabbing April 27 of her husband, Milton, 36, in their parked car. Free on $5,000 bond she was bound to the Trumbull County grand jury on charges of second-degree murder.

Columbus Senior Chosen As Drum Major At OSU

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State's 1967 football season will begin happening when Kirby Wyatt, 23, runs onto the Ohio Stadium field for the opening game Sept. 30.

Wyatt's not a football player. He's short and skinny. But he's as important to OSU football —the spectacle part of it—as a powerful fullback is to Coach Woody Hayes' team.

Monday in an empty stadium Wyatt, a senior from Columbus, won out over five other candidates for drum major of Ohio State's Marching Band. Sophomore Jack Swinehart of Warren was chosen to understudy him as assistant drum major.

Most of the 80,000 or more fans who fill Ohio Stadium for virtually every Buckeye home game wouldn't think of missing the pregame band show, let alone the game kickoff. The first big cheer of every Saturday comes when the drum major struts from the north entrance of the stadium to the 50-yard line.

Then the 120-man band starts toward him blaring the "Buckeye Battle Cry" and the show is on.

Actress Ann-Margret And Roger Smith Wed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Swedish-born actress Ann-Margret wore a miniskirt and tears streamed down her cheeks Monday as she married actor Roger Smith in a Las Vegas hotel suite.

The marriage was the second for Smith, 32, and the 26-year-old Ann-Margret's first.

Only two months ago they publicly broke their engagement, for reasons the actress would not disclose. Their reconciliation led directly to the altar.

The couple was unattended. Two hotel executives, Tony Zeppi and Dick Chappel, witnessed the double-ring ceremony.

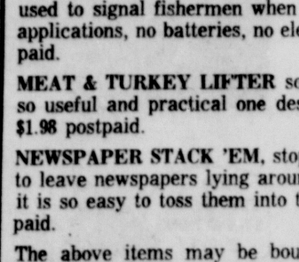

Besides her miniskirt, Ann-Margret wore white net stockings, a pearl necklace and white low-heeled shoes with gold buckles.
